PREFACE

LUTHER COLLEGE has had a definite aim and has rendered a very definite service. It has stood for sound Biblical doctrine, and on this basis has furnished many well educated ministers and teachers for the Church. It has thus been a very important factor in the development of the Norwegian Lutheran Church in this country. It has given its students a knowledge of the cultural and spiritual heritage which they have received from their forefathers and has thus added to their strength of character and individuality and made them better American citizens than they would have been had they known less of the roots from which they have sprung. It has stood for a thorough classical training; and, though providing for the study of the natural sciences, has emphasized the study of languages, history, human thought and art, and human institutions, in a time of great uncertainty in college education. It has pursued its policy in the face of great temptation to yield to the spirit of the time, and has produced a body of alumni who have exerted a widespread influence and have been a distinct credit to their Alma Mater and the people of Norwegian extraction in this country.

In view of these things, it is quite appropriate that a history of Luther College, such as is herewith presented, should be published at this time. It is not the first history of the College that has been written. A number of sketches and histories of the College have been published from time to time, but only one of these histories has attempted to give a detailed account of the work done at the institution. This is Prof. Gisle Bothne's "Det Norske Luther College," written in the Norwegian language and published in 1897. It is a very interesting and valuable work; but, naturally, it contains no account of the development of the College during the last quarter of a century.

"Luther College Through Sixty Years" gives the history of the College from the time of its origin to the conclusion of the sixtieth anniversary festivities, and contains material pertaining to the College that is not to be found elsewhere in the form in which it is here presented. A very readable history of the College could be written, made up of accounts of interesting episodes and the many events that have taken place on the College campus. It was decided, however, not to make this volume a history of that character, but to make it a source of information pertaining to the serious work of the institution. As such it should prove valuable to all who for any reason are interested in the College, to all who are interested in the history of the Lutheran Church in this country, to all who are interested in the history of the people of Norwegian extraction in this country, and to all who are interested in the development of higher education in this country during the last sixty years.

The volume is the joint product of the men who constituted the College faculty in the year 1921-1922, the "Sixtieth Anniversary Year"; but special credit is due the editorial staff, consisting of Professors O. M. Norlie, O. A. Tingelstad, and K. T. Jacobsen, who planned the work, read proof, and supervised the publication. All this they have done in addition to preparing their own chapters and performing other duties which would ordinarily be regarded as sufficient to occupy the time of a busy man.

The volume contains more than 250 illustrations, which have been selected for their general interest and historical value, and which the reader will no doubt regard as an important feature of the book.

It is hoped that the value of the volume will prove commensurate with the labor required to prepare it, and that it may serve as a useful work of historical reference.

CHAPTER ONE

THE FOUNDATION OF LUTHER COLLEGE

W. SIHLER

THE last of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century saw rationalism, with its God the mere product of the human brain, gradually ebb away. A deeper philosophy arose, and the troubles of the times, which culminated in the French Revolution and Napoleon's tyrannies, awakened a deeper religious consciousness.

This reaction occurred wherever rationalism had held sway, also in Norway, which had not escaped its influences. Among the lay people these religious longings found their spokesman in Hans Nielsen Hauge; but also the seats of learning, where theologians and clergymen were prepared for their responsible positions, became imbued with a new life which was to find its reflection on the prairies and in the woods of North America.

We recognize therein God's finger and rejoice that at about the time of this awakening the interest in the New World had entered the houses and huts of many people who were destined to play over here a part which no one would have dreamed of some years before.

It is well known that many Norwegians found their way into this country long before the nineteenth century, through their many mercantile connections, especially through Holland. These people, however, were soon absorbed, and their history is traced only with difficulty. If we look for the influences which caused an immigration which became really monumental, we are introduced to the name of Cleng Peerson, the adventurous, untiring pioneer from Stavanger, Norway.

Space does not permit going into details about Cleng Peerson's burning desire to learn all that could at that time be known about this country. It is evident that no hardships could deter him. He covered thousands of miles on foot, walking through the wilds of western New York, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin, Missouri, Iowa, Texas, and the intervening states, eager to make his own observations. During these periods he was in communication with friends in Norway and persuaded a number of them to attempt a settlement in the western part of New York. There is no evidence that he ever acted from selfish motives. He was ever ready with the best he had, good advice gained from personal experience.

The times in Norway had been hard in the first part of the nineteenth century, and so the people who came in the year 1825 and the following years, mostly on the urgent invitation of Cleng Peerson, were well prepared for their arduous task as pioneers. They brought to America strong arms, a willingness to work, and a deep-seated piety.

It will be well, especially for the younger generation, to contemplate the setting of this historical spectacle. No century has seen such wonderful progress in making life easier, though perhaps not happier, as has the nineteenth century. Hundreds of conveniences which^o are demanded to-day as a matter of course, were unknown to these pioneers: for example, matches, lamps, stoves, lead-pencils, steel pens, wagon-springs. Transportation was by the slowest means. Small ships that often were on the way for over a hundred days brought the people to these shores. On board these ships the voyagers slept in holes, had to board themselves with fare that had become very old, and drink water that would not go down unless the consumer would hold his nose at the same time. Only a few arrived who had not encountered storms that often took them out of their course for weeks at a time. And when they finally did set their feet on firm land, there were other inconveniences that awaited them. The ox-teams walked no faster than they always had, and the wood in the wagon-boxes was as hard as ever. Stations, if they did exist, were far apart and often found only by accident. The inclemencies of the weather had to be endured under the open sky, and a dry place for a night's rest was often a godsend.

Not only had these pioneers stout hearts, but they also possessed a piety which gave to them solace in many dark hours and upheld that faith with which they began to lay the foundations for the beautiful things which now show forth their ideals.

Between the year of Cleng Peerson's coming (1821) and the year 1840 the stream of immigrants became wider and wider; after depositing a settlement on the Fox River, LaSalle Co., Illinois, this stream divided and spread out into Wisconsin, Iowa, and Minnesota.

Some of the settlements were not made in favored places, and sickness became a very great trial, almost too severe for the courage and faith of the newcomers. Thus the settlement at Muskego, Wisconsin, has many sad pages in its first chapters. Yet these setbacks were only temporary and were gradually conquered, and many new colonies grew and prospered in more favorable localities.

When a pioneer takes along from his home his Bible and his hymn book he takes with him a mighty chain which anchors him to a better world that is not stationary but follows him wherever he goes. And we know that most of the early immigrants who left old Mother Norway took good care to carry this chain with them. In many instances their desire for new surroundings was coupled with longings for a more ideal world than the one in which they lived. Thus sprang up in many localities through gatherings, mostly on Sundays, what turned out to be the nucleus of later congregations. Such meetings gladly welcomed persons of Christian experience who could expound to their hearers those things that they longed for in their spiritual life.

We find such men who felt the call to exhort their fellow Christians going from place to place. Among these must be mentioned the one who became especially well known, Elling Eielsen. He was the first layman to assume notable spiritual leadership, and he became the first ordained minister among the Norwegian pioneers.

The spiritual life in many of these circles was based very strongly on personal experiences and the isolation in the country was not felt as keenly by the people of these tendencies as it was felt by many others who had not come under the influence of Hauge and his followers, but among whom the thought of the church in Norway with its many associations awakened deep longings for things enjoyed at home, partly social, and partly of a deeper nature. These people were not satisfied with the exhortations of laymen, but had in mind the possibility of establishing here all the outward things with which their religious life was bound up.

The first man who was impressed with the necessity of meeting these wants was C. L. Clausen. Clausen came to America, to Muskego, with the intention of helping in school work as it was carried on in Norway, but soon realized that such work lacked entirely the religious background to which he had been accustomed. He clearly saw that it was out of the question without congregations, and that the spiritual needs of the older people required first attention.

Accordingly Clausen, though somewhat reluctantly, was persuaded to seek ordination by an acknowledged Lutheran minister. This ordination was performed by Rev. L. F. E. Krause on the eighteenth of October, 1843. Clausen thus became available as a minister of the Gospel for the first settlers and immediately began his work, making his headquarters in the district around Muskego, Wisconsin.

In the same month in which C. L. Clausen was ordained in America, October, 1843, the king of Norway issued a permit by which the man in Norway was to be ordained who may be called the first direct link which bound together the Lutheran Church in Norway and the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America. The name of the man who had asked for an ordination in Norway was J. W. C. Dietrichson. His coming here was due to the influence of P. Sørensen, a Godfearing fuller of Christiania, whose thoughts often turned to the spiritual needs of his fellow Christians in America. Dietrichson had met this man and had been offered by him the money needed for a trip to America besides further support if he would be willing to go there as an ordained minister, to help the scattered settlers organize their religious affairs. The offer was gladly accepted, and the plans of Sørensen were carried out. On the ninth of July, 1844, we find Dietrichson in New York getting ready for his trip into the interior.

His first stop is at Muskego with Rev. C. L. Clausen, at whose advice he goes further west and visits the settlements near Madison, called by the Indian name Koshkonong. Here he begins his ministerial work on a somewhat extensive scale. The beginnings were humble enough. His first two sermons were preached August 28, 1844, in a cattle-shed on A. E. Hornefeld's farm, East Koshkonong; and the third sermon was delivered September 2, 1844, under two oaks on Aslak Juve's farm, West Koshkonong. This latter event has been commemorated by a suitable monument.

Other congregations were founded in quick succession and soon became large and strong, and fortunately they did not have to wait so very long for shepherds, because the call of the Lord had reached the hearts of men who were destined to spend their strength on the new fields in America.

Space forbids going into details. But let us pause for a moment and consider the sacrifices of these men. Most of them came from surroundings where culture, education, and comfortable circumstances had smoothed over the hardships of life. Their associations had developed in them an appreciation of the many beautiful and good things that come with a more advanced civilization, such as books, music, educated friends, schools, and other comforts. To all these things they say farewell, willing to take what may come, prepared to share all the hardships of their charges, gladly sacrificing things whose loss many a newcomer did not feel, because he had never been accustomed to them. Viewed in that light these pioneer ministers and their wives are seen to have been cast in a heroic mold, and their love for the Kingdom of Heaven shines all the brighter through their sacrifices. In many ways the present generation can comprehend this much better than did the people whom they came to serve.

The first in this number was Rev. H. A. Stub, who arrived in 1848 and took charge of the congregation at Muskego as Clausen's successor. Next came Rev. A. C. Preus, who began his work at Koshkonong. Soon thereafter arrived three men whom God's call had reached in various ways to begin their labors which were to bear such blessed fruits. Their names are: H. A. Preus, N. Brandt, and G. Dietrichson.

About the time of their arrival they found that the first three, Clausen, Stub, and A. C. Preus, had taken the first steps toward establishing closer relations between the congregations. As in everything that is built from the bottom, great difficulties had to be overcome herein. The first call for such a meeting where the forming of a synod might be discussed was sent out in 1849, but there was no response. In 1851, however, a meeting was held in the midst of winter, to which came Clausen, Stub, and A. C. Preus.

The organization which was called into being was named "Den Norsk-Evangelisk-Lutherske Kirke i Amerika." This body did not live long. In the following year it was dissolved at a meeting which was attended by six ministers and thirty-six lay delegates in the church at Muskego, but steps were immediately taken for the creation of another synod which was founded in the next year, in October, 1853, at a place with a very appropriate name: Luther Valley, in Wisconsin, near Beloit. On the 3rd of October, 1853, was thus born what went by the name of "Den Norske Synode".

HERMAN AMBERG PREUS

Thirty-eight congregations took part in its founding and seven clergymen belonged to it from its beginning. The seventh in addition to those mentioned was J. A. Ottesen, who had just then arrived.

We have alluded to the hardships of these men and the sacrifices which they made, but we may envy them too. They had the privilege of laying the foundation for a glorious structure, and that is something that does not fall to the lot of many.

Meanwhile the stream of settlers continued to come, and the problem of their spiritual care rose up like a mountain; but the men who might come from Norway with a helping hand to undertake this task were few and far between. The quality of these men often had to make up for the quantity. Two months after the Norwegian Synod had been founded there appeared on the scene such a man who became a great force in furthering the work so well begun. This man was V. Koren, who preached his first Christmas sermon at a place where he was to preach for 57 years, namely, Washington Prairie, Winneshick County, Iowa. He was to take a leading part in founding the institution that is commemorated in this book.

Everyone of these men who were now working among the Norwegian settlers realized daily that more helpers must be put in the great harvest-field. The danger of spiritual neglect was very manifest, and no one knew this better than the ministers, because each one was trying to do the work of two or more men. The appeals to Norway had not been very successful, and a clearer understanding of their surroundings convinced them that help must come from within, and that was the same as saying: We must erect a school of our own and train the men of our midst to undertake the work which is so sadly neglected. They comprehended the problem very clearly, and a strong will was there. But was it possible to undertake the building of a school under such circumstances? Such undertakings were entirely outside of the sphere of their experience, and the many things to be considered, with the responsibility involved, demanded caution.

Under such deliberations the question arose, whether, to begin with, the schools of other Lutheran bodies might not relieve the situation, at least for some time, by having some helpers trained there. Accordingly two men, Ottesen and Brandt, were entrusted with the mission of becoming acquainted with other Lutherans and their schools. During their trips they visited the house of the father of the writer, who was not yet born, and there sprang up a lasting friendship, whose memory has always been dear to his family and makes a bright page in its history. If it had not been for this visit, these pages would have been written by someone else.

The institutions of the Missouri Synod at St. Louis under Dr. C. F. W. Walther and at Ft. Wayne under Dr. W. Sihler appealed most strongly to the emissaries, and to these schools were sent the first volunteers. The bonds became closer when it was also decided to have a representative of the Norwegian Synod as a teacher at one of them. After due deliberations the position was offered to Rev. Laur. Larsen, who left Norway a few years before and was busy as the pastor of various congregations. He gives as the date of the beginning of his duties as professor at Concordia Seminary at St. Louis the fourteenth of October, 1859.

Naturally this was to be only a makeshift. The great idea was: Our own school, the sooner, the better. Plans were soon evolved that should bring them to this goal.

Immediately steps were taken to create a fund by means of which they would finally realize what they had wished and prayed for so long, and no matter how much they might differ as to minor matters, all voted to establish a Norwegian Lutheran school and to begin at once to raise the necessary funds.

Fifty thousand dollars was thought to be necessary to accomplish this purpose. If under the present circumstances the Synod would call for five millions, some people might be shocked, but fifty thousand in those times was certainly very much more. It is well to dwell on this for a few moments, because the spirit of sacrifice is best kindled by contemplating the doings of those who really have made sacrifices.

The first collections for the fund were begun in 1857, and in 1859 the Synod was urged to all possible efforts to have the school erected within three years. Though money was coming in slowly, this thought had taken such a firm hold that no one would wait until the $50,000 was in sight, but a beginning was to be made in the hope that the rest would be contributed as soon as the foundations were laid. At that time about $19,000 was available, and matters began to assume a definite shape.

At a meeting of the Synod in Luther Valley in June, 1861, the location for the College was chosen. It was to be the plot of thirty acres on a slope in the northwestern part of the city of Decorah, Iowa, a spot so many Norwegians know and admire because of the beautiful natural surroundings which one never tires of gazing at and which have a new dress for every season.

This piece of ground had been secured by Rev. V. Koren from its owner, a Quaker, for the sum of $1,500.

At the same time a committee of five had been appointed to secure an architect and take all the necessary steps to insure the continuation of the work, when once begun. The plans were to be submitted to the Church Council, which again was to send them to the ministers and the congregations, and after everyone had had a chance to have his say, the Council would make the final decision.

While these plans were being developed and matured, the Civil War broke out in the spring of 1861, and St. Louis became a place where feeling ran high, hence there was a reluctance about continuing the arrangement with the Missouri Synod for the accommodation of the Norwegian students. Something had to be done very soon for the students who were ready to go to a school which the Synod had promised.

After various proposals had been considered, a temporary home was found in the parsonage at Halfway Creek, La Crosse

County, Wisconsin. It was believed that this would be the best arrangement, since it would be cheaper than renting rooms in Decorah. A description of this building and its accommodations is available and to be recommended to people who are inclined to complain. One feature, however, it did have that appeals to persons not very fond of exercise. The boys studied, slept, and recited in the same room. The teaching force consisted of Rev.

Laur. Larsen and Rev. F. A. Schmidt, both of whom, with their families, occupied the one building. Eleven students attended at one time and were divided into two classes; the upper class had five members and the lower one six in different stages of development. In all, sixteen different students attended for longer or shorter periods in the course of that first year.

Such was the beginning of Luther College. After a prosperous life of sixty years it is with great satisfaction that it looks back at those humble beginnings.

However, its stay at Halfway Creek was to be for only one year, and the writer has never heard regrets that it was not longer. It was a wise move that brought the College to Decorah in 1862, where its final location was to be, since this helped to crystallize the interest in it in the constituency from which the greatest support was to come. So, on the eighth of September, 1862, we find it at Decorah in a building which is now occupied by the St. Cloud Hotel. This building had become the property of the Synod chiefly through the good offices of Rev. V. Koren. A description of this building shows that Luther College is going forward. Only one teacher, Prof. Larsen, has to live with the boys in this building. He even has a study or office for himself.

The number of students has now risen to 32. To accommodate more the next year, the erection of a building to the west of what is now the St. Cloud was decided upon in June, 1863, by the Synod meeting at Rock River, Wisconsin.

The appointment of new teachers for the new classes was also authorized. The man first thought of was not to be had, therefore the work was put temporarily in charge of a student, J. D. Jacobsen, who became the third man on the faculty, in the year 1863. This arrangement was to continue until a teacher could be found by Rev. J. A. Ottesen who was getting ready to go to Norway in that year. Rev. Ottesen was successful and returned with L. Siewers, who relieved J. D. Jacobsen the next year.

In the fall of 1863 we find 49 students in attendance, all of them waiting anxiously for the completion of that building which had been authorized to relieve the congestion in the Main Building, so called. But they had to wait until New Year before they could move in. One would imagine that the completion of a new building would arouse feelings of pleasure, but that seems not to have been the case. Soon after its coming into use the new home received the name of "Huttetu", a word which is very hard to translate. If one should venture a translation of its meaning, the sentiment might be expressed with these words: Leave all hope behind, ye who enter here.

While these things were taking place, the work on the real College had been begun and was steadily progressing. The plans had been ready as early as 1862. To many who had examined them the building seemed entirely too large, but the wisdom of the committee that had adopted these plans was proven before many years had gone by.

Early in 1863 a contract had been signed for making 1,800,000 bricks on the college grounds, and half a million were ready by fall. The bricks were made on the campus, just east of the north wing of the College. By the middle of June, 1864, the cellar had been excavated and most of the foundation had been laid, so that the date for the laying of the corner-stone could be set for the thirtieth of June, 1864.

This eventful day was celebrated amid the rejoicings of many people with impressive ceremonies in the presence of the delegates of the Synod and many visitors from far and near, also from the German brethren.

During the next months the building began to rise inch by inch, the making of bricks was continued with all possible speed, because the contractor of the masonry had promised to have his work completed by the fifteenth of October.

But there came a hitch which had not been foreseen. As so often happens, the contractor did not intend to carry out the specifications of the architect. When this was insisted on by the overseers that had been sent by the architect, the contractor chose to leave, and new men had to be secured from Chicago to finish what was left according to specifications of the architect. Very favorable weather helped the work along, and by the end of October the walls were ready for the carpenters who were to put on the roof. Then came another disappointment. On the eighth of November the snow began to fall and, contrary to the usual experience, real winter came along with this snow. The cold weather was so continuous that the idea of putting on a permanent roof had to be given up. Things were covered up as well as possible and left to rest till spring might come. It did come, but very late, and work on the building could not be resumed before the twenty-fourth of April, 1865. New difficulties had to be overcome almost every month, and the patience of everybody was hard tried; the progress was not at all steady. The lumber was not delivered in time, some of it was not well seasoned, the window-frames did not fit, the glass could not be furnished when wanted. These things surely tested the patience and faith of those most interested in seeing the building completed by the first of September. This indeed was not to be, because the glass did not arrive before the nineteenth of September. Now, at last, the final work, the painting, could be thought of, and though it was begun as soon as possible it was not completed till after the dedication, which could not be postponed any longer.

Many people throughout the Synod know on what day this joyful event was to be celebrated, the fourteenth of October, 1865.

By far the greatest number of those who took part in the celebration of the dedication are no longer among us. Those who realized what this day meant were the pioneers who had been waiting for it many weary years. They had dreamt of such a school, they had talked about it, they understood its significance, they had prayed for it. Many a father and mother for whom the Lutheran religion was the most precious inheritance from abroad heaved a sigh of relief when invited to participate in the dedication of a building from which the men were to go out to whom their own and their children's spiritual welfare might safely be entrusted.

So, when the fourteenth of October dawned, the town of Decorah was alive with people from all Norwegian settlements anxious to take part in the celebration. This was to begin with a solemn procession from the temporary quarters of the institution near the court-house, which is about a mile from the college grounds. A longer procession has probably never been seen in the city of Decorah, because it is told that when the head of the procession reached the new building many of those who were to take part had not started to take their places in the line. Never before had so many Norwegians been together in one place in America. All ages, all localities where Norwegians had settled, were represented. The festival program consisted in the singing of hymns of praise and thanksgiving; an opening prayer by Rev. N. Brandt, the dedication address by Rev. H. A. Preus, and addresses by Rev. V. Koren and Prof. Laur. Larsen, all in Norwegian; addresses by Prof. F. A. Schmidt and Prof. Lange (of Ft. Wayne, Ind.), in English; an address by Prof. Brauer (of St. Louis), in German; and a closing prayer by Rev. J. A. Ottesen, in Norwegian. The people were fed at long tables arranged in the rear of the new building. Nearly 6,000 visitors were supposed to have been present. When we compare the number of people who now are in the Synod with the number then belonging to that body, it is not difficult to see how great was the enthusiasm which this event had called forth.

When the sun had set and darkness had settled over the surrounding hills, the building shone forth in its splendid illumination, the first that most people present had ever seen; and if we now in spirit take our place by the side of the onlookers, we can almost hear their hearts beat with emotions that do not often come to mortals.

"At last—yes, at last! Is what we see real, or is it only a phantom which will disappear when the lights have burnt down?—No, it is real. How could that for which we toiled and prayed so many years be only a vision? No, it is real, it is the fruit of the best that there is in us. Thanks be to God forever!"

— — — — —
We have now come to the end of our chapter. But before we close, let us pause for a moment and ponder. What does this building, or rather Luther College, represent?

There are many Norwegians in America, but there are not many Luther colleges. Why not? An answer to this will help us to understand what Luther College represents. This College was not founded to gather earthly wisdom which might increase our material welfare. It was not built to increase the sum of knowledge for its own sake. It was built because its founders had visions that go beyond what is measured with clocks and yardsticks. They felt that on themselves rested a heavy responsibility. They must hand down to their children the best that could be given them, true faith in the Christian religion. And while this was the main issue, they were justly proud of many other privileges and advantages under which they had lived in the old home and whose significance they now realized more than ever and which they wished to preserve for their children. Such sentiments were the impelling forces which accomplished what will seem marvelous to one who tries fully to understand the history of the founding of Luther College. But marveling is not sufficient. If the descendants of these whole-souled, sturdy pioneers cannot be so inspired as to be willing to take up the work where it was laid down by their forebears, they had better not claim descent from them, because they are in danger of not being deemed worthy of having had such ancestors.

SIXTY YEARS LATER

RELIGIOUS AIM AND CHARACTER

O. M. NORLIE

I. STATED AIM

1. The "University" Resolution

IN 1855 the Synod for the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America (commonly known as the Norwegian Synod) assembled in convention at Spring Prairie, Wis., discussed the problem of getting pastors and teachers. It was clear to all that the harvest truly was great, but the laborers few. It was equally clear that the Synod could not expect to get a sufficient number of laborers from the Church of Norway. To get Lutheran pastors and teachers from the state schools was out of the question. The convention therefore appointed the Reverends J. A. Ottesen and N. O. Brandt a committee to visit the German Lutheran schools in this country, and to investigate whether it might be possible to establish a Norwegian chair in theology at one of these.

Two years later, in October, 1857, this committee reported to the Synod, in convention assembled at Little Iowa Church, near Decorah, Iowa. On the basis of this report two resolutions were adopted:

1. To establish a Norwegian professorship at Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, Mo., of the German Missouri Synod;

2. To establish a Norwegian Lutheran institution, a "university", as they called it, and to begin at once to raise the necessary funds.

There were at least three reasons why the prospective school was called a university:

1. The leaders of the Norwegian Synod had been trained at the University of Christiania, and hoped to model their school after this institution.

2. The Norwegian Lutherans that had joined the Northern Illinois Synod had together with the Swedish and English Lutherans of that Synod in 1852 founded a school that was known for many years as the Illinois State University.

3. The Norwegian Synod men really intended to build a school that should have at least seminary and normal departments besides college and preparatory courses.

For 20 years the school was frequently referred to as the university. The fund that was to be raised was known as the "University Fund" (cf. "Kirkelig Maanedstidende", 1857, 490; 1862, 32; 1869, 15; 1873, 78; and many other places). The idea that the school should be a university, at least in so far that it should have a theological department, seemed to die hard. Concordia Seminary, St. Louis, served as a seminary for the Norwegian Synod from 1859 to 1876 and about 100 young men had been trained there for the Norwegian ministry in those years. Seven had also been trained at Concordia Seminary, Springfield, Ill. Dr. H. G. Stub says that the idea of having a Norwegian Lutheran Seminary is as old as the Norwegian Synod itself (Halvorsen's "Festskrift", 144). The connection with the Missourian schools was only a temporary makeshift. In 1861 the connection was about to have been broken, on account of the Civil War which placed St. Louis between the firing lines (Dr. Laur. Larsen in "Luther College Katalog", 1872, 8). The connection with Missouri was, however, not broken by the war, and it was not before 1876 that the Norwegian Synod established its own seminary. The intention had been to have this school at Decorah. In "Evangelisk Luthersk Kirketidende" for 1912 (1778-81) Dr. Laur. Larsen declares without qualification that Luther College was founded as a theological seminary and is the oldest Norwegian seminary in America. He explains that because of lack of quarters the Seminary Department was housed at St. Louis for a time. In 1874 the Norwegian Synod built a new wing to the Old Main at Luther, but even at that it was too small to accommodate the seminary students. Therefore the Synod bought the Soldiers' Orphans' Home at Madison, Wis., which had been vacated, and the seminary was located there (Helland's "Augsburg Seminar," 30-33). Even after the seminary had been moved to Madison the question was up for discussion as to whether it should not be located at Decorah as originally intended ("Ev. Luthersk Kirketidende", 1877, 407).

The Civil War broke out in 1861. The Norwegian Synod at its convention that year, held at Rock Prairie, Wis., decided, with the means and forces at hand, to establish a school up north. Thus it came to pass that Prof. Laur. Larsen was called away from St. Louis to become the head of this new school, and thus it happened that Luther College, as this school was called, began work in September of that year at the Halfway Creek (Wis.) parsonage. It was not a university. It had no theological department, for it was learned that the theological students could attend Concordia in spite of the political and war disturbances. It was not even a college as yet, for not one of the 16 students that enrolled the first year was of college grade.

2. The "Seminary" Building Committee Report

The aim of the school can also be seen from the report of the building committee that had been elected by the convention of 1861. This committee was known as the Theological Seminary Building Committee ("Kirkelig Maanedstidende", 1862, 6-8). In presenting an architect's plan of the proposed building the committee discussed at length the aim of the school. It recognized that the first duty of the Church (now) was to establish a school where preachers and teachers could be trained, but it realized also that the Church should also have higher schools for its youth who did not intend to take up any professional calling in the Church. Otherwise these young people would attend some school where they might be robbed of their faith. "Therefore", the report reads, "the committee has unanimously resolved to make the plan of the building such that the department preparing for the seminary can also accept students who aim to prepare themselves for other callings, so that they may serve their country in such positions as require more than a common education".

3. The Corner-Stone Document

As the secretary of the building committee, Rev. V. Koren, had secured a beautiful site for the school at Decorah, and also temporary quarters for it, Luther College moved to Decorah in 1862. In 1863 the preliminary work for the new building was begun. On June 30, 1864, the corner-stone of the first building of Luther College—the Old Main—was laid. Among the things deposited in the corner-stone was an historical sketch of the Norwegian Synod. The following words from this sketch set forth the aim of Luther College:

“Emigrated Norwegians, Lutheran Christians, living in Wisconsin, Iowa, Minnesota, and Illinois, united in erecting this building to educate teachers of the Church, through whose ministry, by the grace of our Lord, the saving truth of the Gospel in Word and Sacraments might be preserved for their descendants unadulterated according to the doctrine of the Evangelical Lutheran Church as set forth in the Unaltered Augsburg Confession. The Lord grant this. Amen.”

4. The Catalog Statement

Since 1882 the catalogs of Luther College in English have contained the following statement of the aim of the school:

“The institution owes its origin to the growing demand for educated men who could preach the Word of Life to the rapidly increasing Norwegian population of this country. The chief aim of the College is to provide a liberal and thorough education for the young men who intend later to enter the ministry; but it welcomes any youth who desires to avail himself of its advantages. Believing that ‘the fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge’, the College regards mental training without Christian faith and love as possessing but a doubtful value; and it desires through its religious instruction and Christian influence, to reach as many as possible also of those who do not intend to serve the Church as pastors, as it is confident that those who have been educated on the basis of Christian principles will, also in other occupations, exert a beneficial influence among their fellowmen.”

II. RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION

In keeping with the stated aim and spirit of the institution, religious instruction is given in every class throughout the whole school. Luther College regards religious instruction and the development of Christian character as of supreme importance.

To quote from the catalog of 1922: “Aside from the fact that the Bible is the Word of God and instructs us in the ‘one thing needful’, a thorough acquaintance with it is of greatest importance for its educational value in general. So profound has been the influence of the Bible that an understanding of history, of modern civilization, and of the literature of modern Christian nations is out of the question without a knowledge of the contents of this book. In fact, without a knowledge of the Bible a liberal education is impossible. Systematic instruction, based on the Bible, is therefore given throughout the course in both the College and Preparatory Departments”.

Religion is the chief reason why Luther College was established and is still being maintained. Religion is in importance, if not in actual amount, the chief subject at the school. It is the core of the whole curriculum. The nature of the courses is determined very largely by the religious aim of the school. Thus, Luther College has persisted in requiring much work in the classical languages because they are indispensable in the study of theology. Every study at school is studied in the light of religion, and no teaching is permitted that runs counter to the plain teachings of Holy Writ as set forth in the confessions of the Lutheran Church. Religion is required of every student.

The relative amount of time devoted to the religious courses, however, has varied somewhat from year to year. It may be roughly estimated that 10% of the work in the College and Preparatory Departments has been in religion, and that 20% of the work in the Normal Course was religious.

1. The College Department

The religious courses in the College have not varied much since the foundation of the school. In the Freshman and Sophomore classes Dietrich's "Explanation of Luther's Smaller Catechism" has been studied. In the earlier years (1863-76) classes were conducted in German in order to prepare the students for their training at Concordia Seminary, at which the lectures were given mainly in German. Then, for a number of years the catechism was taught in Norwegian, and of late years in English. The transition came gradually and bilingually. The fundamental doctrines of the Christian religion are thoroughly examined in the light of Scripture. Practical applications are made. In the Junior class the Augsburg Confession is critically examined and compared with Scripture and the Book of Concord. The position of the Lutheran Church in its relation to the other churches and to the state is made clear. In the Senior year a portion of the New Testament is studied in the Greek original. Thus, in 1921-22, the Gospel according to Matthew was translated. Its introduction, contents, and peculiarities of style were discussed. Intensive research was given to a few special passages and topics. In addition one hour a week was devoted to Bible introduction—to the character, text, geography, chronology, antiquities, and interpretation of the Bible. In the early days of the school the Greek text was translated into Latin (Bothne's "Luther College", 140), in order to enable the Luther men to follow the lectures in Latin at Concordia Seminary. Otherwise the class work was conducted in Norwegian, but in recent years in English. On the whole, the religious courses in the College are such as to make a man certain of his doctrines and well versed in Scripture. The Bible is always approached reverently as the revealed, inspired, perfect, and authoritative Word of God.

Particularly important in the study of the Bible is the classical training which Luther College aims to give. In the catalog for 1872 Dr. Larsen writes at length in explanation and defense of classical study as a preparation for professional work, especially theology. Among other things he refers to Luther's example and testimony. Luther said that where the knowledge of Greek and Hebrew is not kept up, the Gospel will at last go under. As soon as the knowledge of these languages decayed, the Gospel was weakened and the Dark Ages came upon the Church. Many fearful abuses arose. The Revival of Learning was mainly a revival of language study. It brought light upon the Gospel again. In the languages are locked up the thoughts of the ages. The languages of the Bible are a key to Scripture. "I had come no way", said Luther, "had not the languages helped me and made me certain of Scripture. I might have been pious and preached correctly, but the Pope and the Sophists and the whole anti-Christian regiment I had no doubt let remain as they are. God forbid that we neglect the languages, for then we will neglect the Gospel."

The classical languages are not at present in very high favor. Luther College has had to yield considerably as to the amount of classical study required, but is still one of the half dozen accredited colleges that require Latin for the A. B. degree. The words of Luther are timely and to the point. Dr. Larsen's plea has to be made over and over again. Pres. C. K. Preus defended the classics (see, for example, his great lecture of 1904: "I hvilken Retning"). In 1918 Dr. A. M. Rovelstad edited one of the college bulletins in behalf of the classical training (see also his article in "Teologisk Tidsskrift", 1918, II, 30-47.) The last "Bulletin" of the College (1922, II, 1) contains a strong plea by Pres. Oscar Olson for the old-time aims, including the classics.

It is admitted that it is possible to get an intimate knowledge of the Bible by means of translation, and that it would be a calamity to the great mass of mankind, if they all had to study Hebrew and Greek in order to come to the knowledge of the saving truth. We also readily admit that a person may read the Bible in the original tongues and yet be an unbeliever. And yet, without a knowledge of the originals there would have been no translations at all, and our critical understanding of the translations before us would suffer. The great theologians and reformers, such as Luther and Melancthon, were Greek and Hebrew scholars, and it would be disastrous not to have among us a fair proportion of men with philological knowledge as well as faith, to sound the spiritual depths of the Bible. The Greek Testament is listed in the Luther College Catalog as a religious rather than a linguistic course. It is both. Hebrew is listed as a linguistic rather than a religious study. It is both. From 1861 to 1882 Seffer's "Elementarbuch" was used as the textbook in Hebrew at Luther College. From 1883 Hollenberg's "Hebräisches Schulbuch" was the class book, supplemented by some chapters from the Old Testament Hebrew text. Since 1912 Green's "Elementary Hebrew Grammar" and Davidson's "Introductory Hebrew Grammar" have served as textbooks.

Since 1919-1920 the College has offered a course in Education, which is at the same time essentially religious. It is entitled Moral and Religious Education. It investigates the fundamental principles in connection with moral and religious education, the historical development particularly in the United States, the present problems and the attempts at solution, particularly by the Lutheran Synods. The history, polity, work, and policies of the synods are studied, particularly the record of the Norwegian Lutheran Church and Luther College.

Another religious subject fostered at Luther College from the year the school was founded is choral singing. The class-room instruction has been supplemented by the work of singing societies, the College Chorus, the Glee Club, the Decorah Choral Union. These societies are organized annually and sing on special occasions. The Choral Union has rendered such masterpieces as Haydn's "Creation" and "Seasons", Handel's "Messiah", Mendelssohn's "Elijah" and "St. Paul", and Bruch's "Lay of the Bell". At the recent Sixtieth Anniversary Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise" and Dahle and Koren's "Cantata" were sung under Prof. Carlo A. Sperati's inspiring directorship.

2. The Preparatory Department

The Preparatory Department at Luther College has been re-organized several times during these 60 years. From 1861 to 1881 it was a two-year course; from 1881 to 1905, a three-year course; from 1905 to 1918, a four-year course; and from 1918 to date, a five-year course. Naturally, the courses in religion have also been extended.

The aim throughout the history of the Preparatory Department has been "to impart a thorough and practical knowledge of the Holy Scriptures, because the Scriptures are given by inspiration of God, and are profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness, that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works". ("Catalog", 1922, 87).

To meet this aim, the course offered from 1861 to 1890 five hours of religious work a week; from 1890 to 1912, three hours; and since 1912 two hours. The amount of work in religion has been reduced from 15.7% in 1872 to 10.7% in 1892 and 9.5% in 1922.

Three hours per week for two years were at first devoted to Bible history. The Bible was used as a textbook, and the class read through the Old Testament as a rule and sometimes parts of the New. The work was conducted in Norwegian. In the 70's Vogt's "Større Bibelhistorie" was used as a guide. In 1890 Norwegian was the language of the two lowest classes and English of the highest class in this Department. Beginning with 1897, Bible geography, including the journeys of Christ and Paul, was added to the course, also the Life of Christ according to the Gospels and a brief introduction to the Bible. When the course was lengthened to four years (in 1905), two years were devoted to Bible history and geography, covering the historical parts of the Old Testament. Church history was then studied two hours a week for one year, with Vogt's "Kirkehistorie til Skolebrug" as text. Thereupon the Life of Christ and Bible introduction, together with a reading of Job, Isaiah, the Gospels, and Hebrews, was the work of the Senior year in the Preparatory Department. Since the course was lengthened to five years, Acts has been the subject of the Sub-Freshman year, Bible history and geography of the Freshman, Bible history continued in the Sophomore, Church history in the Junior, and the Life of Christ and Bible introduction in the Senior. The Bible is used as text in Bible history and geography, supplemented by maps and other books. Ylvisaker's "Synopse" has for years been the textbook in the Life of Christ. Strømme's "Outlines of Church History" is the text in Church history. Norlie's "Open Bible" has been used in Bible introduction.

Much attention was given to the catechism in the early history of the school. Pontoppidan's "Sandhed til Gudfrygtighed", in the complete or the abridged edition, or both, was faithfully studied two hours per week for two years from 1861 to 1890. In the third year of the course Dietrich's "Forklaring" was sometimes studied. From 1890 Pontoppidan occupied only one hour a week in the two lower classes and Luther's "Smaller Catechism" was studied in English one hour a week in the highest class. Later Dietrich's "Explanation" in English was substituted for the elementary catechism. The new subjects kept on pressing the catechism back until it had only one hour a week for one year in one class. Pontoppidan was then studied as a review of Scripture doctrine familiar from the Confirmation instruction. After 1912 the catechism does not appear to have been taught at all in the Preparatory Department. In the first published catalog of Luther College (1872), Pres. Larsen says: "And when we finally come to what we really in all our teaching seek to place first, namely, the knowledge of Christianity, then there is perhaps no serious-minded person in our Synod who will not rejoice to hear that we are giving about twice as much instruction here as in the schools of Norway." He explains that one of the reasons for this is, that our youth on account of the sects need more Christian knowledge here than in Norway. Catechismal knowledge was held to be a safeguard against the doctrines and powerful tendencies of sectarianism, indifferentism, secularization, rationalism, evolution, materialism, and the many other heresies of the times.

3. The Normal Department

The Norwegian Lutheran congregations needed teachers as well as preachers. Their purpose in founding a school was also to secure for themselves teachers as well as preachers. In 1864 a special class was organized at Luther College for men who wished to take up parochial teaching as a calling. In 1865 a Normal Department was organized, with Rev. N. O. Brandt in charge as teacher of the normal branches. In 1868 the course was increased from two to three years, aiming especially to educate teachers for the parochial schools, but also qualifying them for the common schools. The attendance was never very large, being 12 in 1883, 10 in 1884, and 8 in 1885. The department was discontinued in 1886. In 1889 it was reestablished at the Lutheran Normal School at Sioux Falls, S. Dak., which in 1918 was merged with Augustana College of Canton, S. Dak., and is now known as Augustana College and Normal School, Sioux Falls.

The course in religion in the Normal Department was the same as that in the Preparatory Department in the lowest class. In the second and third year of work it offered an extra 3 hours a week in catechism and 3 hours in Bible history. Also 3 hours in the Augsburg Confession and other Symbolical Books and 3 hours in Bible reading and New Testament exegesis. In 1865 Rambach's "Wohlunterrichteter Katechet" was studied by the dictation method as a guide in catechetics, supplemented by Faye's "Almueskolen" and "Methodik". Galatians was studied exegetically. In 1868 Hart's "Lutheran School Room" was used. In 1872 Page's "Theory and Practice of Teaching" was added to Rambach and Faye. Roalkvam taught catechetics from 1878 to 1886, developing his own syllabus, which he published as a textbook in 1881 (also 1898 and 1903).

III. OTHER RELIGIOUS INFLUENCES

1. Chapel Devotions

The students at Luther College are required to attend devotional exercises mornings and evenings at chapel. From 1861 to 1877 the morning devotions were conducted by the president at 6:30, just before the breakfast meal. Since 1877 it has generally been held about 10:00 A. M. From 1861 to 1877 the evening devotional period was at 8:30; from 1877 to 1910, at 9:00; now it is held at 9:45 P. M. The chapel exercises have been in charge of the president of the school, assisted by other members of the faculty, the college pastors, visiting clergymen, or others. The exercises have consisted of Scripture reading and exposition, prayer, song, readings from postils, and speeches. They have been very inspirational. Specially worthy of mention are the readings by the "Grand Old Man" of Luther College, Dr. Laur. Larsen, and the wonderful ten-minute chapel talks by President C. K. Preus.

2. Sunday Services

Decorah has two Norwegian Lutheran congregations, with two services at each church on Sundays, one in Norwegian and one in English. The pastors of these congregations are the pastors also of the College. The congregations cooperate with the school in making the church life of the students of greatest value. The young people's societies of the churches entertain the boys at Luther and invite them to their devotional and social meetings.

3. Special Occasions

Luther College has celebrated several festivals and entertained several religious conventions, at which great themes have been discussed and noted men in the Church have appeared on the program. These special occasions live long in the memory. They have helped to shape the lives and destinies of the Luther College boys. In 1921-22, two such great conventions were held at Luther—the Sixtieth Anniversary festival, on October 13-16, and the Joint Lutheran Students' Union Convention and Academy Conference representing 20 schools of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America.

4. Students' Religious Organization

A number of students are taking an active part in the work of the congregations down town, as teachers in the Sunday schools, members of the Church choirs, officers in the Luther Leagues, etc. At the College, the students take part in the Luther College Sunday Association, organized in 1901, which is a voluntary student organization, meeting on Sunday afternoons or evenings. Its programs are of a religious nature, and consist mostly of lectures by professors and others, while occasional meetings are devoted to the discussion of appropriate topics of general interest. An additional feature of the work is the election of a committee to render such assistance as may be needed in case of illness among the students.

5. Christian Atmosphere

The atmosphere of the school is Christian, clear and invigorating as the mountain air. The president of the school has been as a Christian father, whose highest aim is to have his boys be Christians and take up a Christian life-work. He has been the boys' pastor and counselor. Thirty-four out of 93 regular teachers at the school have been pastors or have graduated from theological seminaries without entering the ministry. These men of theological training and pastoral experience have no doubt exerted a deep influence on the school. There are no negative critics among them. The remaining teachers have been chosen for their soundness of doctrine and their Christian example as well as their scholastic and professional qualifications. The classroom work in every subject is conducted in harmony with Scripture. No pains are spared to make the discipline, which is conducted in a Christian spirit, as effective and truly educating as possible, for proper discipline lies at the very foundation of all successful school work and is a chief agency in the development of Christian character. ("Ev. Luthersk Kirketidende", 1891, 310). The boys are taught to be very democratic, avoiding hypocrisy and sham. Luther College has tried to be an honest school, doing thorough work in whatever it has attempted to do. As President Larsen put it: "When we sell butter, we want to give good butter, clear down to the bottom of the jar."

IV. RESULTS

1. Transplanting Norwegian Culture

All the countries of the world have contributed to the citizenship of America. From 1820 to 1919 a total of 31,200,103 immigrants landed on our shores. In 1920 13% of the population of the United States were foreign-born and 90% could look to Europe either as their birthplace or the home of their ancestors. No country except Ireland has contributed so great a proportion of its people to America as Norway.

All the peoples of the world have contributed their bit to American culture. When they came here as immigrants they took along with them some of the culture of their home lands. Those peoples have contributed most to America who brought most culture with them and who have tried most patiently to transplant it to American soil. Far in the lead in this regard are the English, not so much because they have outnumbered the other peoples, nor because they came here first, but rather because they have insisted on transplanting their language and institutions to America. Of the English colonies New England has been by far the most influential in shaping the thought and character of this country, not because New England had more people or money, but because the people there had more definite ideas and more zeal and persistence in advocating them. The culture of the American schools is mainly that of New England.

The Norwegians have added something to American culture and achievement. They did not come here as paupers. They took along a treasure which gold and silver cannot buy—strong bodies and willing minds, habits of industry and thrift, obedience and loyalty, and a rich store of high ideals and noble precepts treasured in their native history and literature, customs and institutions. They were a literate people. The report of the Immigrant Commission for 1910 (Vol. 5, "Dictionary of Races", 120) says: "In Norway the rate of illiteracy is the lowest in Europe". The same report (Vol. 3, "Statistical Review of Immigration, 1820-1910", 85) lists the number and percent of illiterates among immigrants 14 years old and over. Portugal had the greatest number who could not read and write—682 out of every 1,000. Scandinavia had the least number—only 4 out of every 1,000. Of the native white population in America 46 out of every 1,000 are illiterate.

It is natural that the Norwegian immigrants should love the culture of Norway and that they should want to hand down to their posterity and to contribute to their adopted land some of the best of this treasure. They could not expect that this Norwegian culture would be transmitted through the public schools or the schools of other immigrant peoples. There was only one thing for them to do if they were to become a power in this land, and that was to build their own schools. Luther College is one of these schools. At the same time that it is in the best sense thoroughly American, it has always had the high aim of giving to America the best there is in Norwegian culture. The story has not yet been written, except in fragments, of how much Norway has given to America. In this story Luther College will have a conspicuous place.

2. Establishing the Lutheran Faith

Norway is a Lutheran country; the censuses still report 99% of the population as members of the Lutheran Church. It is now a century since Cleng Peerson came to America, becoming the pathfinder of the last tide of Norwegian immigration to America. Great religious changes have taken place during this century. In Norway, the religious revival started by Hans Nielsen Hauge swept the common people along with it and even the professors at the University of Christiania. During the 60 years since Luther College was founded a wave of rationalism has swept over the whole world. The pious scholarship of Caspari and Gisle Johnson at the University of Christiania of 60 years ago has been displaced by a crass rationalism which denies the inspiration and authority of the Bible, the divinity and atonement of Christ, the person and work of the Holy Spirit, and, in short, nearly every Lutheran doctrine. The founders of Luther College were staunch Lutherans. They believed that the Word of God was their dearest heritage. They understood full well that the Bible had to be excluded from the public schools in this land, and that they could not teach the Lutheran faith in these schools. They knew that if their Lutheranism should be transmitted at all to their children, they must establish schools where this religion could be taught in its truth and purity. So they set up their own schools alongside of the state schools and the schools of the other churches. For the sake of the Lutheran religion Luther College was founded. Luther College would probably never have been built except for this religious aim. The Norwegian Lutherans in America have established some 70 other higher schools in America, and every one of them has been established in the name of the Lutheran faith, and every one has been able to succeed only in so far as men have kept up their interest in the religious aim and character of the school. Luther College is a child of faith.

Luther College has been a conservative school and has been true to the religious aim and ideals of its noble founders. Great changes have taken place in the world of thought during the 60 years of its history. Like the winds of the air, like the waves of the sea, the world of thought is constantly in motion. The views as to religion ebb and flow. Leaders as well as followers are swept along by the opinions of the day. It looks at times as if there is nothing stable. And yet there is. Two times two, for example, always make four. The Word of God is always true. Jesus Christ is the same yesterday and today, yea, and forever. It has been the constant aim of Luther College to proclaim this fact, that there are some things that never change, especially that the Word of God is the Truth and that man is justified by faith alone.

It must be admitted that it has been a very difficult task to establish the Lutheran faith in America. Not because the Lutheran Church is a newly-planted Church or a foreign Church. It began work here as early as 1562 (at Port Royal, S. C.), and is most evangelical and democratic. Nevertheless, it has not made the headway that it should. There are millions of Americans who should be members of the Lutheran Church because they have come from Lutheran homes or ancestry, but who are members of some Reformed church or have no church connection at all. To understand the peculiar work of Luther College it is necessary to take a hasty survey of at least two of the dominant religious forces in the land, the Reformed Church and the public school, both of which work upon the same people that Luther College is trying to serve. It is impossible to understand the task of Luther College or to gauge the results without referring to these two factors.

The dominant church in America is the Reformed. In some places it is nip and tuck between the Catholic and the Reformed. However, as shown in the "Lutheran World Almanac for 1921" (205-223), the Catholics, like the Lutherans, have been losing rather heavily, while the Reformed Churches and the unchurched groups have gained in numbers. In America nearly all the sects in the world are represented. The U. S. religious census for 1916 catalogues 202 denominations. Of these, 158 are grouped into 24 families, and 44 are listed as separate denominations.

The "Lutheran World Almanac for 1922" (113) makes the following classification:

Group	Bodies	Ministers	Communicants	Per cent
1. Lutheran.....	21	10,961	2,493,894	5.9
2. Reformed.....	128	150,043	22,864,247	54.4
3. Catholic.....	10	22,179	15,762,473	37.3
4. Non-Christian.....	12	13,643	1,028,457	2.4
Total.....	171	196,826	42,149,071	100.0

As the population in 1920 was 105,710,620 it will be seen that only 40% of this number are reckoned as communicant members of churches. In the case of the Catholics all the baptized are included. Of course every denomination should do like the Catholics—insist on counting baptized children as members of the church. By adding the children to the respective denominations, the totals will appear about as follows:

Denomination	Estimated membership	Per cent
1. Lutheran.....	3,500,000	3.3
2. Reformed.....	34,500,000	32.7
3. Catholic.....	16,000,000	15.1
4. Non-Christian.....	1,500,000	1.4
5. Unchurched.....	50,000,000	47.5
Total.....	105,500,000	100.0

It will be seen from this table that nearly one-half of the population is outside the Christian fold. Of the Christian denominations the Reformed churches as a group are by far in the lead. Like the Catholics they have often sought to gain influence through politics. They lay stress on organization and field work, they are aggressive and often unscrupulous in proselyting. Being of English origin, they have language and nationality in their favor at the very start. They are prolific in writing books for schools and are otherwise successful in manning all the positions of power and influence in public office, school, and press. Though the members of the group differ radically from one another in many respects, they have so much in common and are so much in evidence everywhere that they are without question the most dominant religious influence in the land. They recruit their forces heavily from the ranks of unchurched Catholics and Lutherans. They reckon that the unchurched have, as a rule, leanings toward the Reformed religious views and practices. For that reason Laidlaw of the U. S. Census Bureau and Watson of the Federal Council of Churches estimate the potential Reformed strength at 74,795,226, or more than thrice the actual membership.

Briefly, the Reformed churches of America have gone through the same experience as the Church of Norway—passing from piety to rationalism. New England has always taken the lead in American life. She has been able to force her thought and institutions to a large extent upon the rest of the states and peoples in America. Her theology 60 years ago was Calvinistic and of a very dogmatic type. Now, particularly in the intellectual centers, with some notable exceptions, the theology is of the modern type. It makes light of creed. It no longer stresses the power of God, but the power of man. The chief gospel now is social work rather than salvation from sin. The Bible is discredited as the final Word of God. As one man put it in his sermon: "The newspaper is good enough Bible for me". The Reformed Church has no doubt exerted influence also on Luther College, but Luther College still is true to the old creeds. It is impossible to estimate what a force Luther College has been in keeping our Norwegian Lutheran people from going over to the Reformed or taking over the Reformed doctrines and practices while retaining the Lutheran name and fame.

*"Lord, grant that we e'er pure retain
The catechismal doctrine plain,
As Luther taught the heavenly truth
In simple words to tender youth."*

It must be admitted that it has been a very difficult task to establish Lutheran schools in America. Not because they have been inferior in quality or not necessary. Quite the contrary. And yet after nearly a century of agitation for parochial schools we can boast of only a few unsuccessful attempts in this line. Our vocation religion schools are dying out. Most of our academies have been discontinued. Our colleges are few and far between. Luther College has never been a large school. To understand the peculiar value of these schools, and Luther College in particular, it is necessary to take a survey of the dominant educational forces in America.

The dominant American school is the public school system. In 1914 the total school enrollment was 22,462,342, of whom 89.5% attended public schools and 10.5% attended private schools. Only 8.3% attended private elementary schools, 14.8% attended private secondary schools, and 49.9% attended private colleges, professional and special schools ("U. S. Commissioner of Education Report", 1916, II, 1). The public school has not always been the dominant one in American history. In the Colonial period the church was the controlling factor in the establishment and control of schools. It took our country about a century—from 1775 to 1875—to establish fully its present system of free, tax-supported, state-controlled, non-sectarian, democratic, public schools. The church did not give up its hold on the schools without a bitter struggle. The advocates of public schools have been slowly but surely winning, first in behalf of the elementary schools, then in behalf of the secondary schools, and finally in behalf of the higher schools. When the church saw that the battle for the elementary schools was practically lost, it turned its attention to the establishment of academies. In 1850 there were 6,085 academies and only 172 public high schools. In 1914 there were 11,674 public high schools and only 2,248 church academies. Again, when the church saw that the battle for the academies was lost, it turned its attention to the establishment of colleges and universities. The churches had founded 2 colleges in the 17th century, 22 in the 18th, and over 400 in the 19th, most of them after 1850. Most of the state colleges and universities are younger than Luther College. During the 60 years in which Luther College has managed to keep alive it has seen thousands of academies and hundreds of colleges close their doors on account of the fierce competition. Most of the Norwegian youth who go to school are, of course, attending public schools and universities. There they become more or less secular-minded and often are lost to our Church and its Gospel influence.

Our country needs the public schools. We loyally support them. They unify our people. They train for useful citizenship. But they cannot teach religion. And the Christian religion the youth of America needs to learn, for it has a value both for this life and that which is to come. The morals of our people and the very existence of the country itself rest upon the proper religious instruction. Luther College supplies this "one thing needful".

3. Providing Church Workers

The founders of Luther College reckoned that if they wanted church workers they must build a school where they could give them the training they needed. They did not hope to get any from the Reformed schools or from the state schools. They were right. "Prestekalenderen" has made a survey of all the Norwegian Lutheran pastors from 1843 to 1915. During these years the Norwegian Synod obtained 685 pastors. Only 77 of these came from Norway. Only 1 had had his theological training at a Reformed seminary, while 607 had been educated at Lutheran seminaries in America. Luther College had furnished 451 of these 607 men, 298 with the A. B. degree and 153 with an academy training and beyond. The remaining 156 had attended some other Lutheran higher schools. Not one had attended a Reformed or Catholic academy. Only one had attended a Reformed university for a period of two years. Only 13 had attended a public high school. These 13 had spent a sum total of 40 years in high school, followed by a total of 41 years at Luther College and 38 years at Concordia and Luther Seminaries. Only one had taken his A. B. at a state university, and that only after he had taken it first at Luther College. Quite a number had taken advanced degrees at universities, but they are not considered in this survey. The point to be considered here is, that in 70 years of history covered by this book the Norwegian Synod did not receive a single minister from any American state university, only 13 men from the public high schools, only one man from a Reformed university and one from a Reformed seminary. The Reformed schools were not established to furnish the Norwegian Lutheran Church with church workers. The state schools were not established for the purpose of supplying any church with ministers of the Gospel. They are not to be blamed for not doing so. It is not their business. United States has 468 private colleges and universities besides 95 state universities. But the Lutheran Church cannot look to any of these schools except its own, which is included in the number, for its supply of pastors. The Norwegian Lutheran Church must have Luther College, or schools like Luther College, if it wants to live.

4. Making Good Citizens

Luther College takes its name from Martin Luther, the great hero of the Reformation, proclaimed by James F. Clark "the real author of modern liberty of thought and action, the giant founder of modern civilization and of pure religion." His Ninety-Five Theses nailed on the doors of the Wittenberg Church have been called the world's "Declaration of Independence"; his bold stand at the Diet of Worms has been hailed as the greatest moment, the turning point, in modern history (T. Carlyle).

Luther College has tried to be true to the doctrines and spirit of Martin Luther. It stands to reason, then, that Luther College should make good citizens and be of the highest service to America. It may be that America does not care for the language and culture of the Norwegian Lutherans who founded Luther College. As for the language, it is dying out. In 1861 80% of the instruction at Luther College was carried on in Norwegian; in 1922, only 8%, Norwegian being the medium of instruction only in Norwegian language, literature, and history. As for the culture, its future is not very bright. The Norwegian element in America is only 2% of the total population, and it is hardly to be expected that the great American people will pay any attention to it. The Norwegian element itself has had most of its training at the public schools and is interested mainly in the New England culture presented there. It would never be known from an average American textbook in history that there ever had been a Norwegian in America. Luther College has been contending with these difficulties, trying to make all its students love this country and its institutions and yet, at the same time, remember the great heritage of their fathers. Luther College men owe no political allegiance to Norway. They are Americans. In the recent war there were 356 names on the honor roll of Luther College and 8 golden stars for the boys who never came back. About 100 Luther men were officers, 5 were chaplains. Luther College became at first an S. A. T. C. post in the service of the U. S. Government and then, after the signing of the armistice, an R. O. T. C. unit.

Not all of the Luther College men become pastors and teachers in church schools. About one-half of the graduates have taken up secular callings, as farmers (ca. 5%), merchants (16%), public servants (3%), journalists (2%), lawyers (4%), physicians (6%), public school teachers (10%), etc. Many of the alumni are holding high positions in church and state, in school and business. Presidents of synods, secretaries of boards, a governor of a state, ministers to foreign lands, state and city superintendents of schools, professors at famous universities, librarians, judges, superintendents of hospitals, statistical and medical authorities, etc., are some of the positions of note that Luther men have filled with distinction and satisfaction. About one-fifth are authors.

This is not a pessimistic view of the religious aim and character of Luther College. Luther College has had a great aim, has had a unique character, has done a noble work. To God alone be the honor. As Paul Koren sings in his "Cantata" for the Sixtieth Anniversary of Luther College:

*"For what thy past has given us, in gratitude we raise
Our voice and tell of victory, of thankfulness and praise.
To Him be all the glory, our mighty Lord and King, Whose blessing rested on thy brow, to Him our song we bring."*

CHAPTER THREE

GOVERNMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

D. T. NELSON

I. GOVERNMENT

LUTHER COLLEGE

ONE of the first problems that arose in connection with the establishment of Luther College was that of securing for it a sound legal status. The Synod for the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America had already been incorporated in the state of Wisconsin in 1858; but since the College was to be located in Iowa it was felt necessary that the Synod be incorporated in Iowa as well. In 1863, after Rev. V. Koren had reported to the Synod that he had been unable to effect such incorporation, the matter was referred to Prof. F. A. Schmidt. At the Synod meeting in 1864, Prof. Schmidt also reported failure; the matter was then referred to a committee made up of Profs. Schmidt and Larsen and Rev. V. Koren. In 1865 this committee reported that since no means had been found for incorporating the Synod in Iowa, steps had been taken to incorporate the College; that the articles of incorporation had been signed February 1, 1865; and that the incorporation had been carried out in such a manner as to give the Synod complete control over the newly-formed corporation.

Such control was, and indeed is, essential for the Church; for the impelling motive which gave rise to Luther College and to all the sacrifices made in its behalf is found in its mission of training young men for service in the Church. Reference to the articles of incorporation (1917) will show that this control is assured by Article 3, which provides that the membership of the corporation shall "consist of the pastors of the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran congregations connected with the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America and the representatives of said congregations at the regular triennial meeting of said Church, chosen in accordance with its discipline and usage." The Luther College Corporation is thus, in effect, the church body organized for a collegiate purpose.*

The same committee was instructed by the Synod in 1866 to prepare a set of by-laws, and also an amendment to the articles whereby the Church Council should be constituted a Board of Visitors for the College. This was not accomplished until the Synod meeting of 1871. On June 29 of that year the by-laws were adopted; on the same date Article X was added and Article IV amended. Amended Article IV provided that the treasurer, who had hitherto been a member of the Board of Trustees ex-officio, should no longer be so, and set up the faculty as a Board with such powers as are conferred upon it by the by-laws. The articles and by-laws were now in essentials in their permanent form. In the drafting of them, Judge G. R. Willett had rendered without charge notable service. The Synod expressed its thanks to him and charged the committee with the duty of procuring for him a suitable gift, appropriating for that purpose the sum of fifty dollars.

From an examination of the articles and by-laws so amended and adopted, it is seen that sovereignty in the corporation resides in the church body organized in regular meeting as the corporation. To the Board of Trustees of eight members is entrusted the management of the affairs of the corporation, but with such restrictions, financial and otherwise, as to insure control by the Church in all matters of importance. To the Board of Professors (faculty) is given power to admit and expel students and, subject to the authority of the corporation and Board of Visitors, to make and enforce rules and regulations for the good government and discipline of the College. Finally, to the Board of Visitors, which consists of the members of the Church Council—the controlling executive body of the Church—is delegated the right of visitation, authority to fix the number, duties, and compensation of professors, to prescribe terms of admission, and to make general rules for the guidance of the Board of Professors. By implication it would appear that Article V of the by-laws also confers upon the Board of Visitors supervision over the course of study. The Board of Visitors, or Church Council, has thus, next to the church body, been the residuary of the greatest power with regard to the College.

*The official name of the Norwegian Synod in the constitution adopted in 1853 was the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. In 1865, at the annual convention held at Highland Prairie, Minn., the name was changed to the Synod for the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. In 1858 the Norwegian Synod was incorporated under the laws of Wisconsin as the Norwegian Evangelical Synod of the State of Wisconsin. On that account the Norwegian Synod was often called the Wisconsin Synod, and its teachings and practice were sometimes by opponents called "Wisconsinism". But inasmuch as the synod in 1865 had changed its constitutional name from the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America to the Synod for the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, steps were taken to secure the necessary changes in the articles of incorporation. The committee mentioned above—Koren, Schmidt, Larsen—with the aid of Judge G. R. Willett of Decorah, prepared a bill authorizing the change of name. The bill was introduced in the Iowa state senate by Senator Dr. Bullis of Decorah and became a law on March 16, 1866. In Wisconsin a special act was passed by the senate and assembly in 1878 and again in 1885 authorizing the change in the articles of incorporation of the Norwegian Synod.

Prior to 1872 meetings of the corporation were legal only if held in the state of Iowa. In that year, due to the efforts of

WINNESHIEK COUNTY COURT HOUSE

Prof. Knut Bergh, who was then a member of the state legislature of Iowa, a law was passed legalizing the meetings of the corporation in any state adjoining Iowa.

At first the election of the officers of the corporation was fixed for every year. In 1878 the by-laws were amended to provide for triennial elections.

No other change was made in the by-laws until 1899. Prior to 1899, Article V provided that the Board of Visitors might appoint and remove the professors, subject to the approval of the majority of the pastors of the congregations of the Church and the professors of the College. This rule, which practically necessitated a meeting of the Synod or an election by mail, had become increasingly cumbersome with the growth of the Church. In 1876 the Synod had been divided into three districts—the Eastern, Minnesota, and Iowa Districts; in 1890 a fourth, the Pacific District, had been added. Meanwhile other schools had been established and the Church's interests had grown and expanded in every direction. Some less unwieldy method of election had become imperative. In 1895 proposals were laid before the Synod by a committee appointed by the Church Council; to these, further consideration was given in 1896; the next year a set of rules was adopted which provided in substance as follows: a vacancy among the professors should be announced by the Church Council in "Kirketidende", the official organ of the Church, at least four weeks before a nomination was to be made. The nomination should be made by the Church Council and the permanent professors of the College; the nomination likewise should be announced in "Kirketidende". After another four weeks' delay to permit of the filing of objections on the part of the members of the Church, the Church Council should proceed to election by a two-thirds vote. In 1899 by the amendment of Article V of the by-laws this set of rules was given effect by the college corporation.

The original proposals of 1895 and 1896 had looked forward to the establishment of an "electoral college" of six men, which would have had charge of providing the personnel of the college faculty. The rules adopted in 1897 show that the Synod was not then prepared for so radical a delegation of authority. By 1908, however, the question had cropped up again. In that year an organization was set up which foreshadows very clearly the present Board of Education. By resolution of the Synod there was established a Board of Directors of nine members; four of these, the president of the Synod and the presidents of Luther Seminary, Luther College, and Lutheran Normal School, were to be members ex officio, and five were to be elected at large by a two-thirds vote at each regular synod meeting. The Board was divided into three sub-committees of three members each, one for each school. The Board was granted purely administrative authority; it was empowered to nominate the heads of the schools under its jurisdiction, to dismiss professors in certain cases, to fix salaries in accordance with the general regulations established by the Synod, and through its sub-committees to make temporary appointments of professors. Although this arrangement was not considered satisfactory or effective, it endured until 1917, when a union was effected by the three principal Norwegian church bodies—the Hauge Synod, the Norwegian Synod, and the United Church.

With the adoption by these church bodies of the constitution of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America came the establishment of a board which devotes its efforts exclusively to educational matters. The Board of Education of the new church body has both authority in administrative affairs and jurisdiction with regard to courses of study. Although it functions independently, it is, nevertheless, subordinate to the Church Council, which by paragraph 22, c, of the church constitution is invested with final authority in school matters. The Board of Education, which is composed of seven members, consists of three pastors and three laymen, of whom one-half are elected every third year for a period of six years, and the president of the Church ex-officio. The Board is empowered to appoint an executive educational secretary to aid it in its work.

In 1917, by paragraph 14 of the rules for the Board of Education, return was again made to the old method of electing teachers in full church meeting. This method immediately proved itself so impracticable in the present greatly enlarged church body, that it was repealed in 1920. In its stead provision was made whereby the Board of Education should have authority, except in the case of professors for the Seminary, to choose and appoint teachers for one year or a part thereof and even, if circumstances demanded it, to make the appointment permanent.

It has thus come about in the course of years, that the Luther College Corporation, though unchanged in character, has been fitted into the special organization which the Church has set up to look after its educational work. Although the advisability of retaining its separate corporate existence has been questioned, experience would appear to justify the findings of the committee which was appointed in 1899 and reported in 1902 against dissolution, giving as its reasons: first, that the College was already fully in the Church's control; and, secondly, that a dissolution of the corporation might raise serious legal difficulties with regard to the legacies of which the corporation has been the recipient.

It remains to be added that as, according to the laws of Iowa, incorporations of the nature of the Luther College Corporation expire at the end of fifty years, measures were taken in 1915 to renew the articles of incorporation. Finally, in 1918 a change was made, significant of the altered circumstances of language in which both the Church and the College find themselves, by striking the word "Norwegian" from the official name of the College.

II. ADMINISTRATION

In turning to a consideration of the administrative development of the College, it is well to note that Luther College is a direct descendant of the Latin School of Norway. It is a boys' school, a classical school, a boarding school. But because of its peculiar relation to the Church, Luther College has a special mission to perform. This fact, and the steady and cumulative force of the college idea as it has evolved in America, have been agencies influencing the development of Luther College.

Luther College in 1861 had two teachers and 16 students. Naturally the administrative problems were not of such a nature as to require a careful division of administrative duties. The president of the school exercised all administrative functions. The school took on the aspect of an enlarged family for which Pres.

LUTHER COLLEGE IN THE EIGHTIES

Larsen was father, pastor, and teacher. He discharged also the duties of registrar, treasurer, librarian, and disciplinarian.

But with the growth of the College and the consequent increase in the amount of necessary administrative work, a division of labor was essential. From the first, although the president exercised a supervisory function, the problem of providing suitable table board was placed in the hands of a steward, an arrangement which continued until 1896, when the students were granted permission to manage the undertaking themselves through the Luther College Boarding Club.

In 1867, the library was placed in charge of Prof. Landmark. He, and his successors in charge of the library up to 1915, had other duties in addition to their work with the library; but since 1915 the full time and effort of the librarian have been devoted to the library. Up to 1889 all classes of the College were under the direct supervision of the president. In that year, by the appointment of Prof. H. W. Sheel to be principal of the Preparatory Department, much of the responsibility of the president for that department was lifted from his shoulders. In 1890 the museum received its special officer by the appointment of Prof. W. Sihler as curator. President Laur. Larsen continued to bear one of the heaviest administrative loads, however, until 1895, for it was not until Prof. C. A. Naeseth in that year was made treasurer that the president was relieved of the multifarious details involved in caring for the college treasury. Although President C. K. Preus as early as 1905 recommended that a registrar be appointed, the registrar's office was not organized until 1914. Prof. O. A. Tingelstad has been in charge since its inception and has made it a most valuable and up-to-date adjunct to the work of the College.

A step much needed for the adequate maintenance of the president's office was taken in 1917, when an appropriation was granted to defray the expense of an office assistant. Since that time a stenographer has been regularly employed.

One of the heaviest burdens laid upon the president is that of maintaining discipline. From time to time, various professors have been called upon to assist the president in this work. As early as 1863 Prof. L. Siewers was known as "Konrektor" (assistant master). In 1896-7, because of Prof. Larsen's ill-health, Prof. L. S. Reque had charge of discipline in the evenings. In 1905-6 Prof. Osear L. Olson acted as disciplinarian to a very considerable extent. In 1906-7, upon the completion of Laur. Larsen Hall, the task of maintaining discipline in the new building was turned over to Prof. M. K. Bleken, and in 1911 to the principal of the Preparatory Department. In 1919-20 Prof. M. H. Trytten, and in 1920-22 Prof. B. J. Hovde, acted as dean of men in the College Department.

The gradual delegation of administrative duties outlined above has been in harmony with the normal development of the College. With the present tendency to a division of the college work along departmental lines, it becomes necessary in order to harmonize conflicting interests to resort more and more to committees in handling matters of administration. Greater development in this direction can no doubt be looked for in the future.

In deliberations affecting the government and regulation of the College the Board of Professors, or faculty, plays an important part. Problems affecting the courses of study are the subject of thorough discussions; in the past the initiative for most of the changes in the curriculum has come in the form of recommendations from the faculty. The faculty, moreover, sits as a board in all cases involving flagrant breaches of discipline and is the deciding body in cases involving the expulsion of a student from the school. The president and the faculty, aside from their disciplinary jurisdiction, are also intimately concerned with the general and spiritual welfare of the students. In the earlier days of the College, when the family nature of the student body and faculty was more pronounced, the character and personality of the teacher in fullest measure influenced the student by precept and example. To some extent this has changed, because of the increase in attendance, but a close relation between student and teacher still remains.

For many years, too, the College has enjoyed the services of the pastors who have served the First Norwegian Lutheran Congregation at Decorah. During the existence of the Synod, the work of these men and of the local congregation, not least that of the women of the congregation, contributed in no small degree both to the material and the spiritual welfare of the College. Since the union of the churches in 1917, very fine relations with both Norwegian Lutheran Congregations in Decorah have been maintained. During the school year 1921-22 the plan was inaugurated of having each of the two pastors conduct the morning chapel exercises once a week.

Since 1876 the physical welfare of the students has been under the direct supervision of the college physician. In 1899 a hospital building, which has since been enlarged and improved, was made possible through the gift of Mr. J. A. Johnson of Madison, Wisconsin. Since 1916 the College has had the services of a college nurse, a provision which has more than proved its value. Since 1919 provision has also been made for a physical director.

The material problems relating to the care of buildings and grounds are directly under the supervision of the president. In the earliest days of the College the care of rooms and building was a duty of the students. With the increase in equipment, janitor and engineer service was placed directly in charge of the steward. With the passing of the steward, the posts of engineer, janitor, night-watchman, and electrician were established.

The last few years have witnessed a greater appreciation of the need and value of adequate publicity for the College. President Preus in 1917 laid before the Church recommendations toward this end, stressing the value of publicity as a means of obtaining adequate support for the College. A constructive policy of publicity keeps the College in closer touch with the body it serves. It is of value also in securing adequate recognition from the public at large and the school world in particular, and in attracting to the College a larger number of students. Lastly, it aids very materially in securing the funds without which the conduct of the school would be impossible.

Considerable progress has been made in this direction. The means of publicity employed consist in part of catalogs, bulletins, circulars, advertisements, and student publications such as the college papers and annuals. In 1921 the College began the publication quarterly of the "Luther College Bulletin". Much attention is devoted to publicity in the church and secular press, about twenty-five publications receiving copy from correspondents at the College. Great credit for the work done in this field is due the publicity committee of the College, which at present consists of Profs. C. W. Strom, B. J. Hovde, and M. H. Trytten. The College also endeavors to furnish from among its faculty members speakers for such occasions as may arise.

To aid in providing for adequate and continued support, the College is in need of a financial secretary who can take charge of collections in the field and continue a steady campaign for increased endowments.

Said notice shall name the time, place and object of the meeting; and unless two-thirds of the said pastors and a like number of lay delegates representing congregations be in attendance upon the meeting so called, no other business than that named in the notice shall be translated. CHAPTER FOUR

PRESIDENTS AND PRINCIPALS

FRANCIS E. PETERSON

IT is quite unique that in the first sixty years of its existence Luther College had only two presidents. Stability and a definite educational aim are first characteristics of Luther College, and may be said to be exemplified by few changes in the presidency. Dr. Laur. Larsen was the first president and served uninterruptedly from 1861 to 1902, a period of forty-one years. To few men is it given to devote themselves for so long a time to the service of one school, and especially as president. It is not strange that Dr. Larsen was called "The Grand Old Man of Luther College". Rev. C. K. Preus became president in 1902 and served continuously until his death in the spring of 1921. Dr. Oscar L. Olson, the third president, entered upon his duties during the present school year, 1921-22, which is the sixty-first school year.

DR. LAUR. LARSEN

Peter Laurentius Larsen, or as he himself signed his name, Laur. Larsen, was born August 10, 1833, in Christiansand, Norway. His parents were Herman Larsen, an army officer, and Elen Else Marie (nee Oftedahl), daughter of a member of the Eidsvold "rigsforsamling" in 1814. Peter was the oldest of nine children. The home life was comfortable and happy, although the family was by no means in easy circumstances. At nine years of age the boy entered the so-called Cathedral school in Christiansand, where he easily ranked as one of the first in his class. Dr. Larsen often remarked that he considered himself fortunate in his teachers; at this school it was particularly Prof. Chr. Thistedahl for whom he expressed admiration. In 1850 he matriculated at the University of Christiania for the study of theology; here he considered he had two especially inspiring teachers: Professors G. Johnson and C. P. Caspari. He supported himself by tutoring. He had always planned to enter the ministry, and so engrossed did he become in his studies that his health was affected and he was forced to discontinue for half a year. Meantime he stayed with an uncle, Rev. P. F. Bassoe, near Moss, and served as teacher for the children in the family. In 1855 he completed his theological course; however, he continued in Christiania as teacher of languages—German, French, and Hebrew—both privately and in school. But very soon the urgent call for pastors from the Norwegian pioneer settlements in America appealed to him as a splendid opportunity for genuine Christian service. Accordingly he was ordained September 23, 1857, by Pastor Rode, and left soon afterwards for America. On November 2nd of that year he preached his first sermon in America near Rush River, Wisconsin, in the attic of a house being built as a parsonage. From Rush River he made long trips and organized many congregations. In 1859 he accepted the call from the Synod to occupy the chair of theology at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis as special professor for the Norwegian students there; he entered upon his duties on October 14, 1859, from which date he reckoned his professorship in America. In his work here he was associated with Dr. C. F. W. Walther, "the Luther among the Germans in America"; but the Civil War disrupted the work, and Prof. Larsen left St. Louis in 1861 to become the first president of Luther College.

It is natural that in the minds of most people Dr. Larsen lives as the teacher and educator. But he rendered services in other capacities within the Church which in kind and amount would alone give him a high place among our pioneer leaders. He served as editor of "Kirkelig Maanedstidende", 1868-74; and of "Ev. Luthersk Kirketidende", 1874-89 and 1902-12. In view of the pioneer conditions and the resultant constructive nature of church work in the settlements, coupled with the difficulties attending the "Predestination Controversy", this was an important and unusually trying position in the Church. Dr. Larsen wielded a mighty influence for good in this work. He was always a member of a number of important church committees, and as chairman for years of the Foreign Mission Committee he rendered invaluable service, in the interest of the Schreuder Mission especially. He was vice president of the Iowa District, 1876-79; vice president of the Norwegian Synod, 1876-93; and chairman of the Lutheran Synodical Conference, 1881-83. After his resignation from the presidency of Luther College, in 1902, he continued as professor of Hebrew until 1911 when he was made President Emeritus. With all his duties as teacher, Dr. Larsen often preached—several times a month, sometimes—in Decorah and elsewhere; and in 1882-84 he served the Decorah Congregation as regular pastor.

Dr. Larsen was many times honored. He was guest of honor at several Luther College banquets. On October 22, 1884, was celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as teacher, and in 1909 a host of friends observed his fiftieth anniversary as teacher. The house which was his home the last eighteen years was a gift from his former students. In 1903 Concordia Seminary in St. Louis conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Divinity; and in 1908 he was made Knight of the First Order of St. Olav by King Haakon VII of Norway.

Dr. Larsen was twice married. From the first marriage—in 1855 with Karen Radine Neuberger, who died in 1871—there were four children: Thora, wife of Dr. J. W. Magelssen, died 1908; Marie, died as missionary in South Africa 1899; Henrietta, wife of Rev. K. Xavier, died 1904; and Herman, L. C. '89, physician, died 1895. From the second marriage—with Ingeborg Astrup in 1872—there were eight children, all living: Hannah, editor "American-Scandinavian Review", New York City; Nikolai Astrup, L. C. '96, missionary to China; Karen, A. M., teacher, St. Olaf College; Ingeborg, position in Library, St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.; Lauritz, L. C. '02, D. D., S. T. D., LL. D., president National Lutheran Council, New York City; Signe, Mrs Clifford Elder, Atchison, Kansas; Jakob, L. C. '08, Rhodes Scholar, Oxford, 1911-14 (M. A. '20), asst. professor, State University of Washington; and Henning, L. C. '08, Ph. D., Princeton, asst. professor, State University of Iowa.

Dr. Larsen suffered a stroke on Christmas Eve, 1913. He rallied, but had a second stroke; and he died on March 1, 1915. He is buried in the Norwegian Lutheran Cemetery, Decorah, Iowa.

Dr. Larsen's life is so bound up with the history of Luther College that it is quite impossible to write about him apart from that history. It has rightly been said that his biography is very largely the history of Luther College.

Dr. Larsen was a pioneer educator within the Church, and his work was beset with many problems. He was fully equal to the task. God had given him a rugged physique, and otherwise entrusted to him gifts and qualities which admirably fitted him for this work. But one thing characterized him more than any other one thing: he possessed a remarkably childlike faith in God and His providence. In all things he was guided by this implicit faith. Truly Dr. Larsen was equipped to serve the Church as president of a Christian college; and it was his spiritual equipment that often brought him through difficulties when all purely human qualifications availed nothing.

One of the first practical problems to confront Dr. Larsen as president of Luther College was that of adapting the parsonage at Halfway Creek to the needs of sixteen students and two professors' families. In spite of very crowded quarters, Dr. Larsen managed somehow; and undoubtedly, those were very profitable and happy school days.

But the need of more room was urgent. Even after the school had been moved to Decorah, in 1862, and occupied more commodious quarters in what is now the St. Cloud Hotel, it soon outgrew its space again, for the number of students increased. To relieve the situation by providing a larger and permanent building on the site secured for that purpose by Rev. V. Koren, presented many difficulties. Nevertheless, Prof. Larsen and his associates proceeded to carry out that plan. Messrs. Griese and Weile, Cleveland architects, submitted plans with an estimated cost of $28,000.00. It seems strange that the seven ministers and twenty-five congregations did not at once decide that the price was prohibitive. Not only were the church people of that time poor, but they had been accustomed to the State Church of Norway, which is supported by taxation; and they were contributing as best they could to their congregations out in the settlements. Ground was broken for a building in 1863. But difficulty followed upon difficulty, and the completion of the building was delayed over winter. At times it was impossible to get material, and there was a sharp advance in prices; transportation to the "Far West" was unreliable; the working men struck; and it was necessary to pay the architects more than the contract price. Prof. Larsen was a member of the building committee. All these trials were added to the numerous difficulties of his routine work. The cost far exceeded the estimate. At the dedication, in 1865, it had reached $75,000.00. Humanly speaking, it seemed impossible to meet the payments. Indeed, at the next synod meeting genuine fear was expressed that the Church would lose the building through default of payment. Prof. Larsen, however, never permitted even such serious difficulties to discourage him. He always acted on the implicit faith that he was a servant of God carrying out His purposes. In his reports to the Synod there was never a trace of complaint; however, he was firm and fearless in calling upon fellow pastors and the church people to support the school.

Naturally the money stringency continued even after the close of the war. There was very little money among people, and many young men were prevented from starting at Luther College, much as they wanted to; and those who entered were often uncertain how long they could stay. For many years Dr. Larsen reported to the Synod that many students had been forced to discontinue. Prof. Larsen pleaded the cause of needy students; and many ministers and others owe their education at Luther College directly to Prof. Larsen for somehow providing funds for them even in those stringent times.

Another serious problem with which Prof. Larsen had to cope,—and one which is not felt in the same way now—was the matter of securing teachers. For many years Norwegian continued to be the medium of instruction, and with no schools in this country preparing men for such teaching positions, it was necessary to look to Norway for practically every professor. And even there they were not easily obtained. In 1883 Prof. Larsen went to Norway largely for the purpose of engaging teachers; after much difficulty he secured two. Prof. Larsen reported at one time that two professors had resigned during the same school year. He evidently considered this a distressing problem; he insisted that the teachers make the school, and he was not willing to engage anybody and everybody as teachers at Luther College. Concerning the language situation, Prof. Larsen wrote in the college catalog even as early as 1886: "Of the two languages which we must use here, the College has always stressed English more and more; and when the time comes that the development demands it, Luther College will be glad to give the language of this our new country precedence over Norwegian."

After a few years the time had come to build the south wing provided for in the original plan. Again there was the problem of money. But the wing was added in 1873-74, even before the necessary money had been subscribed; and it was paid for with no real difficulty.

A gymnasium had been a long felt want. The one consideration which deferred it was again the lack of money. After many years this need, too, was supplied, when the west room of the present gymnasium was built in 1887, largely with money contributed or secured by alumni and students.

But real and perplexing as these problems were, they all seem small as compared with the catastrophe which befell Luther College in 1889. On May 19th of that year a fire of unknown origin completely gutted the main building. Undoubtedly this blow quite disheartened many good friends of the College. But despite the heavy financial loss and the discouragement, the men directly associated with the school, and particularly Prof. Larsen, seemed never in doubt as to what they ought to do. Luther College had to be rebuilt and continued. This is perhaps the most severe single test that the College has had to endure. Prospects for raising the necessary money were not very bright. Luther Seminary and the Lutheran Normal School in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, had recently been built, and money for rebuilding Luther College would have to come from the same congregations. Then too, some considered that Luther College ought to be moved so as to be more centrally located—possibly to Minneapolis—for the weight of population among the congregations had shifted in that direction. But Prof. Larsen was staunch in his belief that a subscription should be started at once; and Luther College should be rebuilt in Decorah. While this plan had enough supporters to retain the College in Decorah, it was no doubt due very much to Prof. Larsen's efforts that Luther College was not moved. In the meantime the work had to be carried on under special difficulties in temporary quarters here and there in the city. The very next year, however,—in 1890—the new building was dedicated and made ready for occupancy.

Because of the very definite educational aim of the College—primarily that of preparing young men for the study of theology—Prof. Larsen had no real problem so far as the curriculum was concerned. He knew what the curriculum must be to accomplish this aim. Accordingly few changes were necessary. Even when the original six-year pro-seminary course, which was modeled on the Latin course of Norway, was extended to seven years, in 1881, there was no change in fundamentals. Neither did the Normal Department, which was conducted from 1865 to 1886, in any sense affect the essential aim of the school.

Gradually it was felt that Luther College was encountering competition in the educational field. Not only were public high schools appearing, and colleges of various other denominations, but other schools were being built within the Norwegian Synod. Except for the Theological Seminary and the Lutheran Normal School in Sioux Falls, South Dakota, these were all academies for many years; and while they served as good "feeders" for Luther College, a certain element of competition had to be reckoned with, especially in the matter of financial support.

In one most important phase of the work at Luther College, and one which presents a real problem, Prof. Larsen was eminently successful: he was directly and personally instrumental in guiding many young men to the Theological Seminary. It is true, in the early days a larger number of students came with minds fully made up for the ministry; also there were not so many vocations open to young men then; and the spirit of the day has changed since that time. However, through that very remarkably devout spirit of Christian service which Prof. Larsen manifested in every relation of life, he inspired many Luther College students to take up the study of theology. Many pastors, consciously or not, have entered the ministry very largely because of the blessed influence which Prof. Larsen exerted upon them at Luther College. His services to the Church in this respect alone cannot be overestimated.

The controversy of the 80's involving the doctrine of predestination constituted a real problem for Luther College. Opinion was divided both among teachers and students, and open meetings for discussing the matter were held in the city. People's minds were everywhere disturbed, and the controversy might very easily have disrupted the school. While there are many considerations, and much credit is due many men who worked for the welfare of the College, still it is plain that Prof. Larsen was very largely responsible for the favorable outcome at Luther College; his good, deliberate judgment coupled with absolute fairness prevented any serious disturbance at the school.

No attempt can be made here to discuss all the problems—not even all the most perplexing ones—with which Prof. Larsen was confronted during his forty-one years as president. Some of the more outstanding ones have been recounted. It would be a mistake to suppose that it was only during times of particular stress that his presidency was fraught with problems and difficulties. Even in the most favorable and hopeful moments his position was one of great responsibilities. Prof. Larsen's utterance in 1884 at the celebration of his twenty-fifth anniversary as teacher is very characteristic of him:

"In my work here I have striven to accomplish especially three things. In the first place, I have desired that the spirit of Christianity should permeate everything. The instruction, the discipline, all our associations—in short, every part of our school life—should be marked by a true Christian spirit. However, I feel personally how difficult it is to be actuated by this spirit. It is no easy matter to live a true Christian life, in humility constantly confessing oneself a grievous sinner, and still through confidence and trust in God be enabled to find hope and joy in God's Word; and to have one's heart turned to Him in gratitude for everything, not only the good things, but also for that which may seem evil and trying. We long for the time when we shall put off this mortal body and be permitted to praise and serve God in our transfigured state.

“In the second place, it has been my aim that the instruction here be thorough; that there be no show or humbug; that everything be pure gold—or, to use a common expression, that it be ‘all wool, and a yard wide’. This has been difficult, for I have not always had time for thorough preparation.

“In the third place, I have wanted such discipline here as would teach the students more and more self-discipline, with each one personally responsible for his own conduct; and still one student restraining the other, so that I might as far as possible be relieved of discipline.”

It must be remembered that Prof. Larsen was not president in the sense in which we now think of the position. His was not a day when many duties were delegated to a staff of workers. Besides his specific duties as president, he taught about as many classes as the other teachers; also he served at one time as registrar, treasurer, disciplinarian, and general manager—both financial and otherwise—and in addition found time for many other incidental duties. So it was a real problem just to attend to the bare routine of the daily work. It should also be stated that for years Prof. Larsen almost always conducted the devotional exercises morning and evening; and with much other detail, too, he somehow found time to make a round of the students' rooms and rouse them out for breakfast. In all tasks, big and small, he was equally painstaking and accurate; until one must marvel how he found time for it all. That he could maintain such a rigid routine for years without flagging, is nothing short of astonishing. He was severely methodical; which may in part be due to the fact that his father was a military man. So very regular was he that students were heard to remark: “Now it is exactly half past five, for there is Prof. Larsen just starting for town with his shopping basket.” But for all his insistence upon routine and punctuality, he was not a nervous worker; even to old age there was nothing about his movements to suggest nervousness or undue hurry; he was deliberate and scrupulously careful of detail. No matter how busy, he always took time for a nap of twenty minutes to half an hour at noon. Until his last illness he was seldom even ailing; his moderation in all things and his regularity in mode of living, preserved for him his naturally rugged good health which only old age, and not hard work, could break down.

It has been said—and by Dr. Larsen himself—that he was not a genius, but a man of only ordinary abilities. Even if this be true, he was nevertheless a very remarkable man. He possessed such sterling qualities of character—unfeigned Christian faith and fullness of spiritual life with absolute integrity, simple humility, and a sense of Christian service—that he was a very unusual man. His one concern was to do his duty as a servant of God; and he did not seek worldly renown. He permitted no interests to disturb him in his duties as pastor and teacher; he gave very little time and effort to interests which do not bear somewhat directly upon theology and education. He was in the world, but not of the world; and still he constantly emphasized the Lutheran doctrine of a Christian's duty of strict obedience to law and government. He was not a man of social affairs; and not a "good mixer" in the sense in which the term is currently used. However, he was a welcome guest at all gatherings; and his mere presence commanded respect and precluded everything questionable in word and act. Among his friends and as a host he was interesting and entertaining, his manner always bespeaking culture and refinement. He was unassuming, yet firm and fearless in his convictions; he abhorred sham and hypocrisy, and was so thoroughly genuine and frank in conduct and speech that he was sometimes considered naive. He has been called "A Christian Gentleman"; and, possibly, no other short description can do him more justice. He was a man of God; a humble servant of Jesus Christ, who, asking nothing for himself—except forgiveness for his sins and salvation through His merit—unselfishly consecrated his life to untiring Christian service in the interest of the Lutheran Church and Luther College. He exemplified in all his service the thought expressed in the motto of Luther College, "Soli Deo Gloria"—To God alone all Glory.

PROF. C. K. PREUS

Christian Keyser Preus was born on October 13, 1852, in the Spring Prairie parsonage, twenty miles north of Madison, Wis. His father was the Right Reverend H. A. Preus, who was president of the Norwegian Synod from 1862 until his death, in 1894. His mother was Caroline Dortha Margrethe Keyser. Christian received his early education from private tutors, and entered Luther College in 1865; but he left during the year because of sickness, and did not return till 1868. He graduated in 1873 (B. A.). During the years 1873-76 he studied theology at Concordia Seminary in St. Louis. He was ordained at Washington Prairie the year of his graduation, 1876; temporarily he served Our Savior's Congregation in Chicago before becoming his father's assistant in the Spring Prairie charge. He was pastor at Spring Prairie until he was forced to resign in 1897 because of ill health. He moved to Decorah, and in 1898 became professor at Luther College. He was elected president in 1902 and continued in the position until his death, in 1921. Prof. Preus twice declined the vice-presidency of the Synod, in 1893 and 1896; he accepted in 1911, when he was elected a third time, and served until the union of the three church bodies in 1917. At that time he was elected vice president of the Iowa District, a position which he held at the time of his death. In 1911 the Synod elected him as its representative at the University of Christiania during the centennial festivities in September of that year; King Haakon VII decorated him Commander of the Order of St. Olav. Prof. Preus accompanied the Luther College Concert Band on the 1914 Norway Tour, and upon request delivered three lectures at the University of Christiania. In 1877 he married Louise Augusta Hjort, oldest daughter of Rev. Ove Jacob Hjort, then minister at Painted Creek, Allamakee County, Iowa. There have been eleven children, of whom seven are now living: Ove Jacob Hjort (L. C. '01), pastor in De Forest, Wis.; Johan Carl Keyser (L. C. '02), pastor in Byron, Minn.; Jacob Aall Ottesen (L. C. '03), governor of Minnesota; Paul Aretander (L. C. '11), treasurer Federal Land Bank, St. Paul, Minn.; Herman Amberg (L. C. '16), attorney in St. Paul, Minn.; Henriette, nurse at Northwestern Hospital, Minneapolis, Minn.; and Cathinka Hjort, Mrs. Knute D. Stalland (L. C. '18), St. Paul, Minn. All sons and the one son-in-law are graduates of Luther College. The deceased children, with year of birth, are: Herman A., 1878; Linka, 1885; Christiane, 1887; and Christiane, 1899. Prof. Preus died in his home in Decorah on May 28, 1921; he had been attending to his duties even to the last day, although he had not been well for some time. Death was due to heart disease. He was buried on June 1st in the Norwegian Lutheran Cemetery in Decorah.

Prof. Preus appreciated fully the responsibilities attaching to the position when he accepted the presidency of Luther College. He was frank to state that he had serious misgivings. In his first report to the Synod he wrote: "It was with considerable misgiving that I entered upon my duties as president of Luther College a year ago. I appreciated fully both the responsibilities and many difficulties of the position, and no one realized better than I how few were my qualifications for the work. However, I had not sought the position and promised that with the help of God I would attempt it." However, understanding Luther College and its problems, he knew that his first task—and clearly his most vital one—was to see to it that the school be continued as Dr.

CHRISTIAN KEYSER PREUS

Larsen had conducted it, a classical college with the primary aim of preparing young men for a theological course. It was clear from the outset that this would be a settled policy in his administration. In 1904 he outlined his plans in a pamphlet entitled: "In What Direction and Toward What Goal Should Luther College be Developed in order to best Serve the Synod?"

But there were many difficulties. Not a few—even Luther College alumni, some of them—had become increasingly insistent that changes be made in the curriculum. It was argued that the classical course failed to meet the educational needs of the day. While Prof. Preus reckoned with this demand from the outside, he would not be swerved from essentials. When the Preparatory Department was lengthened to four years, in 1905, and the Board of Education in 1918 approved the plan of the present organization of the department into a Junior and Senior High School; when a literary course was added in 1906; and when, in 1911, a modified curriculum involving a limited elective system went into effect, a course of study which had been proposed by the faculty after a thorough study of the matter in 1910-11, there was no innovation in these changes which in any real sense violated fundamentals in the original aim of the school. The new courses provided mainly for electives: biology, chemistry (re-instated), economics, education, American history, music (harmony), philosophy, physics, psychology, public speaking, sociology,—and as a legacy from the S. A. T. C., surveying.

Right from the start Prof. Preus began to devote himself to the interests of Luther College out in the field. With the passing of the first pioneer conditions and the large increase in the number of congregations, the work of conducting the affairs of the College had shifted very considerably from the College at home out to its interests in the field. It was necessary to groom the college territory. In the early days there were few ministers and congregations, and it required no great amount of urging in advertising and publicity to gain their whole-hearted support. Church organization then was a simple thing, and our church people did not dissipate their interests in many activities. And for years Luther College was the one school to support. But the church body became larger; there were other schools and new interests; every little town almost was building its own high school, and many denominations had established church schools. Many of the church people now lived at a distance. Then, too, that worldly spirit so characteristic of our times is a considerable factor here. All such conditions combined to make it increasingly difficult to attract any large number of students. While he did not aim at mere numbers, Prof. Preus set about to work for an increase in enrollment. The problem involved many considerations, but in the main it was a matter of working more out in the school field.

Prof. Preus was eminently fitted for such work. He had had varied experience involving contact with people, and he was intimately acquainted with conditions in the Church; and with his unusual ability as a speaker he combined many admirable qualities of personality and temperament. People believed in him. Easily one of the most effective speakers in our Church, he was much in demand, and he spent much time out in the field. His personal work was supplemented in various ways; a systematic advertising campaign was launched, always of a distinctly conservative and dignified kind, and in entire keeping with the religious character of the school. Church papers and the public press were used; pamphlets were written and distributed; also the "Luther College Semi-Centennial" of 1911; "The Pioneer" of 1920; "Norgesfærden" in 1914; and the "Luther College Bulletin", a quarterly, the first issue of which appeared in January, 1921. And student organizations went out among the people; chief among these the Luther College Concert Band and, in 1920, the Luther College Four.

One of Prof. Preus' distinct contributions to Luther College is what he gave the school in buildings. He formulated a definite and extensive building program. He realized that conditions required a school plant; one building or two could no longer be considered adequate. He was commissioned by the Church to go out and raise money for a dormitory; and during the school year 1906-07 Laur. Larsen Hall was built at a cost of $60,000.00. It was dedicated October 13, 1907. Previously some construction involving less money had been done; the arch at the entrance to the campus was erected in 1903 upon the occasion of the fiftieth anniversary of the Synod; also the gymnasium was enlarged to three times its size for this celebration. In 1911 the Luther statue was unveiled during the Luther College Fiftieth Anniversary festivities; the ministers' wives had collected $2,547.00 for its erection. The Endowment Fund aggregating over $250,000.00—$50,000.00 of which was a gift from James J. Hill—collected by Dr. H. G. Stub, assisted by Prof. Preus and others—was presented to the College at these festivities. In 1909 Mr. Jens Jensen, landscape architect of Chicago, was engaged at the instance of the Chicago Luther College Club to submit plans embodying the most approved arrangement of a college campus. Upon his recommendations the grounds were very materially changed, the greatest departure being the removal of the avenue of large trees leading up to the main building, to make room for a large open central court. On October 14, 1911, the Alumni Association voted to buy and present the eight-acre wooded tract lying north of High Street and east of the original campus; and in 1919 another tract, the size of a city block, lying south of High Street and east of the campus, was also added. Upon the initiative of the students a dining hall, Loyalty Hall, was built in 1916 at the cost of $18,000.00. This necessitated the moving of the hospital—a gift of Mr. J. A. Johnson of Madison, Wisconsin—and it was enlarged and furnished with all modern equipment; also a registered nurse was placed in charge.

Prof. Preus' efforts for buildings culminated in his very finest contribution, the Koren Library, which was dedicated on the 14th of October, 1921. It seems sad that he was not permitted to live to see this splendid building completed. He traveled extensively and personally solicited almost all the money. Definite work for a library was done as early as 1908, when squads of students made concrete blocks; however, there were considerations which deferred the building many years.

Prof. Preus built along other lines, too. During his regime the chemical laboratory expanded to more than college requirements; and the physics and biology laboratories were also developed. Through the efforts of Hon. L. S. Swenson and Mr. H. G. Hangan the valuable Bishop Bang Library was secured in 1913. Dr. Koren's first parsonage of 1853, the so-called Egge Log House, was placed upon the campus. The class of 1921 presented a flag pole. There was a substantial increase in legacies, the largest one, of $10,000.00, created by Capt. Rossing in 1910. The library was increased from 11,000 volumes to 28,000, exclusive of 8,000 pamphlets.

Prof. Preus' building program provided for a gymnasium very soon, with other buildings to follow—a music hall, chapel, and possibly a science hall.

But with all his work out in the field, Prof. Preus was still able to attend to all the needs of the school at home. He considered it his first concern to build up a strong faculty; often he was heard to remark, "First of all, teachers". With more students—214 in 1911-12—and more courses, it was necessary to add teachers; during his administration the faculty was increased from 11 to 21 members. He favored the "Sabbatical year".

Many teachers availed themselves of this, which has added to the prestige of the faculty. And there was need of more organization. Prof. Preus delegated many duties which had before properly belonged to the president. The principalship of the Preparatory Department became a more responsible position; in 1914 a registrar's office was created; and a librarian was engaged to give full time to his special work with no hours of instruction. There was a regularly employed college stenographer; also a physical director to give full time to his department. Such organization required added equipment. What was thus accomplished was important in enabling Luther College to qualify as a member of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

Prof. Preus' work was attended by many problems not of routine kind, some of which were particularly distressing. One such problem arose in connection with the movement for church union. Luther College was directly concerned; as the oldest and only college conducted by the church body, it was more intimately bound up with the Synod than possibly any other institution within the Church. For very good reasons it was feared that the status of the College might be affected. Much credit is due Prof. Preus for being so staunch in stressing the importance of maintaining Luther College as a distinctively classical college with its first purpose that of preparing young men to take up the study of theology.

Another such problem was that occasioned by the World War. It is plain that this situation presented difficulties which were peculiar to Luther College, a classical college for men only. Changes nothing short of revolutionary had to be effected to enlist the school in military service. But with good reorganization work wisely directed by Prof. Preus, supported by the willing cooperation of the faculty, Luther College qualified as an S. A. T. C., and few schools came through the war with a more creditable service record.

Then, too, the reconstruction period had problems for Luther College which really did not obtain at schools that are not of the classical type. During the war the traditional course of study had been greatly modified. But Luther College was glad to render service in response to her country's call; and at present the work is well back to that even routine of good application to class subjects which has always characterized Luther College.

Prof. Preus was a man of splendid abilities. With a keen intellect were coupled good capacity for work and many admirable traits of character. Of even temperament, always pleasant and sympathetic, he, too, like his predecessor, Dr. Larsen, was thoroughly imbued with the spirit of Christian service. He was seriously earnest in his work, but had a delightful sense of humor; always manly, he never became old, but retained a surprisingly youthful attitude of mind. He had hobbies and interests; but he never permitted these to intrude in the least upon his work. And he was a prodigious worker, although not so methodical as Dr. Larsen. He came of a long line of ministerial and professional stock, and so had an air of unaffected dignity and culture about him; retiring and quiet—his intimate friends reproached him for being over-modest—his appearance suggested the aristocrat, and still he was a man among men, unassuming and very human. A man of culture and refinement, of fine sensibilities and scholarly instincts, an able and thorough theologian, he was nevertheless of a decidedly practical turn of mind, a leader and a man of affairs, a fine type of citizen. He understood people intimately; and his large fund of miscellaneous information enabled him to talk intelligently with people of all stations and occupations; an exceptionally effective speaker—both in English and in Norwegian—he gained the general esteem and confidence of our church people everywhere. He was an unusually able sermonizer and preacher; and as president of Luther College he will always be remembered for his remarkable chapel talks, which were model sermons in form, content, and language.

While we value a man for what he is, it is only by viewing him in relation to his work, and not apart from it, that it is possible to determine somewhat his true worth. And measured in terms of his work, in kind and amount of service he rendered Luther College and the Church, it is certain that Prof. C. K. Preus must be accorded a high place among the leaders of our Norwegian Lutheran Church in America.

DR. OSCAR L. OLSON

Oscar Ludvig Olson was born February 2, 1872, in Chicago, Illinois. His father was Andrew Olson, and his mother Guroe (nee Larson). He entered the Preparatory Department of Luther College in 1886 and graduated in 1889; he continued in the College Department, and received the degree of A. B. in 1893. He taught at Bode Academy, Bode, Ia., 1893-95; at Bruffat Academy, Portland, N. Dak., 1896-98; at Luther Academy, Albert Lea, Minn., 1898-01; and in 1901 he became a member of the faculty at Luther College, and has served as professor ever since except for intervals when he has been away for study. He attended the University of Minnesota, 1895-96, and was granted his master's degree. The summers of 1904 and 1907-11 he studied at the University of Chicago; and after spending the school year 1913-14 there, he received the degree of Ph. D. He is the author of "The Scandinavian Origin of Beowulf" (thesis for M. A.), 1903; "Beowulf Kvadet" in "Symra", May, 1912; "Beowulf and the Feast at Brieriu" in "Modern Philology", January, 1914; "The Relation of Luther to Education" in "Teologisk Tidskrift", October, 1917; "The Relation of the Rolf saga Kraka and the Bjarkarimur to Beowulf" (thesis for Ph. D.), 1916; and he has delivered many lectures on various subjects. He was secretary of the Luther College faculty, 1916-21, and secretary of the Board of Trustees of Luther College, 1917-21. Prof. Olson married Miss Clara Elizabeth Gullixson in 1897. They have two sons: Walter Andrew, born 1902, and Paul Frederick, born 1905; both are students at Luther College, classes of '24 and '26, respectively. Dr. Olson was appointed acting president of Luther College in 1921.

When upon the death of Prof. C. K. Preus on May 28, 1921, the Board of Education within our Church appointed Dr. Olson to serve Luther College as acting president, it did so because Dr. Olson was clearly the one man who was rather fully acquainted with the work and otherwise ready to step right into the position until a permanent president could be elected at the next general meeting of the church body. Dr. Olson has spent more than half of his years at Luther College, and whenever Prof. Preus was traveling about in the interests of the College, Dr. Olson really served as acting president. But Dr. Olson, too, has served Luther College out in the field; because of his ability as a public speaker he has become well and favorably known among the supporters of Luther College everywhere.

PRINCIPALS

When the original "Latin course" of six years was extended to one of seven years, in 1881, and the number of classes, students, and teachers increased, it became apparent that it was desirable to have two somewhat distinct departments. Accordingly the Preparatory Department was formed in 1889, at first comprising three years. Prof. H. W. Sheel became the first principal, and when he took charge, in 1890, it fell to him to organize the new department.

PROF. H. W. SHEEL

Herman W. Sheel was born in St. Louis, Mo., on January 18, 1860. His father was John F. Scheel and his mother Margaret E. (nee Jende). After completing the parochial school in St. Louis, he entered Luther College in 1874, and remained one year. During the school years 1882-85 he attended Valparaiso University in Indiana and received the degree of B. S. From 1885 to 1889 he was teacher at the Lutheran Seminary and Institute in Willmar, Minn., where he taught mathematics and sciences. Since 1889 he has been a member of the faculty at Luther College. When the Preparatory Department became a separate entity, Prof. Sheel was made principal; and he served 1890-91; and again a second time, 1896-1911. During his administration—in 1905—the course was lengthened to four years. In 1907 the department took possession of new and commodious quarters in Laur. Larsen Hall. Here, too, Prof. Sheel was given space for his chemical laboratory, which he has since built up to more than standard college requirements and made it a part of the school plant of which the College can justly be proud. He has been professor at Luther College since 1911, except for one year, which he spent in Washington and California. He was married to Miss Lydia E. Jende in 1895. There are four children: Ruth; Karl, L. C. '24; Otto; Sigurd, L. C. '30.

PROF. GISLE BOTHNE

Prof. Gisle Bothne was the second principal. He served during the interval between Prof. Sheel's first and second terms—in 1891-96.

Gisle Bothne was born on September 7, 1860, in Fredrikshald, Norway. Here he attended the Latin school for nine years, until the spring of 1876, when his mother, Johanne (nee Okland) left Norway with the family to join his father, Thron J. Bothne, who had gone to America the previous year to become professor at Luther College (Thron Bothne was professor 1875-82). Gisle graduated from Luther College in 1878 (B. A.); from Northwestern University, Watertown, Wisconsin, in 1879; and then studied classical philology at Johns Hopkins University until 1880. He became professor at Luther College January, 1881, and remained until 1907 (M. A., 1883); in 1883-84 he again attended Johns Hopkins University; during 1903-04 he studied in Greece and at the universities of Berlin and Christiania. He was principal of the Preparatory Department 1891-96. In 1907 he accepted a call from the University of Minnesota as head of the Department of Scandinavian Languages and Literature, a position which he still holds. He has been president of the Norwegian Society of America; also is a member of the Norwegian-Danish Press Ass'n of America. In 1911 he was decorated by King Haakon of Norway and made a Knight of the Order of St. Olav. On June 27, 1895, he was married to Miss Kathrine Elise Brandt. They have two daughters: Dikka (B. A., University of Minnesota) is at the University of Christiania, Norway, on a scholarship from the American-Scandinavian Foundation; Agnes is a student at the University of Minnesota.

PROF. O. A. TINGELSTAD

When Prof. Sheel resigned in 1911 because of ill health, he had served as principal faithfully and well for fourteen years. Prof. O. A. Tingelstad became acting principal for the school year 1911-12; and a second time 1917-19. Norman A. Madson (L. C. '11, B. A.) was his assistant in 1911-12; Merriam H. Trytten (L. C. '16, B. A.), in 1917-18, till April 1; Geo. Ulvilden (L. C. '16, B. A.), April-June, 1918; and H. Fred Swansen (L. C. '14, B. A.) in 1918-19. The present organization of the Preparatory Department into a Junior and Senior high school was effected during his principalship.

Oscar Adolf Tingelstad was born near Hickson, Cass County, N. Dak., on September 20, 1882. His parents are Bent Tingelstad and Beret A. (nee Livdalen). The family moved to Silverton, Oregon, and he attended Pacific Lutheran Academy, Parkland, Wash., in 1900, and 1901-02; high school in Silverton, Ore., 1900-01. He entered Luther College in 1902, and graduated in 1905 (B. A.), and from Luther Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., in 1907 (cand. theology). He accepted a call to Ballard, Seattle, Wash., and was pastor, 1907-09, of Zion Lutheran Church at Ballard, and Port Madison, Orillia, and Millers Bay Congregations. In 1909 he received a call from Luther College to the chair of psychology and education; before entering upon his duties as professor he spent the autumn of 1909 at the University of Chicago. In the summer of 1910 he again attended the University of Chicago, also in 1912-13, when he received his M. A. When the registrar's office was created in 1914 he was appointed to that position, and has served as registrar since. In 1911-12 and 1917-19 he was acting principal of the Preparatory Department. The second semester of the school year 1921-22 he was granted leave of absence to continue his studies at the University of Chicago.

He served as secretary of the Young Peoples' Luther League of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, 1917-1922. In 1909 he married Miss Alfield Sophic Tvete.

PROF. H. S. HILLEBOE

In 1912 Prof. H. S. Hilleboe, then superintendent of public schools in Benson, Minn., was called as principal after Prof. Tingelstad had served as acting principal for one year. Prof. Hilleboe, an alumnus of Luther College (B. A., 1881, and M. A., 1886), had had years of varied school experience both in a church academy and in the public high schools, and had taken graduate work in education and school administration at several universities. His experience in the public schools nicely supplemented his knowledge of the work and traditions of the Preparatory Department; and he introduced several changes in external organization, involving details of daily routine, discipline, and grading.

Hans Sjurson Hilleboe was born on October 28, 1858, at Roche-a-Cree, Adams County, Wis., son of Sjur Hanson Hilleboe and Gjertrud Rømhø (nee Haug). He attended Luther College 1878-81 (B. A.). The two years following he spent at the Northern Indiana Normal School, Valparaiso, Indiana; 1895-96 at Chicago Lutheran Theological Seminary; and 1897-98 at Luther Seminary, Robbinsdale, Minn. He received his M. A. from Luther College in 1886. He has been a student at Minnesota, Harvard, and Chicago universities. He was an instructor at Willmar Seminary, Willmar, Minn., 1884-87; and during 1887-99 he served as principal of the school, with the exception of the years 1895-96 and 1897-98, when he was away for study. He was principal of Willmar Seminary a second time, 1904-07; during the intervening years, 1899-04, he was superintendent of public schools in Benson, Minn., and again in 1907-12. In 1912 he was called to the principalship of the Preparatory Department at Luther College and continued in the position until the summer of 1917, when he became president of Lutheran Normal School, Sioux Falls, S. Dak., and when the school became known as Augustana College after the consolidation with Augustana College of Canton, S. Dak., in 1918, he was retained as president, and served until 1920. Since that time he has been professor at the school. In 1887 he married Antonilla Ytterboe, who died in 1912. In 1916 he married Ellen G. Syse. Four children survive from the first marriage: Gertrude, dean of women at St. Olaf College; Marie, wife of Rev. S. M. Moe; Genevieve; and Sigur.

PROF. H. FRED SWANSEN

H. Fred Swansen (Luther College '14, B. A.), who had been a teacher at Luther Academy, Albert Lea, Minn., since his graduation, came to Luther College in 1918 to be instructor in English. He served as assistant principal in 1918-19, and as principal in 1919-20. Prof. Swansen was very much interested in literary society work, especially debating. His efforts in the interest of forensics in the Preparatory Department and the good results he attained in this work are deserving of special mention.

Hans Fred Swansen was born in Boston, Mass., on November 14, 1889, of Thomas Swansen and Hanne (nee Hendricksen). He attended Boston English High School four years; held a clerical position in Boston; entered Luther College in January, 1911, and graduated in 1914 (B. A.). He taught English and physics at Luther Academy, Albert Lea, Minn., 1914-18. He spent the summer of 1917 at Harvard doing graduate work in English. In 1920 he accepted the presidency of Gale College, Galesville, Wis., and is now in that position. In 1919 he was married to Miss Beatrice Irene Teslow.

PROF. LEONARD A. MOE

The present principal, Leonard A. Moe (Luther College '12, B. A.), succeeded Prof. Swansen in 1920. He had been engaged in school work every year since his graduation, and, with much other experience in administrative duties during the war, he came well equipped for the position. He continued the good work in debating, for which his predecessor, Prof. Swansen, had created so much interest. And he elaborated upon this work; in the early fall of the school year 1921-22, he conceived the plan of holding a conference of our church academies at Luther College involving debating, declamation, and basket ball. The proposal met with favor everywhere, and when it was definitely launched, Prof. Moe was selected as the logical man to serve as chairman of the committee on arrangements. He was given additional duties in this capacity when the Lutheran Students' Union decided to hold its convention in conjunction with this conference, March 7-10, 1922. That the event was such an unqualified success was in very large measure due to Prof. Moe's good energy and fine abilities as an administrator; he was the moving spirit in the undertaking.

Leonard Alton Moe was born January 27, 1892, in Elroy, Wis. His father was Lars L. Moe, a merchant; and his mother Martha C. Hansen, daughter of Andrew Hansen in Manitowoc, Wis., wagon manufacturer. Leonard received his grade and first year high school education in the public schools of Elroy. In June, 1906, the family moved to Decorah, and he entered the Preparatory Department of Luther College the same year, and graduated in 1908. He continued in the College Department and finished in 1912 (B. A.). He has taught since his graduation: at Gale College, Galesville, Wis., 1912-16; principal consolidated school, Manvel, N. Dak., 1916-17; supt. city schools, Hillsboro, N. D., 1917-18; supt. city schools, Park River, N. D., 1918-20; principal Luther College Preparatory Department, 1920-22. During the summer of 1915 he was musician with the International Chautauquas; and platform superintendent with the Midland Chautauquas in the summer of 1921. He served as sec'y N. Dak., State Parents and Teachers' Ass'n in 1918-19; sec'y Luther College Alumni Ass'n, 1921-22; president Decorah Luther College Club, 1922; director of the Iowa District Young People's Luther League, 1921; and chairman of committee on arrangements for the Luther College Academy Conference, 1921-22. He was married on August 25, 1915, to Miss Carolyn M. Jacobson, daughter of Prof. Axel Jacobson, supt. of Bethany Indian Mission, Wittenberg, Wis. They have one son, Lowell, born August 18, 1916.

One other man deserves very special mention in connection with the Preparatory Department, namely, Rev. M. K. Bleken, the disciplinarian and "husfader" of the department from 1907 to 1910.

IV. DISTRIBUTION OF WORK

The remaining portion of this chapter is designed to answer the following question: What teacher taught any given subject in any given year? Prof. Bothne's history of Luther College makes possible an approximately complete answer to this question up to 1897; the catalogs of Luther College furnish a less comprehensive guide for the remaining years. Figures indicate the number of hours per week. Names of substitute teachers and student assistants are enclosed in parentheses. The teachers are arranged by departments; within each department the teacher of the most advanced class (not necessarily the head of the department) is named first, and so on down to the teacher of the lowest class. Incidentally this section furnishes a condensed summary of the curriculum at Luther College year by year. In the interest of economy of space the Collegiate and Preparatory Departments have been merged in the tabulation.

CHAPTER SIX

SCHOOL PLANT

FRANCIS E. PETERSON

LUTHER College started as a pioneer institution; hence in a small way and with meager equipment. Even after sixty years it cannot boast an expensive school plant, as school plants are reckoned at the present time. While an effort has always been made to provide all equipment necessary for educational efficiency, the real success of the school has not been considered directly dependent upon mere material equipment. But that Luther College has qualified for membership in the North Central Association of Colleges indicates that that high educational authority recognizes that Luther College is a standard American college in physical equipment as well as in other respects.

On September 1, 1861, Luther College began its first school year in temporary quarters, the Halfway Creek Parsonage, about thirteen miles north of La Crosse, Wisconsin. The following is in part Prof. Laur. Larsen's description of it: "Downstairs there is a large kitchen which serves also as a dining-room; then, too, a pantry, a small room for the kitchen help, a double room, a larger room in which six students sleep, and a smaller bed-room for two. The last two rooms are used also for studying and for class-rooms. Three students sleep in a room upstairs which is supposed to be Prof. Larsen's office. There are four other rooms upstairs; in one of them a stove cannot be used, hence it is made to serve as a clothes closet for the entire household, and is thus packed with clothes. Prof. Larsen has only one room for himself and family; Prof. Schmidt and family have two rooms, but they are so arranged that they cannot be divided off. If more students come, they will either have to sleep in the clothes room, or in one of Prof. Schmidt's rooms; and while he would gladly consent to this, it would be very crowded for him. It is doubtful whether students can secure rooms at any of the neighbors. Two prospective students have applied, and while they could not very well be refused admittance, still they were told how crowded it already is for the eleven who are now here, and the hope was expressed that they would not register until next year." School was conducted here only one year, 1861-62; the parsonage burned in 1865.

The second school year opened September 8, 1862, in Decorah, Iowa, again in temporary quarters, a building bought by Rev. V. Koren for $1,600.00 from Nathaniel Otis, which is now the St. Cloud Hotel. It is described as follows: "In the basement were the kitchen, the dining-hall, and the apartments for the matron and her maids. On the first floor were the president's apartments, and one class-room. The second floor contained a small office-room, two recitation-rooms, and two small bed-rooms, and in the top story there was a large sleeping-apartment with room for twenty-five beds." This, with school furnishings which were none too adequate, comprised the entire plant. A residence in West Decorah costing $950.00 was bought for Prof. Schmidt. This is the so-called Griswold house; it has been much remodeled and has always been some professor's home. Prof. Chr. A. Naeseth lived there for many years.

In June, 1862, Rev. V. Koren bought from Joseph Gibbons a thirty-two acre tract of land in West Decorah for $1,500.00. This is the original campus where Luther College now stands. Until the first building could be erected, school was conducted in the Otis Building during 1862-65. In 1863 a building was erected right west of this Otis Building at a cost of $1,400.63; it was ready for occupancy at New Year, 1864. Besides equipment for regular school work, the boys had a few pieces of gymnastic apparatus out in the open just north of the buildings.

Work on the first main building was begun in 1862. But for many reasons work was delayed. The corner-stone was laid June 30, 1864, and possession taken at Christmas-time, 1865. The estimated cost was $28,000.00; but when completed the building with several smaller buildings had cost $75,576.23. The building was of red brick and was "126 feet long; the main section 52 feet wide, and the wing 44. There is a basement 10 feet high, three main stories, 14, 13, and 12 feet, respectively; and while the third floor in the wing is 16 feet high with no attic above it, there is an 'attic story' 10 feet high in the main section with a large garret above. In the basement there are, besides a cellar, two kitchens for the boarding department, a dining-room with accommodations for 100, an apartment for the steward's family and kitchen help, and also two lavatories for students. Water is pumped from a cistern outside, and drained into a sewer. On the first floor are apartments for three professors—two with families—and a large reading-room. On the second floor there are eight class-rooms, and one guest-room for each of the two professors' families. On the third floor are four bed-rooms for thirty students, two hospital rooms, two reading-rooms, and, occupying the entire wing is a chapel which is also used for church services. Then in the so-called 'attic story' are four large bed-rooms for fifty-five students. On the second and third floors at the front in the main section are two rooms partitioned off, one of which might be used as a library, the other as a class-room. By utilizing all available space, the building will comfortably accommodate 100 students, together with the professors who live there; and, if only the president lives in the building, it will room 120. The rooms are light and airy, and also warm." There were wood stoves and kerosene lamps. The wing referred to here was the one at the north; the building was erected without a south wing, which was not added until 1874.

Several smaller buildings were erected at this time; but especially two of the same brick: one a bakery, now torn down, and the other a barn, later remodeled for dormitory purposes, known then as the "Chicken Coop", and now the museum. Then, too, there were some frame buildings—wagon-shed, work-shop, wood-shed, hay-mow, and suchlike. While the construction work was in progress, a piece of timber land was bought from which to secure fuel; after it had served this purpose, it was sold. Since there was no city water, a well was sunk (1863); later four large cisterns were made, and in 1866 a very large cistern was constructed and provided with a force pump to bring water through pipes to reservoirs on each floor for fire protection.

Considerable work was done on the grounds from year to year, much of it by students supervised by professors: trees were planted to supplement the many beautiful native trees, and soon there was a fine appearing campus. There was no gymnasium, and the boys practised gymnastics on some apparatus north of the building. Various activities demanded equipment; thus the first musical instrument bought was a piano in 1863 for $320.00, collected by the students under the supervision of Prof. Schmidt; a "Mason and Hamlin" organ was purchased in 1888 with $100.00 secured by the students at the instance of Prof. Haldor Hanson. Both instruments were destroyed in the fire of 1889.

From 1865 to 1867 the general equipment remained largely the same, except for reparations and incidental additions. In 1867 Rev. N. Brandt's three congregations built a parsonage for him on the campus; this brick structure was bought by the Synod and made college property. It is the residence which was in turn occupied by Prof. L. S. Reque and Pres. C. K. Preus.

In 1871 there was need of more dormitory space; about half of the brick building known as the "Chicken Coop"—60x20 feet, and of two stories—was remodeled for students' rooms, and gave room for eighteen students. This space had been used by kitchen help; now a frame building was built for them. It was later used as a trunk house. The work cost $800.00.

The additional space in the "Chicken Coop" proved only a temporary relief. The south wing of the main building, which was provided for in the architect's plans, was built during 1873-74. The corner-stone was laid June 6, 1873, the wing taken in use November 28, 1874, and dedicated December 2nd of the same year. A large bell now sounded from the tower for the first time; it was a gift from the students, who had collected money for it under the leadership of Bjørn Haatvedt (later Bjørn Edwards). In 1890 Mr. Edwards personally presented a large bell for the new main building. At this time various improvements were made. Again the "Chicken Coop" was remodeled to provide more dormitory room; the entire building except for a large music room was made into students' rooms, with space for thirty students. The dining-hall was enlarged, and the lavatory in the basement made larger. An addition was made to the bakery; an 80-foot well was dug and a wind-mill placed over it; a small barn was built, and to provide a suitable site for it, a little over two acres were bought at the southwest corner of the campus. This construction work, including the south wing, cost about $23,000.00. The south wing "is about 45 feet long and 55 wide. It has a good cellar, a basement which will serve as an apartment for the steward, and four floors of which the fourth story is a so-called 'attic story'. On the third floor there is a large reading-room, 44x26 feet."

The present First Norwegian Evang. Luth. Church building in Decorah, Iowa, was built in 1876 at a cost of $22,506.36. The Synod bore one-half this cost, thus giving Luther College half interest in the church property.

The library was housed in the so-called "tower room" (No. 15) on the second floor until 1884, when it was moved to three rooms on the first floor in the north wing. All the books were rescued during the fire in 1889 and moved to quarters in the "Chicken Coop". In 1890 they were placed in rooms provided for library purposes on the first floor in the south wing of the new building.

For many years there had been no gymnasium. The urgent need of one had long been keenly felt. Among other things the students had military drill. In 1885 fifty rifles were bought from the government for the company known as the "Luther College Phalanx", which had been organized in 1878 by J. L. Lee. The first gymnasium was built in 1886-87 with money collected by the students. Prof. Carlo A. Sperati was the moving spirit. It is the west room—75x42 feet, and 18-foot walls—of the present gymnasium, and cost about $1,800.00.

In 1885 equipment valued at $150.00 was added to the laboratory. Prof. O. Ramstad circulated a subscription list and secured $20.00, for which chemicals were bought.

Then on April 19, 1889, occurred a disastrous fire which completely gutted the main building. All students except the Seniors were sent away, and school was conducted in the "Chicken Coop", which also contained the library. During the following school year, in 1889-90, the work was carried on in quarters improvised during the summer. The gymnasium served as kitchen, dining-hall, and apartment for steward and hired help. There were four recitation rooms for the three preparatory classes in the basement of the Synod church; the college classes recited in "Schmidt's Hall"—the Griswold house. Rooms were rented in three other buildings, one of them the Arlington Hotel, now the Lutheran Publishing House; and Mr. L. E. Davidson generously gave the use of a large room in his home for reference books and reading-room.

Meanwhile work on a new building was plied with vigor. It was dedicated on October 14, 1890. The total cost was $51,210.00. This is the present main building. "It has the same foundation and in large part the same walls as the old building. It is 170 feet long, and in the middle part 52 feet wide, and 44 in the two wings. There are three full stories above the basement, and an 'attic story' which through its entire length has high and well-lighted rooms, all of which are very suitable for sleeping-rooms; most of them are even good study rooms. On the whole the new building has more room than the old. In the basement the old kitchen space is used for machinery for heating and ventilating purposes, while a room equally large on the east side now serves as a kitchen. The dining-hall is the old one; however, it is furnished with smaller tables, each for nine students, and there are chairs instead of the long benches; and with this new arrangement, 170 can be seated at one time. On the west side in the north wing there are six bath-rooms and one lavatory; on the east a store-room and a room for hired help. In the south wing there is an apartment for the steward's family, and for kitchen girls.

"On the left of the entrance on first floor is the president's office; and an inner room is the faculty room. The greater part of the south wing is occupied by the library and an adjoining reading-room. Otherwise there are on the first floor four class-rooms, four students' rooms, and an apartment for one unmarried professor.

"On the second floor are three class-rooms; one of them in the north wing, the largest in the building, has an inner room (later students' rooms numbers 27 and 28) which gives space for museum and laboratory. On this floor there are seven students' rooms.

"On the third floor are 31 rooms for students, and on the fourth 18. Thus there is a total of 60 students' rooms; they will accommodate 160 students, while last year there was room for only 130, an arrangement now made possible by the fact that all trunks are this year stored in a small building which was no longer really suitable for living quarters. Then, too, the ventilating system is now operated day and night, and most of the rooms are used both as study and sleeping-rooms.

"Besides the lavatory and bath-rooms in the basement, each floor has its own wash-room with hot and cold water, and sewer. As long as there is rain-water in the cisterns, it is available in the lavatories and bath-rooms; but at all times there is an abundance of city water. In various parts of the building there is also city water for drinking purposes.

"The architecture of the new building is quite different from that of the old; and most people consider it more beautiful. But even if opinion may differ about the outward appearance, there can be no question that as far as equipment is concerned the old cannot be compared with the new building. Everything is so much more comfortable and attractive. The halls are furnished with rugs, the windows with the very best shades (the so-called 'Venetian blinds'), the furniture neat and in good taste, the beds good, and there are wardrobes with an individual compartment for each student. The class rooms are equipped with the very best school furniture, and have blackboards of Pennsylvania slate on all four walls."

THE MUSIC PAVILION, 1891

There were especially two important improvements in the new building over the old—city water, and steam heat with a fan ventilating system. The first heating plant was built at this time. Prof. Larsen did not live in the new building, but moved into the so-called Driggs' residence, which was bought for $1,600.00 in 1890. This house has ever since been some professor's home, and is at present the home of Prof. S. S. Reque.

This splendid new building afforded very adequate accommodations, and for some time there was no great addition in equipment, except as facilities were improved and increased from time to time. In 1891 a music pavilion was built with money collected by

Rev. V. Koren in his congregations. It cost $300.00 and was placed about two hundred feet east of the gymnasium among the native oak trees. In 1893 the small building which had been the trunk house was given a new roof and remodeled to afford a room for music rehearsals; in it were also other rooms for general student gatherings. The "Chicken Coop" was again altered; two gables were built on the south side to give more light in a large upper room used for assembly purposes. New floors were laid and steam heat installed. The "Brandt Parsonage" was also remodeled, and Prof. Larsen moved in some time during the fall of 1893. In 1894 a small blacksmith shop was built as a lean-to on the machine shop.

The gymnasium was used as an auditorium, but the stage was very unsatisfactory. In 1895 a 22x16-foot stage was built, one which could be hoisted up against the wall; it was paid for by student subscriptions. During the vacation in 1895 the wooden steps at the rear entrance of the main building were replaced by cement stairs. The library space was extended to No. 4 at the north on the west side, which became the librarian's office.

In the summer of 1896 almost all the rooms on the third floor of the main building were replastered; the halls throughout the entire building were kalsomined, as were also the kitchen and dining-hall. A new floor was laid on the fourth floor. Telephone was installed. During the school year 1895-96 the museum was moved to the two east rooms downstairs in the "Chicken Coop"; and in 1897 it was extended to occupy also the adjoining north-west room. In 1898 the room which had been used for storing trunks also had to yield to the museum, so that the entire building, except the room used for music rehearsals, was occupied by the museum. A small frame building was built southwest of the main building for storing trunks. In 1899 the stage in the gymnasium was again enlarged; and a curtain was provided. In the summer of 1899 new cement steps were built at the front entrance. The same year electric lights were installed in the gymnasium and pavilion. And in 1899 a hospital of three rooms was erected, a gift of Hon. John A. Johnson of Madison, Wisconsin, in the sum of $1,000.00. It was built just south of the main building.

For many years now baseball had been played; the same ground was used for a diamond as now, but the boys batted toward the east. For many years there was no grandstand, but only simple bleachers. In 1900 track athletics were introduced. The boys themselves constructed and largely paid for a cinder track, and also supplied equipment.

In 1901 there was a marked improvement in that a private electric light plant was installed, the gift of the Alumni Association. The cost was $2,500.00. The gymnasium was enlarged in 1903 to three times its first size and became essentially the same as it is now, except for basketball equipment with a spectators' gallery on the east side of the east room. At this time, too—in preparation for the Fiftieth Anniversary Synod Meeting—the little building which houses the large spruce log was built inside the track to serve as a refreshment stand. Also for this occasion a massive arch was erected at the entrance to the campus. It is constructed mainly of two Ionic columns of the old court house in which services were conducted in the early days of the College.

Laboratory space had been provided in the new building. However, for some time the apparatus was rather meager. Prof. O. Ramstad left a legacy for laboratory purposes; additions were made, and the space afforded in Nos. 27 and 28 was becoming inadequate.

Under Prof. Haldor Hanson's direction as curator, the museum grew apace. In 1905 the entire "Chicken Coop", downstairs and upstairs, was given over to the museum. In 1906 the present baseball grandstand was built with money collected by the students. It cost about $650.00.

In the summer of 1907 the rear entrance was extended and the old steps replaced by a porch of brick and concrete. In the fall the Juniors and Seniors were given fine new study desks which took the place of the tables. New floors were laid in all three rooms of the gymnasium.

For some time there had been urgent need of more dormitory space. This was supplied when the Laur. Larsen Hall was built in 1906-07. It is "a commodious dormitory (center 50x40, two wings, each 90x40; all, three stories and basement) accommodating upwards of 200 students. It is a handsome structure; has very good fire protection (the same system as the Main Building); and is steam heated, electric lighted, and modern throughout. It has a dwelling apartment for a professor and family, class-rooms, a large room for the use of the bands and other musical organizations, offices, a chemical, and a physical laboratory, and a workshop for the manufacture and repair of scientific apparatus."

"The Chemical Laboratory, valued at about $3,500.00, is located in the west wing of the Laur. Larsen Hall. It is a well lighted room, and accommodates twenty students at one time. It is equipped with excellent tables, supplied with gas, water, and has individual hoods."

"The Physical Laboratory and class-room is located in the east wing of Laur. Larsen Hall. It is a large room with accommodations for about twenty students at one time. It is equipped with tables of approved design and supplied with all the most necessary apparatus. Additions are constantly being made to the equipment, the total value being now about $3,500.00."

THE LANE OF ELMS, 1910

"The Biological Laboratory, equipped with microscopes, slides, and reference books, to the value of over $1,000.00, is located in the Main Building."

The Laur. Larsen Hall made necessary the addition of another boiler to the two already in the heating plant; the coal bin was altered to provide for an overhead delivery of coal. To get dirt for filling around the new hall, a ridge of ground in front of the gymnasium was removed, much to the advantage of the preparatory boys' baseball diamond. The arch was set in concrete, somewhat remodeled and made strictly Ionic in design. A much needed store-room for apparatus was built as a lean-to on the north side of the gymnasium.

For some time now there had been two tennis courts within the track; but one was abandoned to give space for track work. In 1907 two splendid courts were built just north of the Reque house.

In 1909 were secured a Bush and Lane piano, a three-horse-power steam engine for the laboratory, a gift of the Lutheran Publishing House, $70.00 from the class of 1909 toward a motor for ventilating purposes in the chemistry department, and other equipment for the laboratories. A noteworthy acquisition in 1911 was the splendid Luther statue, a copy of the famous statue in Worms. It was presented by the pastors' wives, and cost $2,547.

There was a replanning of the campus in 1910; the greatest change involved the removal of a lane of elms in front of the main building to make space for a large open court. A knoll about midway between the main building and the baseball diamond was removed. In 1911 the Alumni Association voted to purchase an eight-acre wooded tract of land adjoining the campus on the east, and lying north of High Street. The class of 1911 presented five fine electric light posts; the graduates of 1912 gave a large oak table for the faculty room.

In 1912 the rest of the students' rooms in the main building were furnished with desks of the kind the Juniors and Seniors were given in 1907; and new teachers' desks were placed in the class-rooms. In both the buildings drinking fountains were placed on the first floor. At this time, too, Dr. Eli Lewison (Luther College, 1897) of Canton, S. Dak., presented a splendid pulpit and chair for the chapel. The old rows of chairs were removed and fine new opera chairs installed; these seats together with a metal ceiling and four attractive chandeliers were paid for by private subscription. An interesting addition to the museum collection in 1913 was the old historic log house which served as Dr. V. Koren's first parsonage on Washington Prairie, Iowa, in 1853; it was placed right east of the Reque house. A spacious band stand was built in 1913 in place of the old pavilion, which was torn down in 1912.

An important addition was a dining hall in 1916. It cost $18,000.00, which sum was largely furnished by the students—hence the name, Loyalty Hall. It is of red brick, 95x45 feet, two-story height, and has a large basement, is equipped with a modern kitchen and bakery furnishings, and accommodates about 250 persons. When it was erected—directly south of the main building—it was necessary to move the hospital, which was much enlarged and remodeled at the same time. The hospital has four separate wards, a kitchen, a nurse's room, a basement laundry, a disinfecting room, and other conveniences.

The musical equipment, practically all of which is the property of the Musical Union, has been steadily increased. In 1907 the valuation was $4,000.00; and in 1921 there were 130 hand instruments and other equipment with a total valuation of $15,000.00, exclusive of some orchestra instruments. The Musical Union also owns an extensive music library containing the very best music. Except for very liberal donations, the necessary money has come very largely from concerts given by the Luther College Concert Band and Glee Club.

Luther College has made an enviable record in athletics. The necessary paraphernalia are furnished by the students' Athletic Association and have now a valuation of $2,000.00.

From time to time—especially the last few years—considerable office equipment has been secured. Typewriters, both for offices and the Commercial Department, adding machine, mimeograph, and other things, have a combined valuation of $1,200.00.

In 1919 a tract of land, the size of a city block, lying south of High Street and east of the campus, was bought; and in 1920 the College acquired the old Preus house and lots—called the "Sunnyside Property"—for $6,500.00. The same year the so-called Driggs property was sold. The class of 1921 presented a very fine flag pole.

Space does not permit an account of all remodeling and reparation done at different times. Rooms and space have not always been used for their original purpose. However, it would be difficult to trace all such changes; and possibly it would be of no real interest or value. One very noteworthy thing in connection with the equipment is that so many things have been presented to the College through funds raised or donated by friends, students, and alumni.

Easily the finest building on the campus is the new Koren Library, which was dedicated on the 14th of October, 1921. The erection of this building had long been deferred. The library had long since outgrown its quarters in the main building, and several rooms on the first and second floors had been pressed into service for library purposes. Prof. K. T. Jacobsen, the present librarian, describes it thus in "College Chips" for October, 1921: "The Koren Library is situated on the east side of the campus a little south of the president's house. It is a modern adaptation of the Georgian style of architecture. The exterior is of pressed brick with stone facings and the rest of the construction is of reinforced concrete and other fireproof materials. The building is in three sections; the main section, 80x30 ft., containing two stories; the central portion, 60x21 ft., with three stories and basement; and the third section in the rear, 60x26 ft. The main entrance is on the west side, a passage-way formed by two rows of square pillars leading through the main portion of the building to the second section. The space on both sides of this passage-way will be used for museum purposes. On the first floor of the central portion is a receiving and work room, besides cloak rooms, and a hallway from which marble stairs lead up to the second floor. At the head of the stairs to the left is found the entrance to the reading-room, which occupies the whole of the second floor of the main portion of the building. It is large enough to accommodate 84 readers at one time. In the hall opposite the entrance to the reading-room is the delivery desk. The librarian's office occupies the north side of the second floor of this central section and on the south side is a small study room. The third floor of this central section will be used for museum purposes. The rear section is occupied entirely by the book stacks. It is equipped with the steel stacks of the Snead type and marble floors. The three lower tiers of these stacks have been built for the present and a fourth tier can be put in later when needed. The present capacity of the stacks if shelved tight is approximately 80,000 volumes, or, a library working capacity of between 50,000 and 60,000 volumes. One excellent feature of the building is that it is unusually well lighted. The reading-room has five large arched windows on the west side and one on each end, and the stacks are likewise very light, windows having been provided between each row of stacks on the east side and one on either end opposite the central aisle. Skylights give excellent light to the third floor central portion and to the delivery desk. For artificial light a system of semi-indirect lighting which gives a soft light for reading purposes has been installed in the reading-room and offices on the second floor, while a different kind of fixture giving a brighter light has been placed in the rooms to be used for museum purposes."

CHAPTER SEVEN

LIBRARY AND MUSEUM

KARL T. JACOBSEN

I. THE LIBRARY

THE beginning of the library goes back to the foundation of the College. At the meetings of the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (the body since 1865 known as the Synod for the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America), in June, 1861, one of the appropriations which was made for the school about to be established was the sum of one hundred dollars a year for two years with which to purchase books for the institution. Ever since that time an annual appropriation for the library has been made by the Church, the amount allowed being one hundred dollars for the first few years, two hundred dollars for the greater part of the time, and finally reaching the sum of three thousand five hundred dollars for the year 1921-22. From 1881 until 1917 the annual appropriation from the Church was augmented by an annual student fee, at first of twenty-five cents, later fifty cents, and finally one dollar for each student.

With the meager funds at its disposal, especially at first, the early growth of the library was not rapid. The first figures concerning the size of the library are those contained in the report of the librarian for 1881-82. In that year the library had reached a total of 3,505 volumes or an average of about 170 volumes a year for the first twenty years of its existence. Since that time its growth has been a little more rapid. In the following year (1882-83), which is the first time mention is made of the library in the catalog, the number of volumes given is 3,700 in addition to the "Mimer Library", a collection of books obtained by the voluntary contribution of the members of a student society. This last named collection was donated to, and incorporated into, the library in 1889, and by this addition, together with the regular accessions, the library had in that year reached a total of 5,800 volumes. By 1914 the number of volumes had reached a total of 18,500 in addition to about 3,000 pamphlets. In the fall of that year about 5,000 more volumes were added by the gift by friends of the institution of the so-called Bang Library. Since then several smaller collections have been turned over to the library, and these, together with the regular accessions and gifts from time to time, have brought the size of the library up to about 29,000 bound volumes and between 8,000 and 10,000 pamphlets and unbound books.

The special collections referred to above have all, with the exception of one, the Bang Library, been developed in connection with some organization at Luther. The first of these collections to be started was the above mentioned "Mimer Library". This collection was formed by a student society organized expressly for the purpose of obtaining more books along wider cultural lines, the funds of the library not being sufficient to obtain much more than the most needed reference works. The members taxed themselves one dollar each a year for this purpose, and in the fifteen or sixteen years of its existence (1873 or '74 to 1889) a total of upwards of nine hundred volumes had been collected. The catalog of this collection, printed in 1884, shows it to have consisted to a great extent of standard works of English, American, and Norwegian literature, some history and description, and a few books in the natural sciences. Of the organization of this society the late Reverend M. Langeland says in a letter of October 13, 1921: "Professor J. D. Jacobsen must be given credit for starting 'Mimer'". And Mr. K. G. Faegre in a letter of October, 1921, to Reverend I. B. Torrison, states that the first committee to select books for "Mimer" consisted of Professor Jacobsen, Professor O. G. Felland, himself, and one other student. Among later officers of the society was Dr. Ludvig Hektoen. As already mentioned, this collection was donated to the library in 1889.

By far the largest single collection secured by the library is the so-called Bang Library. This was bought from the estate of the late Bishop Bang of Norway by Hon. L. S. Swenson and other friends of Luther and donated to the library in 1914. The collection, consisting of approximately 5,000 volumes, is rich in Norwegian literature—especially the older—and history.

During 1920 the books collected by the student historical society "P. A. Munch", as well as the collection gathered by the Norwegian literary society "Normannalaget", were turned over to the library. The first of these, a collection of about 125 volumes, consists mainly of works of history and description, especially of the Scandinavian countries. The "Normannalaget" collection is confined almost entirely to works in Norwegian literature and numbers about 150 volumes.

The last of these special collections to be transferred to the library is the museum library. This transfer was recommended by the faculty in 1921 and approved by the Board of Trustees in order that the book resources of the institution might, as far as possible, come under one administration. This collection, while somewhat varied in character, contains a good many books by Norwegian-American authors and publishers. It numbers, aside from the newspapers which, for the present, are retained in the museum, something over 2,000 titles.

Just where the library was kept during the earliest years of its existence the writer has not been able to discover, but in the late seventies it was assigned space in the tower room on the second floor of the main building. From there it was moved in 1884, the catalog for that year tells us, "into more commodious quarters on the first floor of the main building". Here, in the northeast corner of the building, it remained until the fire in 1889, and its location was probably the only thing that made it possible to save it at that time, since this part of the building was the last to burn. For several hours during the night the students carried the books to the gymnasium until the 6,000 volumes which the library then contained had all been brought out of the burning building. While the main building was being rebuilt, the library occupied space in the building now for a long time used for the museum, but as soon as the main building was completed it was moved into the three rooms provided for it in the south end of the building. Before long it outgrew these quarters, however, and additional shelving space had to be provided by taking, first the east room opposite the librarian's office, and later two rooms in the northwest corner of the second floor for this purpose. Even with this additional space the quarters had become extremely crowded, and it was, therefore, a great relief when the library finally could be moved into its new home in the modern Koren Library and Museum Building.

The administration of the library was probably during the first few years vested in the president. At least there is no record available of any one having been designated librarian before Professor G. Landmark. Professor Landmark was a teacher at the institution from 1867 to 1876 and librarian most of that time.

KOREN LIBRARY, REAR VIEW, 1921

He was succeeded as librarian by Professor J. D. Jacobsen, who served as such from 1874 until his death, in 1881. In 1881-82 Professor O. J. Breda served as librarian, and he was succeeded by Professor H. Roalkvam, 1882-86, and Professor Emil Petersen, 1886-87. In 1887 Professor C. A. Naeseth was appointed librarian, and he served continuously as such until the summer of 1920, when he resigned and was succeeded by the present librarian, Karl T. Jacobsen. Before 1912 the position of librarian was combined with a regular teaching position, but in that year Professor Naeseth was relieved of the last of his classes. For the last ten years Professor Enoch Peterson has also given a good deal of time and energy to the library, acting as assistant librarian a large part of this period. While most of these men did not have any special library training, they all had special interest and qualifications for the position. To them, and to Professor Naeseth especially, much credit is due for building up so comprehensive and fairly representative a collection with the limited funds at their disposal.

That the organization of the library under the circumstances necessarily had to be somewhat neglected was only to be expected. The need of a better organization, especially as the collection grew, was, however, not lost sight of. In 1889 a classified printed catalog was first published. This was kept up to date as far as possible by manuscript entries in several copies until the late nineties, when it became apparent that some other system would have to be adopted. So in the spring of 1899 Mr. Torstein Jahr, '96, who was attending the Illinois Library School, was engaged to classify and catalog the library. With the help of Mr. Joseph Brorby, '99, and S. B. Hustvedt, '02, he classified according to the Dewey system the collection which at that time numbered some 10,000 volumes, and provided a dictionary catalog on cards. This task was performed in 1899 and 1900, mostly during the summer months. Since that time the catalog was kept up by the librarian as far as the limited time at his disposal for this work would allow. But with the lack of funds to get adequate assistance it was impossible for him to enter even the ordinary current accessions properly, not to mention the larger collections which have been added to the library the past few years. The result was a steadily growing accumulation of uncataloged and unclassified books, and the steady deterioration of the catalog. Since both the catalog and the classification needed a thorough revision and the accumulation of uncataloged books had grown so large, it was decided to reorganize on a new basis. As the Dewey classification has generally proved unsatisfactory for college libraries, the Library of Congress system of classification has been adopted as the basis of its arrangement. In the cataloging also the form in use by the Library of Congress is in general being followed, although the cataloging is not in all cases carried out in such detail. A beginning of this reorganization was made in the summer of 1919, when the present librarian, who was at that time connected with the University of Chicago Libraries, spent about three weeks in Decorah and with the help of Mrs. Jacobsen and Professor Enoch Peterson arranged the Bang Library, classifying and shelving a part of it and arranging the remainder roughly by classes. The reclassification could not be continued until after Christmas of 1920. Since that time all new accessions and most of the books in the reading room reference collection have been placed under the new system and fully cataloged. Books from the uncataloged collections are also being taken up as time allows. Doing the work in this way, the process is necessarily a slow one, especially with the small staff to which our present funds limit us; but it is felt that it is economy of time to do the work thoroughly so as to develop a system of bibliographical tools that will stand the test of time and serve to make the resources of the library available to the best advantage.

READING ROOM, KOREN LIBRARY

The greater part of the books in the library have been secured at the recommendation of the various professors for use in their respective courses, and its value as a reference collection for assigned reading is constantly increasing. Since the school in its curriculum emphasizes the humanities, the fields that are best represented in the library are literature, history, religion, and, to a somewhat lesser degree, the social and natural sciences. The library has also a fairly good reference collection containing representative works in various fields of knowledge, even such as are not represented in the college curriculum. This being a Lutheran school, considerable emphasis is being placed on securing the literature pertaining to this church and especially on obtaining as much as possible of the literature that has been published by and about the Norwegian Lutherans in America. The library has also made a beginning towards collecting and preserving literature illustrative of the culture and history of the Norwegians and especially of the people of Norwegian extraction in this country. It is the aim of the library to cooperate with the museum in making this collection as complete as possible.

In the future development of the library the greatest stress should undoubtedly continue to be placed on obtaining material most directly needed in the various courses so that the library may become even more than at present the workshop of students and instructors; the gaps in the reference collection should be filled and this made more comprehensive; our collection of Lutheran literature should be made more complete; the Norwegian and Norwegian-American collection should be made as exhaustive as possible; more emphasis might to advantage be laid on collecting material on local history and history of the Middle West; and last but not least, the organization already referred to should go forward as fast as circumstances will allow, not only that the resources of the library may be made better available, but also that the students may become acquainted with better bibliographic tools and get a better insight into the methods of independent research.

II. THE MUSEUM

In "Kirketidende" for February 23, 1877, Professor Laur. Larsen acknowledges the receipt of 600 birds' eggs for Luther College and at the same time mentions that a number of other articles had been received, forming the beginning of a museum.

The growth of the museum was evidently not very rapid, and it was not before 1890 that anything was done towards displaying the articles. In that year Professor Sibling was placed in charge, and with the fifty dollars at his disposal he had some cases made for keeping and displaying the various articles.

In October, 1895, Professor Haldor Hanson was appointed curator, and it was under his administration that the museum made the greatest headway. The extent of its growth the first five years it was under his charge can be seen from the report given in "Kirketidende" for May 23, 1900, from which the following is taken:

"One of the principal aims of the museum is to collect and preserve the Norwegian-American newspaper literature. It has now 518 complete volumes of various newspapers and a little more than that of incomplete volumes. In the museum library there are a little more than 2,000 volumes, most of them by Norwegian-American publishers.

The museum has a coin collection of 600 pieces, and a stamp collection of more than 4,300. In the collection of photographs can be found 124 photographs of Norwegian-American clergymen, teachers, and journalists, in addition to several groups; 180 photographs of churches, schools, and parsonages; 30 groups from Luther College, etc.

In the natural history section there are 150 stuffed birds, 38 fishes, 35 mammals; a small collection of insects, 975 birds' eggs, about 1,000 shells, 33 corals, about 200 specimens of minerals and quartz, several fossils, an herbarium of 500 specimens.

In the ethnological section there are more than 400 Indian relics such as arrowheads, tomahawks, bracelets, etc., about 100 articles from Alaska, a collection of weapons including poisoned arrows from the South Sea Islands, also several articles from Africa, China, and Japan. The Museum has laid special stress on securing and preserving articles illustrative of Norwegian life and culture.

A beginning towards an art section has been made, especially by the contribution of Mr. Gausta's large and splendid painting entitled 'Closing the Bargain'. A plaster cast of Apollo Belvidere has been donated by the classes '94, '95, '96, and '97."

Of articles mentioned since the time of this report may be specially noted the model of "Maihaugen", a collection of old buildings gathered together from various parts of Gudbrandsdalen to a large slope overlooking Lillehammer, Norway, and now forming the home of the celebrated "Sandvigske Samlinger". This model was donated by Reverend M. K. Bleken. Another article of considerable interest is the Hardanger bridal costume from 1754 displayed on an appropriate wax figure. Also quite a number of articles relating to Norwegian-American pioneer life have been added. Among these is the first parsonage occupied by Dr. and Mrs. Koren. This little log cabin has been moved from Washington Prairie and placed on the campus east of the president's house. The interior has been fitted up with furniture representative of that pioneer time. The Syrian collection, consisting of relics from a church built by the crusaders in the 11th or 12th century, oil lamps from the island of Cyprus, Turkish costumes and various other articles, is also worthy of mention. To the art section have been added two pieces of statuary—copies of the Borghesian fighter and of the Laocoon group—and various heads and masks; also a number of paintings, among which are the "Entrance to the Golden Gate" by N. Hagerup and "Winter Scene" by Alex. Grinager.

Professor Haldor Hanson was succeeded as curator in 1902 by Professor George Marklus, and when he left Decorah in 1906, Professors H. W. Sheel and M. K. Bleken were placed in charge.

The museum was first located in the northwest corner room of the second floor of the main building, but in 1895 it was moved to the small brick building northwest of the main building. At first it occupied only part of this building, but before long, even with the whole building devoted to its exclusive use, it became very much cramped for room and for a number of years past the articles received have had to be stored elsewhere.

THIRD FLOOR, KOREN LIBRARY
(Reserved for Museum)

Because of these conditions no special efforts have been made the last fifteen years to develop the museum to any great extent. But, with the space provided in the new Koren Library and Museum Building for housing a considerable part of the museum collection and thereby giving opportunity for further growth, steps have now been taken to place the management of the museum on a more permanent basis. The general direction of the museum has been placed in the hands of a permanent faculty committee composed of the head of the Scandinavian department, the librarian, and one member from the science department, the first named to be chairman of the committee and curator of the museum.

The books originally collected for the museum have been transferred to the library. The newspapers have, however, been retained in the museum with a view to having them form part of the collection of the Norwegian-American Historical Archives which it is the purpose of the present curator, Dr. Knut Gjerset, to form in connection with the museum. It is the purpose of the present management in the future development of the museum to stress even more than in the past those sections which are illustrative of the history and culture of the early pioneers of Norwegian extraction as well as Norwegian culture as a whole. In keeping with this it is Dr. Gjerset's plan, in the remodeling of the old museum building which will have to be done in the very near future in order to provide proper housing for that part of the collection that cannot be accommodated in the Koren Library and Museum Building, "to arrange a typical Norwegian living-room where articles preserved from pioneer days can be placed as they once stood in grandmother's own home. This will cost a little, but it will gladden many if it can be done. There will be found the loom and the spinning-wheel, the cupboard and the old chests; the fireplace with pot-hooks, pots, and copper kettles; the table with wooden vessels as in olden days; even the big Bible with the horn-rimmed spectacles between the leaves where the old grandmother read for the last time. The collection must be brought into such form that it breathes Norwegian life."

A CELEBRATION IN THE SEVENTIES

CHAPTER EIGHT

INCOME

K. O. EITREIM

NEARLY three-fourths of the income of Luther College during its sixty years of history has come from the church to which the school has belonged. The remaining one-fourth has come from the students.

For buildings and grounds about a half million dollars has been received, all of which has been raised by special subscriptions.

About $300,000 have been received for special purposes, mostly in the nature of endowments. $250,000 is a general endowment fund, of which James J. Hill gave $50,000 on the condition that $200,000 more be raised. This amount was subscribed by the people of the Synod and the subscription was completed in the year 1912.

Special gifts and legacies have been received as follows:

1. Halvor Olson Gjerjord, Stoughton, Wis., gave the sum of $7,343.23, the income of which is to be used for aiding "the most worthy and needy students at Luther College who are studying with the purpose and view of service in the ministry of the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church of America." This amount was received in 1882.

2. Martin Pederson, Winneshiek Co., Iowa, in 1884 gave $750, the interest of which is "to be applied yearly in assisting poor students who are from time to time preparing for the ministry of the Gospel in the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America."

3. Bergit Ellingson, Worth Co., Iowa, in 1891 gave $300, the income of which is to be used for the benefit of needy students who will prepare themselves for service in the Church.

4. Knut K. Neste, Jr., Decora, Iowa, in 1901 gave $800 "to be used to the aid of needy students at the discretion of the president as he may think advisable."

5. T. Thompson and wife, Vermilion, S. Dak. In 1905 their children gave in grateful remembrance of above-named parents the sum of $300, the income to be used "for the benefit of such students who contemplate the study of theology and need such assistance."

6. Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Johnson Hallan Legacy, Decorah, Iowa. $1,000 given in 1907. Income to be distributed by the president and secretary of L. C. and the pastor of First N. E. L. Church of Decorah "to such needy students of the College who intend later to enter the service of the Synod of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, and who in the opinion of the faculty are worthy of such assistance."

7. Anton Hegge, Garretson, S. Dak., gave in 1909 $400 and in 1910 $500, total $900. The income is to be distributed by the faculty to such needy and worthy students at Luther College who later study theology at the Seminary to serve the Church as pastors or teachers.

8. Ingeborg Gjerjord, Stoughton, Wis., widow of Halvor O. Gjerjord, in 1911 bequeathed $1,227.58 on exactly the same terms as the earlier legacy by her husband.

9. Captain T. A. Rossing, Bode, Iowa, in 1911 gave $10,000, the income of which (and, if necessary, the principal) is to be used "to aid young men who have been graduated or may be graduated from Luther College," "during their time of study either at Luther College or at Luther Seminary, or both," "who intend to enter the service of the Church either as ministers of the Gospel or as professors."

10. Mrs. Melaas, in 1913, gave $285, the income to be used to aid needy students who intend to become ministers.

11. Kitil Funer, Ridgeway, Iowa, in 1910, gave $200, the income to be used to aid needy students who intend to become ministers.

12. Gilbert and Marit Remmen, in 1914, gave $500, the income of which is to be used for assisting needy students.

13. M. J. Melaas, Stoughton, Wis., in 1914 gave $175, income to be used to assist students who intend to enter the ministry.

14. Caroline Busness, Decorah, Iowa, by bequest in 1916 gave $1,000 in cash and a residence property in Decorah valued at $1,500, the latter subject to possession by Mrs. Martha Hanson during life. The income is to be used for assisting needy students who intend to enter the ministry.

15. Ouden and Randine Evenson Legacy, La Crosse, Wis. This legacy, amounting to $1,641.70, came into our possession in 1916. "The interest of said money shall annually be used for the aid and support of one or more worthy farmers' sons studying at said College, providing they shall be in need of such aid and support. Preference in awarding the annual interest of said money shall be shown farmers' sons from the eastern district of said Synod."

16. Helga O. Hokaasen gave in 1916 the sum of $100, the income "to be used and expended by said trustees in rendering financial assistance to such students as in their judgment are in need of the same while enrolled and in actual attendance at the said College."

17. Mrs. Ragnhild Sandager in 1919 gave $500, the income to be used for the assistance of students preparing for the ministry.

18. The Laur. Larsen Memorial Fund amounts to $1,450, and the income is used for aiding students for the ministry.

19. Prof. Ola Ramstad of Luther College, who died in 1889, left a farm and some other property to be used by his parents while they lived and after their death to be given to Luther College. This property came into possession of Luther College about the year 1900, and the final proceeds amounted to $6,400. "The annual income thereof shall be expended by said Board of Trustees for facilitating the instruction in the natural sciences in said Norwegian Luther College."

20. The Endowment for Teachers' Salaries, amounting to $4,185, is made up of the following legacies and gifts:

Martin Madson Legacy, 1895.....	$ 800.00
Ole J. Hemma Legacy.....	125.00
Ole J. Broin Estate, 1913.....	1,000.00
B. Anundsen Estate, 1914.....	500.00
Gathered by Rev. E. I. Strom, 1917.....	1,310.00
Donations in 1918	215.00
Donations in 1919	235.00

21. In 1918 was received the R. Larson estate, amounting to $1,905, with no conditions attached as to how it was to be used.

It was the writer's intention to itemize the income of each of these funds and also to show how many students have been given financial aid, but time has not permitted this to be done.

The income from "special endowments" listed in the table from 1862 to 1877 was interest on the so-called "University Fund". The income was used for teachers' salaries, and the fund itself was expended for buildings.

After the receipt of the general endowment fund in 1912 a steady and substantial income has been received from this source. Most of the money is invested in farm mortgages and yields about six per cent interest. This fund should be enlarged, and in the near future it must be, in order to meet the requirements of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, of which Luther College is a member. It is to be hoped that the fund may before long be increased to a million dollars. While the school would yet be dependent in some measure upon the Church for support, the burden would not be so heavy as it necessarily is now. It would hardly be beneficial to either school or synod to be financially independent of each other.

The income from students at Luther College is comparatively small. Having as a primary aim to prepare candidates for theological study, the school has always held to the policy that such students should not be required to pay any large percentage of the cost of their education. The fees have therefore been set at the lowest possible figure. During the early years no fee was asked except $40 a year for board. Even this in the case of those who could not pay was covered by contributions for student aid. As will be seen by the table, such contributions have been made in 52 out of the 60 years. These contributions together with income from student aid funds have amounted to $56,356.54, an average of nearly a thousand dollars a year. The normal annual income for student aid at present is about $1,500.

Up to the year 1896 the school provided board for the students, and the major part of the income from students listed in the table for that time is for board. In 1897 the students began to run their own boarding club. The income from students after that time is itemized in the table.

We cannot vouch for the exact correctness of all the figures in the table, but in the main we believe they are correct. Except in recent years the accounts in large measure were kept by the Synod, and the annual reports which have been our main source of information do not always show clearly what applies to Luther College and what may apply to other institutions. This applies especially to "Building Funds", "Gifts for Student Aid," and "Contributions from Synod" in the table. This also necessarily applies in some measure to the chapter on Expenditures.

The amount appearing in the building funds column for 1921 represents the cost of Koren Library. This has not as yet been fully paid but is covered by subscriptions which will no doubt be paid. Money and subscriptions have been gathered for the library for several years, but no report had been made before. Hence it appears in the one sum.

CHAPTER NINE

EXPENDITURES

O. M. EITTREIM

THE following pages give a tabulation of the expenditures at Luther College year by year up to the school year 1921-22. As may be expected, the data available, at least for earlier years, are too meager to make an accurate separation under the headings given, but it has been the aim to make the distinction between capital and operating expenditures as sharp as possible. To make the figures available for study and comparison, a short explanation of the classification is given.

I. CAPITAL EXPENDITURES

All expenditures for new material and improvements which may be expected to last for several years and which thus add to the value of the school plant. This excludes repairs.

1. Buildings and Grounds

Column 1. Main building, including the added wing and the cost of rebuilding after the fire, the heating plant, the museum building, the gymnasium, the hospital, Laur. Larsen Hall, Loyalty Hall, and Koren Library.

Column 2. The College's share in the church in Decorah, and the various residences purchased by the College.

Column 3. Campus land, water mains, etc.

Column 4. Total of items in columns 1, 2, and 3.

2. Equipment

Column 5, 6, and 7. New equipment for the three laboratories, not including supplies.

Column 8. Library books only. Figures previous to 1880-81 are uncertain.

Column 9. Exhibits for the museum.

Column 10. Furniture, maps, horses and wagons, and, in general, all equipment items of which the specific classification is not known.

Column 11. Total of items in columns 5 to 9 inclusive.

II. OPERATING EXPENDITURES

Expenditures for materials used up or services rendered during the year, or, in general, items which do not add to the value of the plant.

1. Administration

Column 12. Except for the year 1920-21, for which a separation was worked out on a basis of hours taught, 10% of the total teachers' salaries is charged to administration. The items in early years also include rent paid by the Synod for teachers' residences.

Column 13. Total salary of teachers who acted as librarians. The figures are therefore in most years too high.

Column 14. Amount stated in reports as spent for "Printing and Stationery" and "Advertising". In the years for which figures are not given, they are no doubt included in the items in column 15.

Column 15. "Administration and Wages", traveling expenses, insurance, diplomas, and, in general, all administration items not known to come under columns 12, 13 or 14.

Column 16. Total of columns 12 to 15 inclusive.

2. Instruction

Column 17. 90% of total teachers' salaries, less column 13, librarian.

3. General Expense

Column 18. Care of buildings and grounds, repairs, "General Expense", exchange, interest, endowment fund expenses, fuel, light, etc. Up to the year 1896-97, the expenditures for "Husholdning" are also included. The "Husholdningskasse" was discontinued when the boarding club was organized.

4. Total Operating Expenditures

Column 19. Total of columns 12 to 18 inclusive.

5. Student Aid

Column 20. Early years also include some aid to students at St. Louis (at Concordia Seminary).

6. Total Expenditures

Column 21. Total of items in columns 4, 11, 19, and 20.

III. PER CAPITA EXPENDITURES AND CONTRIBUTIONS

Some of the items in the final table of "Per Capita Operating Expenditures and Per Capita Synodical Contribution" may need a word of explanation.

Column 22 is a duplicate of column 19 in the preceding table.

Column 24. The items carried out in the last two places, as 50,148 in 1869-70, for example, are the actual membership in those years. The items in which the last two digits are ciphers were estimated by plotting a curve and interpolating.

Column 25. The items in column 22 divided by the corresponding items in column 23.

Column 26. The items in column 22 multiplied by 100 and divided by the corresponding items in column 24.

Column 27. Total amount paid by students each year as given in Chapter Eight.

Column 28. Items in column 22 less the corresponding items in column 27.

Column 29. Items in column 28 divided by the corresponding items in column 23.

Column 30. Items in column 28 multiplied by 100 and divided by the corresponding items in column 24.

The figures for 1920-21, to make the record complete, include also the amount paid during 1921-22 on the 1920-21 deficit.

IV. BIBLIOGRAPHY

The expenditures for laboratory equipment and, after 1880, for library books were obtained from the accounts of the Luther College treasurer.

The number of students was obtained from Chapter Eleven.

The number of Synod members was obtained by Dr. O. M. Norlie, except those after 1917.

Teachers' salaries for 1888 to 1891 inclusive are from "Luther College", by G. Bothne.

All other figures are from the reports of the Synod treasurer and the College treasurer in the annual "Synodal-Beretninger."

CHAPTER TEN

THE FIELD OF LUTHER COLLEGE

H. O. TALLE

I. LOCATION AND BOUNDARIES OF FIELD

THE northern half of Northwest Territory and of Louisiana Purchase has always been the region from which Luther College has gotten the majority of its students. That fact is not strange. The great bulk of Norwegian population is found in this region. Since the Scandinavian countries enjoy the distinction of holding first honors in literacy in the whole world, it is but natural that the immigrants from that quarter of Europe should be concerned about the education of their children. These immigrants were a God-fearing people. It is therefore only natural that they should desire that their sons be trained in the Christian doctrine and for the Lord's work. Accordingly, Luther College was founded to serve especially the people of Norwegian birth and of Lutheran faith in America.

The field of Luther College has never been limited to any part or locality of the Church. There are five reasons for this: first, it is the pioneer school of the former Norwegian Synod; second, it was the only boys' school of the Norwegian Synod, as it is of the new church body to which it now belongs; third, it was founded as a pro-seminary school to serve the whole Church; fourth, it is, as it always has been, uniquely classical, and rightly so, if it is to be a real pro-seminary school; and fifth, it has always been supported by a synod, and as a synodical school its appeal has been to a field as wide as that of the synod which has governed it. For these reasons it can truly be said that the field of Luther College is, and always has been, identical with the constituency of the synod which has supported it, specifically, and with the Norwegian people in America, generally.

The expansion of the field of Luther College cannot be accounted for without reference to that unparalleled phenomenon in our history—the Westward Movement. New acquisitions of land had increased our national domain from less than a million square miles in 1790 to almost 3,000,000 square miles in 1860. By far the greater part of this new territory lay west of the Mississippi.

Small wonder then that this land of promise and opportunity should call many immigrants from the Northland. And small wonder too that the Norwegian immigrants, who have always eagerly grasped opportunities to acquire land, should answer the call of the far-flung prairies of the Northwest, where the major portion of the Norwegian population of our country is found today. The Norwegian immigrants who settled in these parts were in truth pioneers. The first white settlers came to Winneshiek County in 1848, not much over a decade before the founding of Luther College. It was a Norwegian Lutheran pastor, the Rev. Nils O. Brandt, who performed the marriage ceremony of the first white couple to be married in Winneshiek County. That was in 1851. Marvelous has been the development of this section of the United States since that day.

The frontier line in 1860 ran west through central Michigan and Wisconsin, and into central Minnesota, where it turned southward and, except for points in Kansas and Texas, did not go west of the 97th meridian. Extension of settlements was just begun beyond the Missouri River. The pioneer farmer was displacing the herdsman, even as the herdsman had already displaced the hunter and trapper. In their movement westward, the immigrants followed the rivers wherever they could. In fact, transportation was largely by water throughout our whole country in 1860. There were but 30,626 miles of railroad, only 6 per cent of which was west of the Mississippi, despite the fact that railroads touched that river at ten different points then. The "Encyclopedia Americana" gives our aggregate length of mileage in 1917 as 265,000 in round numbers, or about two-fifths of that of the entire world. The first trans-continental railroad was not completed before 1869. Connection with the Pacific by telegraph was not established until 1861. The National Bank Act was passed in 1863, in an effort to bring order out of chaos in monetary matters in our country. Only 4,536,475 people lived west of the Mississippi, or one-seventh of our population at that time. Greater New York has now 1,083,573 more than that. Now, 31,689,445 live west of the Mississippi, or 30% of our total population. More people live west of the Mississippi today than were found in our whole country in 1860. Most of the people lived on farms. Only 16.1% of the people lived in cities of 8,000 or more. Consequently, 83.9% of our entire population was rural, although it should be said that many towns of less than 8,000 people had distinct urban characteristics. This condition will soon be reversed. The farms were large, the average being 199.2 acres as against 138.1

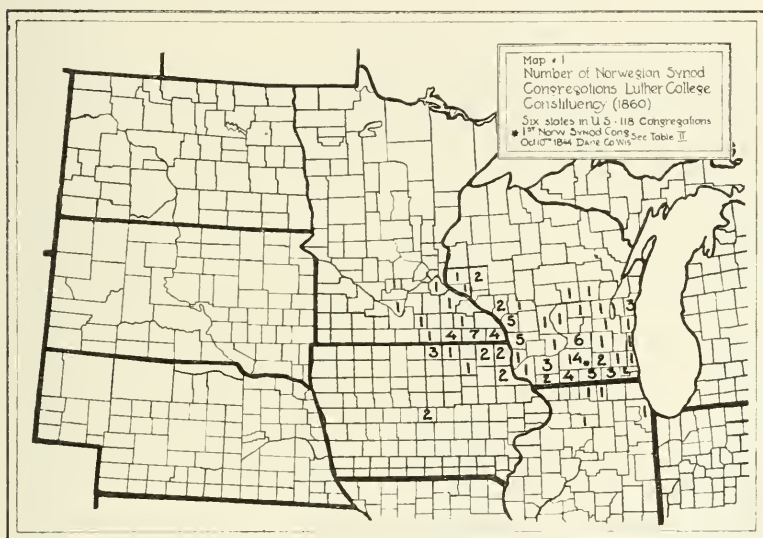

acres in 1910. The cities were small. In 1860 only 9 cities had a population of 100,000 or more; only 141 had a population of 8,000 or more. In 1920 these had increased to 68 and 924 respectively. 20 of these 68 are west of the Mississippi. Chicago was a city of 109,260 people; Detroit, of 45,610; Cleveland, of 43,410; and Milwaukee, of 45,240, in 1860. Six Chicagos of that day could find room in present day Minneapolis and St. Paul. The Twin Cities have a population equal to 13 Milwaukees of 1860 with a remainder as large as was the population of Portland, Maine, in the year that Luther College was founded. Detroit is now our fourth largest city, and yet 13 Detroits of 1860 could be placed in the modern Twin Cities and leave room for Fargo, North Dakota. But the Twin Cities were small in 1860. Minneapolis had 2,564 people and St. Paul had 10,401. Modern Decorah could include Minneapolis of 1860 and still have room for a town of 1,500 inhabitants. The rate of postage was determined largely by distance, 1, 3, 5, 10, and 12 cents being the rates authorized. Only 216,370,600 ordinary postage stamps, or 7 per capita, were used in 1860. A postal bulletin for May, 1922, gives the number of stamps used in one fiscal year now as 14,000,000,000; the number of stamped envelopes, as 2,700,000,000; and the number of postal cards, as 1,125,000,000, a total of 17,825,000,000, or 170 per capita. The postal revenue per capita in 1861 was $.26; in 1921, it was $4.28. The number of people per square mile in 1860 and in 1920 is shown in the following table for the four states which were the actual field of Luther College in the year of its birth:

Iowa.....	12.1	43.2
Illinois.....	30.6	115.7
Minnesota.....	2.1	29.5
Wisconsin.....	14.0	47.6
United States.....	10.6	35.5

The Dakotas were a territory in 1860 and had less than one-tenth of one person per square mile. North Dakota has now 9.2 persons per square mile and South Dakota has 8.3. Thus it is seen that time has wrought many changes during these sixty years. And it may be truthfully said that the development of the great Northwest into an important grain and mineral-producing area is in no small measure due to the tireless toil of the Norwegian immigrant farmer. To the pioneer preacher is no less credit due. Such names as Brandt, Koren, and Preus must forever be associated with the development of our country in the upper Mississippi Valley.

Since Luther College was founded by the Synod for the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran Church in America, its constituency in 1861 was the congregations of that church body. These congregations were located in four states, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, and Minnesota. A glance at Map I will reveal that southern Wisconsin had by far the greater part of these, or equal to two-thirds of the total. In northeastern Iowa, where Luther College was located in 1862, there were only 13 congregations in 1860. There were but 4 in Illinois, and 22 in Minnesota. But Wisconsin had 76, making a total of 115 for these 4 states. It is true that the real total was 118, because New York had one congregation and Missouri had two, but they could not be counted on for support with any degree of assurance. It became the duty of the congregations in four states then to build and maintain Luther College. By referring to Table II the reader may note the number of congregations the College has had to depend upon, in 1860, in 1880, in 1906, in 1917 when the merger of the three Lutheran church bodies which now constitute the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America took place, and in 1920 when that merger had existed for three years and Luther College was entering upon its sixtieth year.

When one notes that there were only 16 students in attendance at Luther College in the year of its founding at Halfway Creek parsonage, La Crosse County, Wisconsin, the conclusion may be drawn that the 115 congregations which supported it were a very slender reed on which to lean. But it must be remembered that the College was founded under the rather unfavorable conditions that have been mentioned above, that the stirring days of civil strife were at hand, that it entailed no small sacrifice to attend college in those times, and that an infant college, like an infant industry, must weather its childhood before it inspires the confidence of the majority.

The number of congregations that were in each county in the states where the former Norwegian Synod was active in the years 1860 and 1880 is shown in Table III. These facts have been arrived at by noting the date of founding of each congregation listed in the "Norsk-Lutherske Menigheter i Amerika", Volumes I and II, with the aid of the work, "Norsk-Lutherske Prester i Amerika". The data for 1906 were taken from the report of the U. S. Census entitled "Religious Bodies, 1906", and for the years 1917 and 1920, from the "Lutheran World Almanac". It is interesting to note that Winneshiek County, Iowa, increased its number from 2 in 1860 to 10 in 1880; that Dane County, Wisconsin, led with 14 in 1860; that Trempealeau County, Wisconsin, increased its number from 2 in 1860 to 15 in 1880; and that Freeborn County, Minnesota, had only 1 in 1860 but 10 in 1880. Wisconsin soon yielded first honors to Minnesota in the number of congregations, as the great Westward Movement caught the Norwegians in its sweep, and that state has continued to be the hub of the Norwegian Lutheran Church.

When President Lincoln signed the Homestead Bill in 1862, it became comparatively easy to acquire land. The constituency of the Norwegian Lutheran Church is now, and always has been, largely rural. In 1907 the Norwegian Church distribution was as follows: city—8 per cent, town—23 per cent, and rural—69 per cent. The cheap land was therefore eagerly taken, and it may be noted on Map II that Luther College was soon to find itself on the outskirts of its constituency. In their advance westward the Norwegian immigrants followed such rivers as the Minnesota, the Missouri, and the Red River of the North. Minnesota had in 1880 (see Table II) 221 congregations, or over a hundred more than had the entire Synod in 1860. All of these were west of a line drawn from the southeast corner of the state to the northwest corner. Wisconsin had 167; Iowa, 91; and Illinois, 22, in 1880. Great progress was made in the Dakotas, in Kansas, in Nebraska, and in California. The total number of congregations in 1880 was 683. Ten of these were in Canada, leaving 673 for the United States. These 673 were in 23 states of our Union. A good beginning had been made in Texas, which had 7 congregations. Scarcely a county in southern Minnesota lacked a congregation, and by far the greater number had more than three. During this score of years the constituency of Luther College expanded to no small degree. The Norwegian Synod spread its influence in all directions, but especially toward the west. It was active in 17 states where it had no congregations twenty years earlier. Only six of these, including Pennsylvania, border on the Atlantic. Such was the progress, despite the grasshopper pest and money panic of the 70's, forces which keenly affect a rural population.

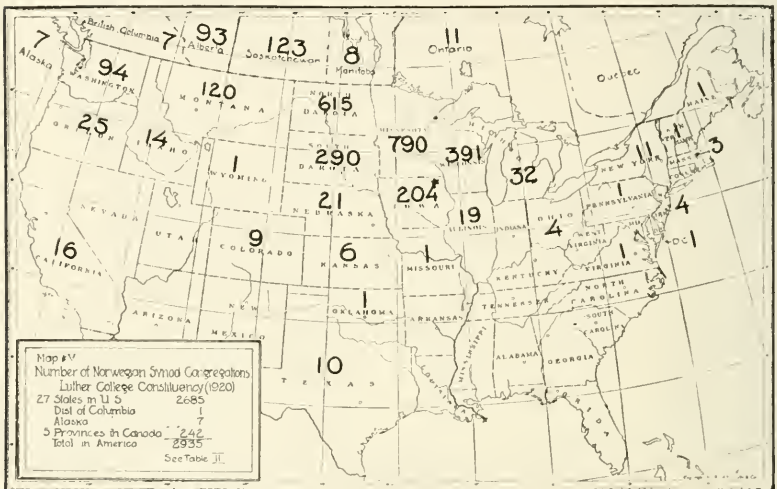

MAP IV. FIELD OF LUTHER COLLEGE IN 1917

In 1906 the number of congregations in Minnesota (see Table II) had increased to 302; North Dakota, which had climbed to second place, had 181; Wisconsin had 147; while Washington, which had only 1 in 1880, had 47 in 1906; and Montana, where no congregations were in existence in 1880, had 24 in 1906. The sphere of activity had been increased to embrace 940 congregations. The decrease in the states of Iowa, Wisconsin, Illinois, Nebraska and Kansas was caused by the division in the Norwegian Synod which took place in the 80's. But the decrease in those states was more than compensated for by the rapid strides made in the western states. (See Map III).

Eleven years later (1917) occurred the merger of three Lutheran church bodies, the Hauge Synod; the United Lutheran Church; and the Norwegian Synod. The data given in Table II for the year 1917 are for the Norwegian Synod only. It is clear that the impetus of a decade earlier continued with unabated vigor. Minnesota had 317 congregations; North Dakota, 234; South Dakota, 80; Washington, 55; Montana, 51; and in Canada, Saskatchewan had 17, and Alberta had 23. The field of Luther College had been increased so as to embrace 1,119 congregations located in 24 states, in District of Columbia, in Alaska, and in Canada. But the mainstay of the College was then, as before, the great Northwest. (See Map IV).

In 1920 Minnesota had 790 congregations; North Dakota, 615; Wisconsin, 391; South Dakota, 290; Iowa, 204; and Montana, 120. It will be noted that the merger occasioned considerable increase in the states where there was a decrease in the 80's. The total number of congregations in the Church in 1920 was 2,935. Map V shows their distribution by states, as do Maps III and IV for the years 1906 and 1917. Thus it is seen that the constant shifting of population westward has had the effect of leaving the College in the southeast corner of its constituency.

II. NORWEGIAN POPULATION IN THIS FIELD

It is estimated that there are now 2,213,922 people of Norwegian extraction in our country. The number was very much smaller in 1860. The estimated figure is 50,000. Table IV gives approximate data regarding Norwegian population in the field of Luther College by decades:

Nearly 80% of this population is found in the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, Illinois, Iowa, and South Dakota, ranking in the order named. Minnesota alone has 30% of the Norwegians in the United States. Table V gives the population and the percentage of the total, in the states named above:

III. CHURCH POPULATION IN THIS FIELD

It has been shown above that there are today 2,213,922 people of Norwegian extraction in the United States. In 1920 there were five Norwegian Lutheran Synods in America—the Norwegian Lutheran Church, with 425,065 members; the Lutheran Free Church, with 45,000 members; the Eilsen Synod, with 1,600 members; the Church of the Lutheran Brethren, with 2,000 members; and the Norwegian Synod of the American Evangelical Lutheran Church, with 6,425 members. The average size of the congregations in the Norwegian Lutheran Church was 145 members, in 1920. The church constituency of Luther College is then numerically about one-fifth of the estimated total Norwegian population in the United States.

IV. COMPETING SCHOOLS IN THIS FIELD

But Luther College is not the only Lutheran college serving this constituency. Table VI, which has been compiled from information given in Bureau of Education Bulletin No. 34, 1920, with data collected in 1917-18, shows that there are in the 12 states where the majority of Norwegians are found a total of 19 Lutheran colleges and professional schools. Among these 9 are Norwegian Lutheran colleges, 5 of which are junior colleges. These 9 colleges are: Luther College, Decorah, Iowa; St. Olaf College, Northfield, Minn.; Concordia College, Moorhead, Minn.; Augustana College, Sioux Falls, S. Dak.; all of full college grade; and Waldorf College, Forest City, Iowa; Canton Normal School, Canton, S. Dak.; Pacific Lutheran College, Parkland, Wash.; Spokane College, Spokane, Wash.; and Central Wisconsin College, Scandinavia, Wis., all junior colleges. Nine colleges for a population of 425,065 are not too many, if those who should attend these schools really attend them. In 1913 there were 7,685,618 people in the United States between the ages 19 and 22—of college age. 201,230 attended college. That is, 1 out of 38 of college age attended college. Only 1 Norwegian out of 108 of college age attended a Norwegian college. Of the Norwegians who did go to college 18% attended Norwegian Lutheran colleges, 82% attended other colleges. In 1913 there were 7,624,153 people between the ages 15 and 18, of high school age. 1,366,822 of these attended some secondary school. That is, 1 out of 6. Only 1 Norwegian out of 49 attended a Norwegian academy. Of the Norwegians who did go to secondary schools, 12% attended Norwegian Lutheran academies, 88% attended public high schools. In 1920 the estimated Norwegian population of college age was 172,686 and the estimated population of college age within the Norwegian Lutheran Church was 33,155. Notwithstanding that there are four Norwegian Lutheran colleges—Luther, St. Olaf, Concordia and Augustana—competing for patronage, there are evidently students enough for each school. In 1920 the estimated Norwegian population of academy age was 174,899, and the estimated population of academy age within the Norwegian Lutheran Church was 33,580. Notwithstanding that the Norwegian Lutheran Church has 18 academies taking care of this field, they could have from 2,000 to 10,000 students each. These 18 schools are, in the order of their foundation: Augustana (1860), Luther College Preparatory (1861), Red Wing Seminary (1879), Luther Academy (1888), Central Wisconsin College (1890), Concordia College (1891), Madison Normal (1892), Park Region College (1892), Jewell College (1893), Pacific College (1894), Pleasant View College (1896), Clifton College (1897), Gale College (1901), Waldorf College (1903), Spokane College (1907), Camrose College (1911), Outlook College (1915), and Canton Normal (1920).

There is everywhere a growing conception as to educational needs. Civilization keeps on growing in complexity. Industrial life becomes more and more specialized. The greater complexity and specialization demand a more extended and specialized training. The length of the school life of the average person has increased from a total of 82 days in 1800 to a total of over 1,200 days in 1920. The high school has become the people's college. The number of youth that attend high schools has increased by leaps and bounds. In 1890 only 5 per 1,000 attended secondary schools, public or private. In 1910, 12.3 per 1,000 were in attendance; in 1918, 19.1 per 1,000. There has also been an increase in college attendance. In 1890 the college attendance was 72,460, or 1 out of 868 of the population; in 1900, the college attendance was 115,271, or 1 out of 659 of the population; in 1910, the college attendance was 184,712, or 1 out of 498; in 1918, the college attendance was 290,106, or 1 out of 355.

There is every reason to believe that the attendance at high schools and colleges will increase still more. In 1913 Congress appointed a National Commission on Vocational Education. This commission reported that in 1910 not one per cent of the people engaged in agriculture, manufacturing, and mechanical pursuits had been trained for their callings. The commission advocated that each person should be given three years of secondary school training, or five years more training than the average man at present has received. If the dreams of the educators are ever realized, every youth will get at least a secondary school education.

As a financial investment, it has been proved that it pays to "train up a child in the way he should go." The average cost of a man's education in the United States has been estimated by Sargent ("American Private Schools, 1922") to be $252. The average cost of the education through the high school is $515. The difference between the two is $263. At 21 the average person has a prospect of living until 65. If the additional cost of education—$263—is distributed over the 44 years of life before him, it will amount to about $6 a year. The U. S. Bureau of Education has issued a bulletin showing the money value of education. From this we quote merely the statement that "every day spent in school pays the child Nine Dollars". Since the people are awakening more and more to see the financial gain, as well as the cultural value of a higher education, there will always be a large field of usefulness for Luther College. It is a thoroughly American school and can serve the general public as well as Norwegian-Americans.

Luther College should be able to meet the competition that confronts it on every side. The founders of Luther College were university men who planned to erect a school of the highest type. Luther College has always kept up to the highest standards of the times, has maintained the Christian religion as the core of its curricula, and adjusted its other subjects to harmonize with the best practices of the day. Its courses are arranged to meet the wants of its constituency. The Preparatory Department is built on the junior-senior high school plan, reaching down to the eighth graders and providing instruction even for those who can not qualify for high school entrance. The college curriculum is not only in the best sense pro-seminary, but also pre-professional, offering a liberal amount of electives and preparing for any standard profession.

Table VII shows the competing colleges in 1861 and 1921, in the 12 states of greatest Norwegian population:

This tabulation includes the colleges, universities, and professional schools that are listed in Bureau of Education Bulletin No. 34 for 1920. To that list have been added the five Norwegian Lutheran junior colleges and the Norwegian Lutheran colleges at Moorhead, Minnesota, and Sioux Falls, S. Dakota. Upper Iowa University at Fayette, Iowa, has also been added. The German Lutheran Theological Seminary at Dubuque is not included in this table, though theological seminaries are included for some of the states.

The foregoing table is summarized in Table VIII. The totals for each state are given without reference to control:

There were 46 colleges in existence in these 12 states as competitors of Luther College in 1861 that still are its competitors. But the sixty years that have passed have added many new ones so that the total is now 160 in these states of greatest Norwegian population. To this number should be added the hundreds of public high schools, which are by all odds the strongest competitors, not only of church secondary schools like the Luther College Preparatory Department, but also of church higher schools, in that they naturally direct their graduates into the state universities rather than the church colleges.

Of the 672 colleges, universities, and professional schools listed in the bulletin previously mentioned, only 244 were founded prior to, or during, 1861. Among these is Luther College. Fourteen of our states had no higher schools at that time. Many of the present state schools arose through the provisions of the Morrill Act of 1862, when Luther College had done a year's service. The 14 states having no higher institutions were all west of the Mississippi River, except Florida and West Virginia. Of the 34 states that did have higher schools, only 9 were west of the Mississippi. These 9 states had in all 35 higher institutions of learning, including Luther College. There are, then, only 34 higher institutions still in existence which were the competitors of Luther College in 1861, in the states that comprise the western half of our country. Indeed it can with truth be said that Luther College is a pioneer college.

In conclusion, Luther College had but a small field to look out upon in the year of its founding. It proved its worth, grew with our country, and with increasing years came better days. It will always be a monument to the Norwegian people in America, but especially to those who gave of their time and substance to make it succeed. Daniel Webster once said of his Alma Mater, Dartmouth College, which has now grown to be a large institution: "It is a small college, but there are those who love it." Luther College is not large, if measured by the attendance yardstick; it is a great school, however, if measured by its aims and ideals, its principles and practices, the character of its men and the extent of its good influence. But, be it termed large or small, according as mens' minds differ, "there are those who love it", and who are willing to sacrifice in order that generations to come may learn to love it.

I. ATTENDANCE, BY YEARS

THE total enrollment at Luther College for the sixty-one years of its history, counting the student each year he was enrolled, is 10,230, which gives an average per year of approximately 168 students. The number of graduates, including the class of 1922 of 34 members, is 835.

*Some of the students who first entered Luther College in 1912-13 have not yet completed their study of theology; the same is the case for the following years; it is thus too early to calculate the percentage of ordinations for these years. For a similar reason the percentage of graduates cannot yet be computed for the years after 1913-14. The members of the Senior Class of 1921-22 are counted as graduates in the above table.

ORGANIZATION

L. A. MOE

I. THE EDUCATIONAL SETTING

1. Denominational Colleges

BROADLY speaking, there exist in the American educational system of to-day three distinct types of the American college: the college that depends upon the church for support; the college that depends upon the state for support; and the college that depends upon the individual or the general community for support. The first type is the purely denominational college. It represents the intimacy of the relation existing between religion and learning, a relation historic and vital. The second type is that of the state university. This type embodies the idea that the whole body of the people is concerned in the securing of a sufficient number of well trained citizens to insure the efficiency and perpetuity of the state. The third type is the endowed, non-sectarian college, such as Columbia or Harvard, which stands for independence, a most precious condition for the promotion of scholarship and for the development of character. It is to the first of these types that Luther College belongs.

The score or more of denominational colleges which exist in some western states were founded by the churches in the pioneer days as instruments for denominational upbuilding. The establishment of state-supported and state-controlled universities in the commonwealths organized after the close of the eighteenth century by no means put an end to the establishment of colleges upon religious foundations. Denominational zeal was very strong in the decades preceding the Civil War, and the church was the center of community life in the newly settled regions. For long years the small sectarian colleges were the only schools with any pretense to advanced grade in the West, but with the passing of time and the current growing ever stronger against sectarianism, many of these small colleges were forced to close their doors. A few of the best types were able to adjust themselves to the new conditions, and this only by the most conservative policy, and the gathering of endowments.

WILLIAM JENNINGS BRYAN
in Decorah
(Dr. Larsen in the background)

Luther College was founded just as the feeling against denominational schools began to show itself. The contest was wide-spread and often exceedingly bitter, but Luther College remained aloof and took no part whatsoever in these perplexing debates. And it was well that it held aloof. A unified course of study with a narrow range of electives introduced in later years made it possible for the College to do its work thoroughly and well. Had the institution broadened its courses, introduced a wide range of electives, and thus popularized its offerings, there would have been danger of its elimination, even though for a time it might have presented a more imposing front. But Luther College never for a moment faltered in its purpose. Its conservatism has been its salvation.

2. The State System

The establishment of a universal system of education was inevitable. The advance of the Republic created a need, and the breaking open of the great West opened the way for a new educational order of things. The great influx of immigrants from Europe, beginning in the later forties, made necessary an extremely democratic system of schools, wholly free from partisanship or sectarianism.

The federal Constitution contains no mention of schools. The United States has been and is powerless to control and does not assume to manage the educational interests of the people; the states have full authority to do so. Matters educational have been left strictly in the hands of the states. The federal government, it is true, by land grants and otherwise has encouraged the establishment of institutions of learning, and maintains a Bureau of Education with a commissioner at its head to make surveys and annual reports to the various educational organizations throughout the country.

In the absence of any federal authority, the states began early in the nineteenth century to provide for a general system of education, ascending in regular gradation from township schools to a state university. The colleges and academies were supported by tuition. Tuition was to be gratis in the state schools, which were to be supported by taxation.

The university fixes the plane of the high school, and the high school in turn, determines the character of the elementary schools. The university has also developed graduate and professional courses to provide for research work in every field. Thus the strength of the state system of schools is in its continuity, and in the gradual spread of its courses of study to accommodate the needs of the many in preparing for the professions. Allowing eight years for the elementary school, four for the secondary schools, four for the college course, and four for the professional course, the child who entered school at the age of six will complete his professional education at the age of twenty-six.

3. Relation of the Denominational Colleges to the State

The changes that have been taking place from time to time in the state system will sooner or later affect the colleges. The colleges have for some time felt the weakness of the church system in not being able to establish and develop parochial schools and academies, so as to give the system continuity. Not being able to maintain such parochial schools and academies, on a large scale, the denominational college must lean on the state high schools for support in the way of attracting students. The necessity of connecting up with the high schools from below has a tendency to bring the denominational college into close contact with the state system. Luther College has been awake to this situation, and as early as 1881 began a lengthening of the preparatory course downward so as to connect up with the elementary schools. At the same time the college has developed a liberal arts course, the equal of the arts course of our foremost universities with the added advantage of religious instruction. Upon the completion of the college course, the student receives the degree of bachelor of arts.

The tendency of the state system at the present day is toward the establishment of the junior high school and the junior college, a plan which aims primarily at the shortening in years of the entire system to enable capable students with initiative to enter the professions earlier than is possible under the present plan. The junior college movement is especially popular, and bids fair to spread in this day and age when education is advancing by leaps and bounds. The tendency of the high schools to reach up and do two years of college work, and of the universities to connect up with the junior colleges endangers the future of the present-day small college. Although Luther College occupies a unique position among the schools of the Church, and stands high in the estimation of the educational circles of the day, still it is of the utmost importance that a careful study be made by those who have the welfare of the institution at heart of the conditions which sooner or later may threaten the continuance of the institution. The relation of the denominational college to the state system has not been wholly solved.

SENATORS KNUTE NELSON AND W. B. ALLISON AT LUTHER COLLEGE

II. ORGANIZATION OF LUTHER COLLEGE WITHIN THE CHURCH

Luther College was incorporated under the law of the State of Iowa, February 1, 1865. The articles of incorporation, as revised in 1917, placed the institution under the direct control of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America. The articles provide that the Church Council shall constitute a Board of Visitors, who are to visit the College and report the results of their observation to each annual meeting of the corporation. The articles of incorporation also provide for a Board of Trustees, eight in number, whose principal duty is to look after the buildings and other property of the College. The members of the corporation are the pastors of the congregations connected with the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America and the representatives of said congregations at the triennial meetings of said Church. The president, secretary, treasurer, and Board of Trustees shall be elected triennially at such time and place as said Church shall hold its regular meeting. The regular meeting of the corporation is to be held at the same time and place. The president of the corporation is ex-officio president of the Board of Trustees and of the College.

In 1917 the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America created a special department of education. The Board of Education acts for the church-body in all matters pertaining to the educational institutions of the Church. The Board of Trustees of Luther College, accordingly, is subject to the Board of Education, which in turn serves as a Board of Visitors, and is responsible to the church-body for the conduct of the church schools.

III. ORGANIZATION OF LUTHER COLLEGE WITHIN ITSELF

1. President and Faculty

The College as organized locally is headed by the president and the college faculty. In early years the entire burden of administration fell upon the shoulders of the president, who in addition to his work as administrator also carried a heavy teaching load. To a certain extent the same holds true today, but with the growth of the College must come a redistribution of the burden of administration. The heaviest burden carried by the president in past years has been that of finances. With the advent of the financial secretary, the president will be in a position to utilize the time he formerly needed for raising of funds in the administering of funds. The appointment of such a secretary is of great importance to the College.

Up to the present time faculty members have played a comparatively small part in the administration of the affairs of the institution outside of carrying on the regular instruction of classes. The college registrar's office stands next to the office of the president in importance, matters relating to courses and scholarship being referred to this office. The college treasurer works in conjunction with the registrar. The college librarian assumes the responsibility of developing the library. A curator has been appointed for the museum. A special publicity committee has charge of publicity and advertising. Departmentalization is becoming more defined, and each department head is responsible for the development of that particular department. The dean of men and the principal of the Preparatory Department under the president control disciplinary matters. A special nurse is in charge of the college hospital. Student organizations flourish under student management, and where necessary faculty advisers have been appointed by the president. Regular weekly faculty meetings are held for consultation purposes, the president in charge together with the secretary of the faculty. Scholarship and disciplinary matters are taken up for discussion, and generally the president acts on the recommendations made by the faculty. There is under way at present a plan to inaugurate the committee system within the faculty and a committee was elected by the faculty in 1921 to make the proper recommendations. Such a system will make for added efficiency in the management of the many-sided activities of the College. From this it will be readily seen that the president is receiving more and more assistance in administering the affairs of the College.

2. Students

The individual student is the unit of organization, and it is around and about the student that all the activities of the institution turn in the never ending cycle of college life. The institution was founded for him, the faculty secured to assist and guide him, the physical properties of the College to make his work more pleasant and productive of results, the Alumni Association and Luther College Clubs, of which he is later to become a member, to father him in his educational career.

And it is first and foremost the student who is preparing himself for the study of theology and the service of the church that must be regarded as the unit in this particular school organization. It is primarily for this particular type of student that the curriculum is built along its present lines. Indirectly, the curriculum, consisting as it does of the very best in educational practice, appeals to three additional types of students: the student preparing for the profession of teaching; the student desiring a liberal education; and the student desiring a broad foundation preparatory to graduate and professional study. The Preparatory Department, in addition to serving as a course preparatory to college entrance, is complete in itself as a secondary school preparing for life in a practical way. Thus while Luther College is the ideal small college for students who desire that personal touch which the larger institutions cannot give, and who do not intend to enter the ministry, and while the College serves this type in a large way, still it is not for this type that the institution primarily exists.

Measuring the status of the school by the theological type of student, one has only to take cognizance of the fact that 556 Luther College students have entered the ministry as compared with a total number of 801 graduates. Of this number of ministers, 362 are graduates of the College Department, 194 are not. This number will grow consistently with the years, provided only the patrons of Luther College realize the great need of the church for young men who are willing to serve. The curriculum remains essentially the same as at the time of the founding of the institution—a rich classical foundation, sufficiently modernized to parallel only the best in subject matter that the universities have to offer.

The daily routine of class instruction and chapel exercises as well as the disciplinary training tend to develop the spiritual side of one's nature and point out the way of life in the direction of service to the church.

3. Expansion of Course

The full six-year course, offered for the first time in 1865-1866, was patterned after the last six years of the European Gymnasium, which gave great prominence to Latin and Greek, and was designed to prepare students for the university and the professions. The Gymnasium extends through nine years, being the European substitute for the nine years in the American system beginning with grade eight of the elementary school and continuing through the senior college year. It is interesting to note that even in that early day, men of vision prophesied the changing of conditions which must take place with the flight of time. They anticipated the needs of their people in this new country many years in advance. In preparing the course of study for this institution, the fact that it was to be an American school was not overlooked. Though the school was founded by a Scandinavian people, still it was given the indelible stamp of an American school from the start, at the same time involving in its make-up all that was cherished in the old "Latinskole". This retaining in the early years of all that was near and dear to our people from the home land, gave the school its strength and solidity.

The six-year gymnasium course continued with minor changes for twenty-two years, 1861-1883. At a meeting of the Synod held in June, 1881, a resolution was passed to the effect that the course offered at the College should be extended from six to seven years; the whole course to be divided into a Preparatory Department of three years and a collegiate of four. In order, however, not to be unfair to those students who had previously entered the College with a view of completing the course in six years, it was resolved that this change should not affect the students that had already entered the school, but only those that should be admitted in the future. In the next academic year there were three classes conducted on the new plan. These and all subsequent classes finished a seven years' course before graduation. The lengthening of the preparatory course downward by one year was a necessary step to bring the College closer in touch with the state secondary schools. The necessity of keeping in touch with the state systems was at no time lost sight of, and more and more stress was placed on instruction in English.

In 1905 a fourth year was added to the preparatory course, with a gradual introduction of new subject matter in the lower years, and by the school year 1906-1907 the College was operating on an eight-year basis, four-year collegiate and four-year preparatory. In 1907-08 a literary course was introduced in the College Department to run parallel with the classical course, and a system of electives for the Junior and Senior classes was arranged for the first time in the history of the institution.

The elective system was not introduced into the preparatory course of study until the school year 1918-1919, when still another year was added as a result of the junior high school movement. The College as it is organized today offers a junior high school course, covering work equivalent to that of the eighth grade and the first year high school; a senior high school course covering the work of the sophomore, junior, and senior years of the high school; and a four-year collegiate course, a total of nine years. It is interesting to note that this nine-year curriculum strongly resembles that of the nine-year European Gymnasium, not particularly in subject matter, although here too there is a similarity, but in general plan and purpose. Luther College is unique in this respect, that it is the only school within the Church offering at the same time part elementary, secondary, and college work in direct sequence so as to enable a young man desiring an education within the Church to secure such training beginning with the seventh or eighth grade of the elementary course. In other words, Luther College has solved the problem of continuity of courses as well as it can be solved within the Church to-day.

4. The Normal Department, 1865-1886

The organization of a special department for the training of teachers was under way within a few years after the establishment of the school. It had been the intention to provide for this training from the very first, but crowded and unsettled quarters and an overworked faculty prevented action in this direction until the school year 1864-1865.

Under the European system, special schools were maintained for the training of teachers, and no attempt had been made to carry on this work at the higher institutions of learning. A course of two years corresponding to the junior and senior years of our high schools of today comprised the European teachers' training school for common school teachers. Consequently to combine such a course with the regular courses of the Latin school offered difficulties, as it meant a breaking away from an established precedent.

But the great need of a training school to provide parochial and common school teachers made it absolutely necessary either to establish a special school for this purpose, or offer the necessary courses at one of the then existing institutions. The latter seemed to be the most logical course of procedure, and it was finally decided to offer a special normal course within the regular Latin school, and place an instructor in charge of this department.

The normal course was accordingly made to coincide, 1864-1868, with the two lowest years of the Latin school. Preparation for teaching in the parochial schools of the Church was the determining factor in the arrangement of subject matter. No effort was put forth to begin with to train teachers for work in the common schools, and it was not until 1868 that, in response to the demand for common school teachers, a third year's work was offered in this department, stressing mainly training in English. The work of this department now covered the three lowest years of the six-year Latin course. In classes where the same subjects were involved, the normal students and the regular students were to recite together. Normal students were not required to take Latin or Greek, but in their stead enrolled in subjects especially fitting them for the work of teaching.

As a result of the extension of the regular course from six to seven years in the year 1883, the normal course was not offered in 1882-83. In 1883 all the normal work was shifted into the three preparatory years, the first year being identical with the preparatory course, the second and third years offering special instruction in the following branches in addition to the regular preparatory courses: catechism 3 hrs., Bible readings 3, English 3, U. S. history 2, didactics 4. In English and Norwegian, arithmetic, algebra, geography, general history, history of Norway, and Biblical history, the last two years were combined with the regular courses as stated.

In 1872, the first normal class was graduated. The complete normal course offered in 1872 is given here. On February 1st, 1886, the Normal Department was discontinued. The Church established Lutheran Normal School at Sioux Falls, S. Dak., instead.

5. Students' Army Training Corps (S. A. T. C.)

On account of the war, many changes were made at Luther College in the college year 1918-1919. Most of the students in the College Department were members of the S. A. T. C. They were young men who had registered for military service under the provisions of the selective draft law and had passed the physical examination, but who were permitted to enter the S. A. T. C., an organization established by the War Department at most colleges and universities in the country. The S. A. T. C., was under the control of the War Department, which prescribed the subjects to be pursued, the number of hours per week to be devoted to military training, and all disciplinary regulations, which were on a strictly military basis. Lieutenant H. H. Fisher was the commanding officer and Second Lieutenant Allen C. Grundy was the personnel adjutant. The corps was demobilized December 11, 1918.

All physically fit students not members of the S. A. T. C., were members of the Luther College Cadet Corps. They were not under government control and furnished their own uniforms and otherwise paid their own expenses. But they drilled at the same time and in the same manner as the members of the S. A. T. C., and were subject to the same regulations.

Military drill was required of all physically fit students at Luther College except Juniors and Seniors, and as the Reserve Officers' Training Corps offered the same kind and amount of military training as was required at Luther College, it was decided, when the S. A. T. C., was demobilized, to apply to the War Department for a unit of the R. O. T. C. The unit was established in January, 1919, and Commanding Officer, Lieutenant Harold H.

Fisher, was retained at the request of the faculty. The unit was divided into two courses: the basic course and the advanced course. The basic course included all students below the Junior class, as well as the Junior and Senior classes of the Preparatory Department. Members of this course were furnished with uniforms and equipment by the government. Membership in the advanced course was not compulsory, and was open to Juniors and Seniors of both departments who had completed the basic course. Those enrolling in the advanced course received free subsistence, and training at a summer camp at government expense.

6. Typical Courses

Courses have been built systematically from the top down toward the elementary system in an effort to connect up as soon as possible with the state system.

Typical courses in typical years are here presented so as to give the reader a general idea of the main changes that have occurred. More detailed information as to subject matter follows later in this volume. For the sake of convenience the Roman numerals will be used here to designate classes as follows—Prima-I, Secunda-II, Tertia-III, Quarta-IV, Quinta-V, Sexta-VI, Septima-VII, Octava-VIII, Sub-Freshman-IX. the semester plan of division of the school year into two equal periods was introduced for a period of eight years. Only a temporary arrangement was made to accommodate the S. A. T. C. plan 1918-1919, the college year being divided into four quarters of three months each, the preparatory year into six terms of six weeks each. The summer quarter of the college year 1919 was not offered, and the semester plan again took effect in both departments 1919-1920, each semester in the College Department consisting of eighteen weeks, in the Preparatory Department being sub-divided into quarters of nine weeks each. This arrangement seems to be most desirable as it accommodates part-time students.

In the year 1879 class recitation periods were reduced from sixty minutes in length to forty-five minutes, in 1913 increased to fifty-five minutes, and later, in 1916, reduced to fifty minutes. The length of recitation periods in the two departments has always been the same, although accrediting standards require only forty-five minute periods in the Preparatory Department.

The system of reckoning by units and semester hours was introduced in 1912. Standards of scholarship have been raised as a result of limiting the amount of work which individual students may carry, and the posting of quantity and quality bulletins.

The arrangement of work within the school year has undergone some minor changes from time to time. The daily schedule from early years reads: A. M. Rising bell 5:30, Chapel 6:00, Breakfast 6:30, Study hour 7:00, Cleaning of rooms 8:30, Classes 9:00, Dinner 12:00, P. M. Free period 1:00, Classes 2:00, Free period 5:00, Supper 5:30, Evening study hours 7:00, Chapel 8:30, Lights 10:00; as compared with the schedule in operation to-day: A. M. Cf. "Luther College Bulletin" for Jan., 1922, the title of which is "Looking Forward after Sixty Years", by President Oscar L. Olson. It is appropriate in this connection to refer the reader to the many articles and addresses which were prepared from time to time during the more recent days of the reconstruction of the curriculum at Luther College by President C. itual endowment is strengthened and stabilized by a harmonious development of the mental faculties and by an acquisition of a broad and sound knowledge of man's physical, intellectual, and spiritual development down through the ages.

It was this broad educational outlook which influenced the founders of Luther College in selecting and administering their curriculum. None of us appreciate fully their self-sacrifice, solidity, foresight, and idealism. For, in spite of the immediate need for a large number of pastors in the growing communities of the Middle West, they resisted the temptation to shorten and hurry the preparation of the candidates for the ministry; and they developed a remarkable combination of intellectual training and spiritual consecration.

In realizing this ideal of preparation for the Christian ministry, the elements of the curriculum from that time down to the present have been chosen with special care and a definite aim. This is utilitarianism and pre-vocationalism in the best and noblest sense. The reason for the presence of religion in the curriculum is self-evident. The practical value and broadening influence of the English language and literature on a pastor require no demonstration. The pastor's need of a knowledge of the Norwegian language and literature is still imperative in many communities. Apart from the great importance of German secular literature, the very history of Lutheranism proves the value of an ability to read in the original the great German works on theology. French, though an elective study, has some importance for the theologian as an introduction to French thought, as well as to an understanding of a large part of the English language.

In addition to these modern languages, the prospective pastor finds other subjects of great interest and value. It is hardly necessary to call attention to the enlightening, instructive, broadening, and steadying influence of the study of history and the use of the historical method. The social sciences, such as sociology, economics, statistics, psychology, education, philosophy, have been given such prominence in recent years and have undergone such a marked development that the pastor who has not received an introduction to them has lost an opportunity to obtain a more intimate contact with the fundamental social and economic problems of his parishioners and to gain a knowledge of the modern methods of understanding, training, and instructing the minds of his people. Higher mathematics furnishes, in addition to certain practical formulae and methods, a type of mental discipline which is gained in no other field.

Upon the foregoing subjects—in fact, upon every sphere of modern life—a great influence is being exerted by current scientific thought and method. Science not only represents objective investigation and classification of specific data, but also has developed into a system of speculative philosophy based on more or less definite premises. Nearly every congregation is to some extent affected by such an atmosphere and the pastor cannot escape it, even if he will. Therefore, it is self-evident that his pastoral work will be carried on with greater confidence and power if his preliminary course of training contains such subjects as physics, chemistry, biology, and other related branches, studied under the guidance of competent Christian teachers. This important guidance is received by students attending Luther College.

In this age of scientific and historical methods, the importance of "sources" is constantly stressed. The ability to use sources not only should give intellectual power, confidence, and accuracy, but also should serve as a ballast in the sea of conflicting doubts, prejudices, and emotions, if coupled with other essential qualities.

For the pastor the most important "sources" are the Hebrew Old Testament, the Greek New Testament, the Greek and Latin Church Fathers of the early days, and the Latin commentaries of the later theologians. In addition to this practical value, the study of the Greek and Latin languages, literatures, and civilizations gives him a better understanding of the etymology, spelling, and meaning of the English language, two-thirds of which is of Latin and Greek origin. Furthermore, the student of these languages gains a more intimate knowledge of literary English, a good foundation for the study of Romance languages, an excellent mental discipline, a closer contact with the best models of art and architecture, a broad basis for an understanding of medieval and modern civilization.

Though a course of study dealing with so many fields requires much time and effort on the part of the prospective pastor, yet it gives him a broad and solid foundation for his pastoral studies and duties.

This pre-theological course is built upon a classical foundation. Though the original requirements in Latin and Greek have been somewhat reduced, in order to make more room for elective subjects, still the curriculum remains fundamentally classical, as was the case with the German "gymnasium" which originally served as the model for Luther College.

Such an education was, on the whole, "liberal" or "cultural".
The definitions of the term "liberal" have had many variations, which are reflected in the many types of present-day colleges.
However, it is perhaps safe to state that a "liberal" education is general in its purpose and does not prepare specially for any vocation. The aim is to prepare for "the whole of life rather than for some particular part of it"; to prepare for life itself rather than for a livelihood; to deepen and broaden the mind until it is "liberalized" or freed from "the world that man's intellect has conquered for us". The stress laid on ideals of conduct, life, and thought inherent in this type of education would naturally be less prominent in professional or technical schools than in the "liberal" college.

A "liberal" education is essentially "cultural", for not only does it embrace the subject-matter of its branches, but it also depends on the cultivation or "culture" of the mental faculties, not for a specific line of action but with a view to a general mental power which is capable of surmounting difficulties as they arise in later life. This theory of "formal" mental discipline and the automatic transfer of power or training from one field to another, though strongly attacked in recent years and as a result somewhat modified, nevertheless has not been successfully disproved.

On the other hand, no education can be "liberal" or "cultural" in the strictest sense, for every course of study prepares more directly for some few professions or vocations than for others. This fact holds good also in the curriculum of Luther College. First of all, it furnishes an excellent preparation for the most effective work in the Christian ministry. Furthermore, the graduate from Luther College, both in respect to general cultural background and in regard to specific knowledge, is equipped to pursue special work in other professions, such as those of teaching, medicine, law, and others. Even those students at Luther College who do not plan to complete their course at this institution may by a judicious election of studies prepare directly for two or more years toward a later professional career, meantime experiencing the stabilizing power of a Christian atmosphere in a Christian college, which serves as an intermediate stage between parental love and care and the freedom and trials of university life. Such courses have a long-established precedent in the pre-medical, pre-engineering, pre-law courses which have been given for the last twenty years in many colleges and universities. Nevertheless, of course, the curriculum is pre-professional merely in a broad sense and less in the special sense which applies to a law school or a medical school of science.

To sum up, the pre-theological course at Luther College is essentially classical, liberal, and cultural, and lays a broad foundation for many walks of life.

II. ENTRANCE REQUIREMENTS

1. Preparatory Department

Admission into the Junior High School (which comprises the usual eighth and ninth grades) will be granted to male students who have completed the seventh or eighth grades, provided they are at least twelve years of age, and other boys at least fourteen years of age whose previous training has been such as to enable them to do work with profit in the first year of the course.

The work of the Senior High School corresponds to that offered in the three upper years of a standard American high school. Unconditional admission to the Senior High School presupposes the completion of four units of work acceptable for college entrance, but students who have completed not less than two units may be registered in the Senior High School at the discretion of the principal.

Satisfactory testimonials of good moral character are required of applicants for admission to the Preparatory Department. A certificate of honorable dismissal is required of those coming from other schools.

Students are admitted either by examination or by certificate. Examinations for admission or for advanced standing will be given at the beginning of the school year. Those who present certificates showing eighth grade graduation will be admitted without examination. Pupils from high schools will be credited for work well done and classified accordingly. High School Board certificates from Minnesota and North Dakota and first grade teacher's certificate standings from any state will be accepted for advanced standing. Credit granted on certificates from other schools may be revoked, however, if the student fails to sustain himself creditably in his work.

2. College Department

Graduates of standard high schools, requiring 16 year credits (units) for graduation, are admitted without any conditions, provided that their high school training has included at least three units of English, two of mathematics, one of history, one of physics or chemistry, and two of foreign language. For those who enter without Latin, German, or Norwegian, special beginning courses in these subjects are arranged in the College. Sixteen high school units or year credits, each representing 180 recitation hours, are required for unconditional admission to the Freshman class, and a minimum of fourteen units for conditional admission. Entrance conditions must be removed at the first opportunity by appropriate work in the Preparatory Department.

III. GRADUATION REQUIREMENTS

1. Preparatory Department

Sixteen units acceptable for college entrance, plus one-half unit of Bible, are required for graduation from the Senior High School. The sixteen units must include three units of English, two of mathematics (elementary algebra and plane geometry), one of history, and one of laboratory science (physics preferred); one-half of music, and four of foreign language, at least two of these to be Latin and one Norwegian.

A unit is the equivalent of one high school study satisfactorily pursued during thirty-six weeks, on the basis of five recitation periods per week. The regular recitation periods at Luther College are fifty minutes in length, and the laboratory and book-keeping periods one hundred minutes.

Graduation from the Junior High School requires the completion of eighth grade grammar, arithmetic, United States history, and geography, and, in addition, four units of work acceptable for college entrance. First-year high school English and one-fourth unit of Bible must be included.

In general, five-hour subjects give one unit's credit for a year's work and two-hour subjects (Bible and music) give one-fourth unit's credit.

2. College Department

(1). A residence of at least one scholastic year at Luther College.

(2). The completion of at least 130 semester hours of college work. In addition, twelve hours of physical training are required of those physically fit.

(3). Six semester hours of Latin above course IV (i. e., above the regular four years of high school Latin); Norse and German and Greek through course IV in each (i. e., four semester courses in each); four hours of Greek Testament, ten hours of other Christianity, ten hours of English, twelve hours of history (or six hours of history and twelve hours of other social science, including psychology), and one year each of mathematics, natural science, and biological science or psychology.

(4). The completion of a major of six semester courses in each of two departments (or groups of closely related departments). In no case, however, must these six courses total less than eighteen semester hours. Latin I and II (i. e., Beginner's Latin and Caesar) will not be counted toward a major.

(5). The language requirements vary in accordance with the number of units of foreign language offered for college entrance, the lacking entrance units being made up, in addition to the regular language requirements. In foreign language, a year's work in high school is counted equivalent to a semester's work in college.

IV. OUTLINE OF SUBJECTS BY DECADES

Abbreviations and Explanations

Classes

I—College seniors; II—College juniors; III—College sophomores; IV—College freshmen.

V—Preparatory seniors; VI—Preparatory juniors; VII—Preparatory sophomores; VIII—Preparatory freshmen; IX—Preparatory sub-freshmen.

Hours and Terms

(1)—1st semester; (2)—2nd semester.

(f)—Fall term; (w)—Winter term; (s)—Spring term.

Thus, 4 hours per week in 1st semester—4 (1); 4 hours per week in Fall term—4 (f).

When terms or semesters are not specified, the given number of recitations per week runs throughout the school year.

Language used as medium of instruction in class

The catalogs, except in 1872-73, very rarely specify the language used as a medium of instruction in the respective classes. The English language has increasingly taken the place of Norwegian. In most recent years every class has been conducted with English as the medium, except in foreign language classes in which a more intimate familiarity with the language and thought is especially desired.

El.—Elective. R—Required. Rec.—Recommended.

All courses are regarded as Required, except when marked with El, or Rec. Subjects in the Preparatory Dep't (1921-1922) are classified as Required, Recommended, or Elective.

ND—Normal Department. All courses are regarded as of the regular curriculum, unless marked with ND. Unless otherwise specified, the courses in the Normal Department were identical with those in Classes IV, V, VI up to 1883-84, and V, VI, VII from 1883-84 to 1885-86. The facts given in the following outline of subjects are drawn from the Luther College catalogs of the years indicated and from the invaluable work of Professor Gisle Bothne, entitled "Det Norske Luther College, 1861-97."

MUSIC

			Although music does not occupy a large place in the curriculum proper, its cultural and disciplinary value has always been clearly recognized at this institution. Almost from the beginning, opportunities have been given for private instruction, both vocal and instrumental. Furthermore, a distinctly musical atmosphere has been created by such organizations as the college bands, orchestra, choruses, Musical Union, and the Decorah Choral Union.

1872-73	I-VI	2 hrs. weekly each year	Vocal music	N. Brandt

PHYSICAL TRAINING

			Although physical training is not given a prominent place in the curriculum, still the College has always recognized the value and need of the development of the body. This need is partly met by the various voluntary athletic organizations. At the same time, for very many years some class work in gymnastics has been required. In 1920-21 the following coaches had charge of the athletic teams: College: Football, O. M. Solem. Basketball, R. A. Movold. Baseball, A. Laudel. Preparatory: Football, Basketball, Baseball; Professors O. W. Qualley, S. S. Reque and M. W. VI. ACCREDITATION

The curriculum which has been described in the foregoing pages of this chapter has been favorably recognized by many of the leading universities in the country, in which graduates from Luther College not only have been accepted for graduate work along the lines in which they previously had majored but also have, in many instances, attained distinction. Luther College has for many years been on the approved list of the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. This recognition was in 1921 confirmed by another agency of national prominence, namely, the General Education Board, whose representatives after an examination of the institution reported a very favorable impression. In fact, a careful investigation of the instruction at Luther College from its foundation to the present time shows that the qualities which have been given special recognition by such prominent authorities have characterized the institution throughout the sixty years of its history.

CHAPTER FOURTEEN STUDENT ORGANIZATIONS

CARL W. STROM

I. LITERARY SOCIETIES

THAT Luther College men have always been deeply interested in literary work is abundantly testified to by the large number of societies which they have organized for its promotion during the last sixty years. It is not merely accidental that Luther College has the tradition that every student should belong to at least one literary society. It is rather a result of the intense interest which the students of successive years have taken in this branch of work.

However, enthusiasm for society work has not been at the same level at all times. From 1879 on, a revival of interest has taken place at approximately ten-year intervals, each successive revival being definitely discernible by the number of societies organized while the tide of enthusiasm was at its height.

The revival in 1879 ended what may be called the "first period" in literary society work at Luther and ushered in the Students' Union, Niffelheim, Muspelheim, and Addison, four societies which for ten years held the literary interest of the College in a peculiar way.

The next revival, in 1889, was a result of the decline of the first three of the above mentioned societies, and ushered in the "third period" of this history, which started when Irving and Amphictyonic took their place as the controlling societies in the College Department, a position which they have held now for thirty years.

A new revival came in 1899 and another again in 1909, but at each of these times the existing societies were too strongly entrenched in their positions to be materially affected, and in 1919 the war had so far absorbed the attention of the student body as to force the literary societies temporarily into the background.

The year 1922 will probably mark the opening of a "fourth period", as it seems certain that the material increase in the student body which has taken place during the last year or two will call for a number of new societies and force Irving and Amphictyonic to divide the field which has been theirs for so many years.

The first literary society at the College can lay claim to being older than the institution itself. The Clio Society was founded in St. Louis, Mo., on March 5, 1860, and was reorganized in Decorah on September 16, 1862.

The Clio held weekly meetings devoted to speeches, essays, declamations, and debates. English was the official language of the society, and in debate no other language was permitted. That English was not exactly the mother tongue for all of the members may be judged from the following extract from the record dated September 26, 1862: "During the debate the critic was not idle, all though willing to confess that he is unable to criticize fully, yet he had more work than he could dispose of. Some of the speakers used such corrupt and awkward language, that it made it entirely impossible to correct any of it." The fact, however, that English was chosen as the official language of the society is in itself significant.

The debates in the Clio were carried out with six or eight speakers on each side. One of them was the "chief disputant", and opened the debate. The rest followed in order, each one speaking as often as he wished, but usually not more than ten minutes at one time. Religious and political questions were ruled out, but this did not deprive the members of subjects on which to sharpen their wits. The comparative influence of love of money and education, the comparative usefulness of steam and the compass, the desirability of having an egg to-day or a chicken to-morrow, these subjects and many more similar ones were debated in the Clio. The decision was given by one member who was selected to act as judge at each meeting. Thus we find that on January 20, 1866, the question: "Resolved, that the Negroes have suffered more than the Indians," was decided "in favor of the affirmative by Stub." In other respects, as far as the conduct of the society and the election of officers is concerned, the Clio was not greatly different from the societies at Luther at the present day.

The Hetaeria Society, founded in 1863 as the Unit, but changed to the Hetaeria in 1866, resembled the Clio very closely. Except for the fact that it conducted its meetings in the Norwegian language, there were but few details to distinguish it from the earlier society.

No record of the Clio is found after September 26, 1866, nor of the Hetaeria after November 1, 1870.

A group of Norwegian societies—Saga, founded January 28, 1866; Edda, founded October 23, 1866; and Minde, or Ygdrasil, founded November 7, 1868—next claim our attention.

Each one of these societies contributed its share toward the development of sixty years of literary society tradition at Luther College. Saga, besides carrying on the regular literary society work, interested itself in preserving the best speeches, essays, and poems that were delivered at its meetings. These were entered in the "Inseratprotokol", which, as handed down in the college library, contains many articles of sufficient merit to justify their publication in book form. The journals which became a regular institution with the literary societies of later years were doubtless copied in idea from the Saga "Inseratprotokol". The last entry in this interesting journal was made on December 16, 1870.

The Edda was an exclusively Norwegian debating society, but branched out into at least two new fields. First, together with the introduction of a treasurer into its official family, it levied ten or fifteen cents yearly on all of its members for the purchase of newspapers such as "Skandinaven" and "Den Nye Lutherske Kirketidende fra Norge". Secondly, through the winter of 1870-71, it published its own paper, "Fluen", which is treated more extensively later in this chapter. Edda held no recorded meeting after January 25, 1879.

Minde, whose name was changed to Ygdrasil on October 16, 1872, was evidently the most flourishing society at the College up to this time. It was the first society to bring up for discussion the rule barring political questions as subjects for debate, a rule which had been in vogue in all the societies up to this time. Ygdrasil did not depart from the tradition either, but should probably be credited with being the first society seriously to suggest the change. Ygdrasil's record ends with the meeting of January 22, 1877, but there is no reason to believe that the society did not flourish for at least a year after that date.

Franklin, whose first regular meeting was held November 11, 1871, was active in more fields than any of the societies which had preceded it. For eight years it conducted weekly debates, gave public programs, and participated in inter-society debates; its reading room contained many of the leading secular and religious papers in English, Norwegian, and German; and on October 4, 1876, its representatives met with those of Edda and Ygdrasil to organize the Students' Union. Franklin came to its end January 18, 1879.

The revival of interest mentioned above came in the years immediately preceding 1880. Franklin, Ygdrasil, Saga, and Edda had just come to their end or were about to do so shortly. Close in their wake came seven new societies. Scarcely anything but the name is known concerning four of them, Losna, Nordstierna, Det Norske Selskab, and Normannalaget. Det Norske Selskab is mentioned as being active in 1883-84, but is not heard of after that school year. Normannalaget was the first of three societies by that name which have existed at the College. Bredablik ran its course during the two years from October 2, 1880, to March 26, 1882. Osseo's existence was almost equally confined, extending from October 4, 1879, to November 5, 1881, but in that short time it introduced an important innovation in allowing political questions in its debates, its very first debate, decided in favor of the affirmative, being on woman suffrage.

Addison, founded October 10, 1879, was the only society resulting from the revival which enjoyed more than a very temporary growth. At the time "Chips" was started it was the only literary society at the College, and prospered in almost full possession of the field until the next revival of enthusiasm, in 1890, struck it in the vitals and forced it to unite with Irving to preserve itself. Its journal, the "Spectator", still remains in Irving.

The decade from 1880 to 1890 was in many ways peculiar as regards the situation in the literary societies at the College. Addison was purely a literary society. However, several other organizations, which were not literary societies in the present sense of the word, played a prominent part during those years.

The first of these was the Students' Union. It was organized on October 4, 1876, by a council composed of members from Ed-da, Ygdrasil, and Franklin, for the purpose of generalising the work of the literary societies and particularly for the purpose of giving public entertainments. Since meetings were held only once every five weeks, each program was carried out on a rather ambitious scale. Besides speeches, essays, declamations, and debates, dramatizations of plays by the Dramatic Club were included in its programs. The "Journal" soon became famous among the students. Dependent at first on the member literary societies, it was organized separately in the spring of 1884. The record of the Students' Union is not in the college library, but its meetings are mentioned with more or less frequency in "Chips" until 1903, after which no more is heard from it.

Niffelheim, whose palmiest days were within the decade under consideration, was one of the most unique institutions the College has ever fostered. Organized in 1874 as a smokers' club with rooms in the old "Chicken Coop", it developed into a great "republic" to which no small number of Luther's most illustrious sons have belonged. Nor was Niffelheim any mean antagonist in literary work. Debates, orations, essays, poems, and mock trials, all were brought to a high state of perfection in the "republic". Many of the productions from the pens of its members have been preserved in the "Journal", and it is a positive treat to be given the opportunity of reading the brilliant productions found there. But Niffelheim with its murky atmosphere was doomed by the "powers that be", and since 1888 it has been nothing but a memory.

Muspelheim was founded in 1879 as an opposition society to Niffelheim. It was and is a distinguished organization in several ways. It has undoubtedly numbered more Luther College men on its membership rolls than any other organization at Luther, including even the boarding club, whose senior it is by almost twenty years. It is by far the oldest student organization which has ever existed at the College. But it does not demand respect for its gray hairs alone. It has uniformly been the most prosperous organization on the campus, even the Athletic Association having at times been among its debtors. In days past it was noted for "essays, brilliant speeches, and magnificent festivals". On the point of going to pieces in 1884, it was revived, and continued its feasts on Washington's birthday for almost twenty years more. For almost another twenty years it has been distinctly a reading society, cooperating with the library in furnishing to the students all the desirable American magazines besides many foreign ones. In this latter role, it has probably been the largest single contributor to the college library. Muspelheim almost met its end in the excitement of 1918 and 1919, but in 1920 it was reorganized and is now again flourishing.

Irving and Amphictyonic have held the lead in literary society work for the "third period" of thirty years. The histories of both of these societies have been written so well and so often that only a short note will be given each of them here.

Irving, organized in 1884, was a continuation of Amicitia, organized in 1882. In 1892 it united with Addison, and it is then that its real history begins. Its journal, the old "Amicitiae Opera", was changed in 1892 to the "Spectator" and is still issued at irregular intervals.

Lowell and Proceedo, both organized in 1890, united on January 30, 1891, under the name Amphictyonic Literary Society. On account of bitter inter-society rivalries, the new society was hard pressed in its first years, but it overcame all difficulties and last year celebrated its thirtieth anniversary.

The early rivalry between Irving and Amphictyonic has continued, although, at least in later years, in a thoroughly beneficial way, each one spurring the other on to use its best efforts in all its work, whether it be in the annual inter-society debate or in the annual public program or even in the annual "feast". The work of these two societies has been of inestimable value to the College, and will in all likelihood continue to be so for many years to come.

Not all the societies of the early nineties fared so well as Irving and Amphictyonic. Hamill, organized to promote oratory and extemporaneous speaking, existed only through the years 1891 and 1892. Only the approximate dates are known for a number of others: Concordia, 1890-93; Minerva, October 23, 1891, to May 8, 1893; Webster, 1891-93; Athenian, 1892-94.

Normannalaget, organized December 21, 1892, was for many years the foremost Norwegian literary society at the College and was dropped only when most of its members left school for the national service in 1917 and 1918. One of its most important activities was the collection of a fair-sized library, consisting mostly of Norwegian literature and history. This has now been transferred to the general library. Two attempts to organize a new Normannalaget in 1920 and 1921 came to naught after a few meetings.

In the revival of the late nineties no lasting societies were formed. The Philomathean was disbanded on May 8, 1897, after a year or two of activity. The Sextonian, the Demosthenian, and the Platonian were all societies of 1898-99.

Mjølner was a college Norwegian society organized February 23, 1907. It suffered the fate of Normannalaget in 1917 and 1918 and has not been revived.

Idun, organized as an English literary society in the Preparatory Department in 1907, has been active up to the present time. Norrøna, a Preparatory Department Norwegian society, was organized in 1911 and was active for four years.

II. STUDY SOCIETIES

A number of clubs organized for special study have existed at the College.

The Shakespearean Club was organized among the members of the Junior class in February, 1885, for the purpose of studying Shakespeare's dramas.

The Stenographic Club was organized in December, 1885, for the purpose of continuing a course in shorthand which had been given for a part of the term and was about to be dropped from the curriculum. A faculty member was in charge of the instruction in this club.

The German Speaking Association was also evidently organized in 1885, since its demise is lamented in "Chips" for May, 1886.

The Drawing Club was organized in February, 1887, as a continuation of a class in drawing which had been conducted as a part of the regular curriculum in the earlier part of the year.

A Volapuk Club for the study of "Volapuk", a universal language, was organized in December, 1887. "Chips" for that month reports it as being only three days old, but prophesies that it will be older in a "year or two".

The Chemistry Club was organized in May, 1901, ostensibly for the purpose of stimulating interest in the study of that science, but it was secretly suspected of making diamonds.

The Luther College Sunday Association is classed here as it grew out of a Bible study class started by Rev. I. B. Torrison in the F. N. E. L. Sunday School in 1901. The association was formally organized at the College in 1903. Meetings are held Sunday afternoons, alternate meetings being devoted to lectures by professors or visitors and the discussion in a frank and open manner of existing student ills. A faculty member officiates in the capacity of leader. Dr. Oscar L. Olson was for seven years the leader; after him the leaders have been: Prof. T. E. Thompson, Dr. S. C. Ylvisaker, and Prof. O. A. Tingelstad, the present incumbent. Besides its important services to the student body, the Sunday Association should receive credit for having launched the Young People's Association of the Synod in 1906 and for entertaining the Lutheran Students' Union Convention in a three-day session, March 8 to 10, 1922.

The P. A. Munch Historical Society was organized on February 11, 1903, at the suggestion of Dr. K. Gjerset, who was also its first president. It included both faculty members and students in the College Department in its membership. Meetings were devoted to lectures by the professors of the College or by visitors, historical topics being the uniform choice of the speakers. Historical study by the students was encouraged, the best of their papers being published in the historicals department of "Chips". From April 12, 1909, to November 18, 1910, the society was inactive while Dr. Gjerset was absent in Norway, but on his return the work was resumed and the northwest corner room of the second floor of the Main Building was fitted up as a society room, where a fair library was also collected. Since 1915 no regular meetings have been held, and the library has been added to the general library.

The Inter-Collegiate Debating Association was organized in February, 1903, with Irving and Amphictyonic as member societies. It has had charge of promoting all the inter-collegiate debates of the College.

In 1902 the Southern Wisconsin Luther College Club offered a prize of $25 for the best oration delivered by a student at the College. The following year two prizes of $25.00 each were offered for the best orations in English and Norwegian. This offer has been repeated each year since 1903. In 1913 the Luther College Oratorical Association was organized and affiliated with the state association. Since that time the winner of the local English contest has represented the College in the eastern divisional contest, competing for the right to participate in the state contest. Luther participated in the state contest for the first time in 1922, when Oscar Rem, '24, under the able tutelage of Prof. H. O. Talle, won a place in the eastern divisional contest at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa. The state contest was held at Luther College in 1920.

III. PUBLICATIONS

In the field of journalism Luther College students have been no less active than in literary society work.

"Moderlandet" was the name of the first student publication at Luther College. It was edited by H. G. Stub and K. Nordgaard, and was a bi-weekly, four-page, hand-written, foolscap folder, costing twenty-five cents for a half-year. A page of the second number is preserved in the college museum. "Mamalandet" was the name of a rival publication edited, in 1866, by K. Bjørgo. Neither "Mamalandet" nor "Ridderen uden Frygt og Dadel" have been preserved. Two other early publications, both of which have been preserved, are "Fluen" and "Svein Urød". "Fluen", of the same form and period of issue as "Moderlandet", was the official organ of Edda debating society. Ten numbers were issued, or rather "written", during the winter of 1869-70. N. Christensen, '71, acting as editor. Of a similar make-up was "Svein Urød", edited by M. Koefod under the business management of H. A. Bergh during the winter of 1871-72. "Gjallarhorn" was issued by Niffelheim one winter during the later seventies.

The first number of "College Chips" appeared in January, 1884. The first numbers were issued semi-monthly, but since January, 1887, they have appeared once a month. The first board of editors consisted of E. O. Hove, O. K. Fuglei, O. M. Kalheim, George Markhus, and J. A. Ness, with M. O. Aubolee as business manager. The first editor of the Norwegian department was T. O. Tolo. In form it was originally six and one-half by nine and one-half inches, but the size was changed on January 1, 1885, to seven and one-half by ten and one-half inches, and again in January, 1905, it was changed to its present size of six and one-half by nine inches. The first issues of "Chips" were of twelve pages. The size has been gradually increased to forty-eight pages, which is the present size, although it did for a few years include sixty-four pages. The present average circulation is 900 copies. Originally an all-English magazine, "Chips" had a Norwegian department from January, 1885, to December, 1889. From December, 1889, to April, 1897, it was published alternately in the English and Norwegian languages. Since April, 1897, it has been all English. "Chips" has experienced various turns of fortune in its thirty-seven years of existence. Twice it has been on the rocks, in 1890, and again in 1916, but both times the storm has been weathered. For its columns it has uniformly commanded the best talent of the College and has at the same time been the object of the careful attention of the members of the English department, to whom all honor is due for keeping "Chips" at a high standard of excellence.—"Valeat Quantum Valere Potest!" "Let it pass for what it's worth!"

"Ervingen" was first issued in May, 1908, as a 48-page quarterly, six by eight and one-half inches in size. The Norwegian language was used throughout. It was discontinued in June, 1913, due to lack of financial support, but during its short life it gave many of the students a chance to try their hand at writing literary Norwegian. Its first board of editors consisted of Finn Magelssen, Thomas A. Haugen, Alfred Halvorson, Bernhard Rosenqvist, and Olaf Gaarder, with Olaf Tufte and Charles A. Fritz as business managers.

The "Luther College Semi-Centennial", dedicated to Dr. Laur. Larsen, was issued by the Junior class in 1911. It was a 256-page book, seven and one-half by ten and one-half inches. Enoch E. Peterson was the editor-in-chief and Britton Burtness the business manager.

The second "Annual" of the College was issued in 1920 by the class of 1921, with Elmer S. Eid as editor-in-chief and Olaf G. Malmin as business manager. It was a 224-page book, seven and three-quarters by ten and three-quarters inches. At the suggestion of Dr. K. Gjerset, the annual was called the "Pioneer", since Luther College was the pioneer institution of our Church.

The second issue of the "Pioneer" is at present being prepared for the press by the class of 1924, Osear Rem acting as editor-in-chief and George C. Henriksen, Jr., acting as business manager. It will be dedicated to the late honored President C. K. Preus.

The latest journalistic venture of the student body was the "Campus News", a single sheet five and one-half by eight and one-half inches printed on the "Luther College Press", a small hand-power machine owned by Prof. K. O. Eitheim. "Campus News" was published by the Athletic Association, Arthur C. Paulson editor, and George C. Henriksen, Jr., business manager. Twenty numbers were issued during the winter of 1921-22. Two were four-page issues, the first one issued during the sixtieth anniversary celebration and the second at the time of the Lutheran Students' Union Convention. The first of these two reported the St. Olaf-Luther football game in print 35 minutes after the end of the game.

IV. THE LUTHER COLLEGE BOARDING CLUB

The Norwegian Synod, at its meeting at La Crosse, Wisconsin, in 1896, gave the students at Luther College permission to form their own boarding club. The club was organized June 16, 1896, with H. J. Wein as manager; C. M. Hallanger, secretary; Oscar A. Strom, treasurer; Ola Ordal, buyer; and Christian Thompson, J. M. Peterson, and K. M. Hagestad as directors. Board the first year was furnished at $1.30 a week. In 1900-01 it was $1.60 a week; in 1910-11, $2.48 a week; in 1920-21, $3.86 a week; and in 1921-22 it averaged about $3.70 a week. Up to 1916 the basement of the Main Building provided a dining room. In that year the boarding club erected Loyalty Hall, a description of which may be found in another chapter.

CHAPTER FIFTEEN
ATHLETICS AND MILITARY DRILL

O. W. QUALLEY

I. GENERAL STATEMENT

FROM the very earliest times the students at Luther College have taken great interest in athletics. A large number of the boys who attended the College in the early days came from farms and were accustomed to hard manual labor. Life in the schoolroom was a great change to them, and it was not long before they felt the need of exercise and action. There were no intercollegiate contests to be trained for; nor was any course in gymnastics offered. The boys derived their exercise and enjoyment from the games and sports which were then in vogue, such as running, jumping, wrestling, weight lifting, and hiking. During the winter skating and skiing were also popular. While the College had its quarters in the St. Cloud Hotel, 1862-65, the large back-yard took the place of a gymnasium and athletic field, and such gymnastic equipment as could be gotten was set up there. When the College was moved to its present site in 1865 the gymnastic apparatus was set up north of the main building.

Baseball dates back to the earliest times and has always been the favorite sport at Luther. Military drill and football were introduced in the seventies.

For lack of facilities no regular gymnastic instruction was given until 1886. In that year the west wing of the present gymnasium was built with money raised through the efforts of the students. The improvement in the health of the boys was at once apparent. In previous winters there had been no place to exercise; and the result was, that some students who scarcely left the building for weeks at a time were almost broken in health by spring. Two hours of gymnastics per week were required of every student. According to reports in "Chips" the students were highly pleased with their instructor, Prof. L. S. Reque. He was relieved by Prof. J. G. Halland. In 1890 Prof. W. Sihler took charge and with the help of various student assistants carried on the work successfully for many years. When Prof. Sihler retired, Dr. Oscar L. Olson, Dr. K. Gjerset, Dr. Ole Boe, and Prof. B. Svanøe took charge of the work in the order named. Athletic coaches Ralph Movold and Ivan Doseff have conducted the classes in 1920-21 and 1921-22, respectively. The turning club, which has existed since 1886, has given those especially interested in turning and gymnastics an opportunity for further development.

II. ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

When intercollegiate competition was introduced in 1891 the need of an organization to take control of athletics and to arrange and finance schedules was at once felt. It was now no longer possible for teams to be self-supporting as they had previously been, and, since the teams represented the whole student body, it was only fair that the expense of maintaining them should be distributed.

Agitation for such an association was started, and this agitation resulted in the organization of the Luther College Athletic Association in the fall of 1892. Oscar L. Olson '93, first president of the association, was one of the prime movers in its inception. All students and faculty members were admitted to membership in the association on the payment of fees. The chief points of its constitution provided that: The association should have control of all athletic sports at the College. All candidates for the various teams should be voted upon by the association. An executive committee, consisting of five students and one faculty member, should nominate all candidates for the different teams, and should make and carry out all necessary arrangements for games. The association should determine what conditions players must fulfill in order to win the College "I." In 1920 changes in the athletic situation at Luther made it necessary to alter the constitution in certain respects. The athletic director was made a member of the athletic board of control. Since coaches were now in charge of all sports and it was no longer advisable to have the association vote upon the candidacy of players, this clause was stricken from the constitution. An athletic board was created to take the place of the executive committee with virtually the same powers. It is composed of four students and two members of the faculty.

GYMNASIUM AND FOOTBALL FIELD

Athletics at Luther College have been managed very successfully by the Athletic Association. The dues were originally twenty cents per month or practically two dollars a year. When the schedules were enlarged and intercollegiate competition was entered into in more branches of sport, the dues were raised until at present each member pays ten dollars a year into the treasury of the association. When it is remembered that the association is maintaining teams in six branches of sport, this cannot be considered exorbitant.

The association has always received the enthusiastic support of the students and has been practically identical with the student body in membership.

When the east wing of the gymnasium was built in 1903 with floor space for a basketball court the students immediately took advantage of the opportunity to play basketball. The interest in the game can be determined to some extent by the fact that inter-collegiate competition was introduced already in 1904. Luther's first intercollegiate tennis tournament was played in the same year.

Membership in some athletic conference is almost necessary in order to maintain a reputation for high standards of eligibility. It is the prevailing tendency among colleges to regard with suspicion such institutions as are not members. The report is soon circulated that such an institution is not a member of a conference because it does not wish to observe the eligibility rules of a conference. Affiliation with a conference also aids materially in arranging schedules. In 1906 Luther became a member of the Hawkeye Conference of Iowa Colleges. Difficulty in the arrangement of schedules led the College to abandon the organization in 1912. Membership in the Tri-state Conference of Minnesota, North and South Dakota Colleges was obtained in December of the same year.

This organization disbanded in 1920 when the Minnesota Conference was organized. At present the College is arranging to enter a proposed Hawkeye Conference to include all colleges in the state except Iowa University, Drake, Ames, and Grinnell.

III. "L" ASSOCIATION

Illustrative of the efforts of the students to maintain high standards and enthusiasm in athletics at Luther College is the "L" Association organized in January, 1919, largely through the efforts of its first president, M. W. Larsen, '19, and A. L. Bronstad, '19.

"The purpose of this organization," according to Art. No. 2 of the constitution, "shall primarily be to foster a strong college spirit; to promote a keen interest in all collegiate activities; to imbue a true sense of love for and appreciation of the good old 'L'; to make it the one and only monogram that is recognized, respected, and tolerated at Luther College; and to keep an official record of all earners of the 'L.'" The constitution also provides that membership in the organization shall be limited to those who have earned the official "L" in forensics or athletics, that all former "L" men shall be honorary members of the association, and that the man holding the greatest number of "L's" shall automatically become president.

Through its recommendations to the athletic association the organization has been an important factor in determining the style and size of "L's" and other insignia. At the end of each intercollegiate season it is customary for the old members of the association to entertain the new members at an informal banquet. On such occasions the constitution is always read to acquaint them with the purpose and ideals of the organization.

IV. COACHES AND ATHLETIC DIRECTORS

In the early years of intercollegiate athletics professional coaches and athletic directors were not to be thought of at Luther, and yet the College was represented by a winning team year after year. Luther teams competed successfully with teams coached by high-salaried men. Much of the remarkable success of baseball teams at Luther College, however, can be traced to Professors Sihler and Olson, and, in later years, to Prof. S. S. Reque, '03, who were as well acquainted with the game as any professional coach.

As time went on coaches and athletic directors gradually became an essential part of athletics at various colleges. Institutions with coaches hesitated to play those without coaches because, as one coach said, there was not much honor in winning and it was a disgrace to lose. With such conditions obtaining it was not strange that the students at Luther began to agitate for a coach. Due to the efforts of Prof. B. K. Savre, '96, and Paul Preus, '11, who raised the necessary money, Arthur Laudel was engaged as baseball coach in 1917. Professional coaching was first made a policy of the school when Walter Jewell served as football coach in 1919. Since that time coaches have been engaged by the College for all sports.

Arthur Laudel served as baseball coach at Luther College from 1917 to 1921 inclusive. That he pitched for the Detroit American League Club is ample proof of his playing ability and knowledge of the game. In 1919, 1920, and 1921, Mr. Laudel put out wonderful teams. Their records testify to his coaching powers. Ability to turn out successful teams was not Mr. Laudel's only asset as a coach. His whole attitude on the diamond was in harmony with Luther's highest athletic ideals and traditions.

Alvin J. Natvig, Luther's first basketball coach, graduated from Luther College in 1918. Mr. Natvig played on the Luther team five years and was as great a guard as ever represented Luther in basketball. When he agreed to coach the team in 1920 prospects were bright. In the influenza epidemic Mr. Natvig and several of the squad were taken sick, necessitating the cancellation of several games. Mr. Natvig's team showed marked improvement in spite of the severe handicap.

When intercollegiate football was introduced again in 1919 a football coach was a necessity. Walter Jewell, who had played tackle on the Iowa University eleven, was selected to coach the team. Making a football team out of men with practically no experience was no easy task. Mr. Jewell worked diligently and faithfully. Although he did not develop a winning combination his efforts were of great value to the team the following year.

Oscar M. Solem came to Luther with the remarkable record of having coached three championship football teams. As a student at the University of Minnesota he played end and tackle on the team in 1911 and 1912. While serving his country during the war he received the rank of captain. His football team at Luther in 1920 came up to expectations. Only one game was lost and that by one point. Mr. Solem's record at Luther was so impressive that he was given a large increase in salary to become coach at Drake University.

Ralph Movold coached basketball and track and was instructor in physical training at Luther 1920-1921. Mr. Movold was graduated from the North Dakota Agricultural College in 1919, and had a very impressive athletic record. In track he was much handicapped, it being Luther's first year of competition in track since 1904.

Ivan Doseff, now coaching football, basketball, and track at Luther, has been in the coaching game since 1908. While playing on the University of Chicago team he was selected for all-western honors. Mr. Doseff is an advocate of clean athletics and inculcates sportsmanship in the true sense of the word.

S. S. Reque coached the baseball team in 1922. His record as a player is already known to all who are acquainted with Luther College athletics. He has had previous coaching experience at Gale College, and at Luther College in 1907 and 1908.

The Preparatory Department maintains its own athletic teams in football, basketball, and baseball. Competition is carried on with the various academies within the Church and with neighboring high schools. The "Prep." teams have always been of high calibre. This year the Preparatory basketball team coached by Prof. O. W. Qualley was victorious in the Inter-Academy Conference and received possession of the Inter-Academy Conference Cup for one year. Much valuable material for college teams is thus developed in the Preparatory Department. In addition to Prof. O. W. Qualley, Professors M. W. Larsen and S. S. Reque have acted as coaches of Preparatory teams.

V. BASEBALL

Baseball is the favorite game of the American youth. A glance at Luther College's record tempts one to say that it is also the favorite game of the Viking youth, for the great enthusiasm and proficiency in the game shown by the boys of Norwegian descent in this country, even in the first generation, have really been remarkable.

Baseball at Luther had its origin in the baseball movement, so to speak, which spread throughout the West immediately after the Civil War. Intercollegiate competition was not introduced until 1891, but games were played with Decorah and neighboring town teams, such as Waukon, Ft. Atkinson, Ridgeway, and Cresco. In addition to the regular nine, teams were organized by classes, weight, height, etc. The contest with Decorah on May 17th was generally the crucial game of the season. Many and interesting stories are told of the efforts to get players who had been injured, into shape for this game.

The first organized team of which there is any record dates from 1871 or 1872. Its members were: I. Monson, S. Weeks, H. Johnson, H. Røthe, A. Torgerson, G. Lomen, O. Mandt, P. Helgeland, and C. K. Preus.

The records show that the following represented the College in a game with Decorah on May 17, 1879: I. B. Torrison, capt.; T. G. Opsahl, H. J. Kopperdal, Halvor Peterson, H. T. Ytterboe, O. P. Syftestad, O. E. Brecke, G. A. Larsen, and L. M. K. Karstad.

Luther played her first intercollegiate baseball game with St. Olaf College in May, 1891. Space does not permit any extensive account of the success of Luther on the diamond. A short quotation from the "Outing Magazine", an eastern publication, edited by Casper Whitney, a strong supporter of clean college athletics, will have to suffice. In the May issue for 1901 appeared the following writeup of college baseball in the West:

"In baseball the teams of Illinois, Northwestern, Chicago, Michigan, Beloit, Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Iowa are all playing strong games. Michigan, whose only trip was somewhat disappointing, is coming to the front with a rush. The Notre Dame team, too, may be placed in the first class, while Luther College, a small institution in Decorah, Iowa, whose record for pure class athletics is enviable, has one of the best ball nines in the West."

The following is an official roster of Luther College baseball teams from 1884 to 1922 inclusive:

Football was introduced at Luther in 1877, but it was not played then as it is at present. The Rugby rules were followed. Any number of players were permitted on a side. Great interest was taken and it often happened that practically the whole student body took part in the games. The following excerpt is taken from "Chips" for Sept., 1884: "A match game of football is being played between the seniors and juniors combined, against the freshmen and preps. The game has been going on for two days and is not yet done."

From 1892 to 1896 inclusive, intercollegiate contests were held with neighboring colleges. Iowa University, Coe, Upper Iowa, and Carleton were among those met on the gridiron.

1893—S. Orwoll, R. E.; M. Teigen, R. T.; Ness, R. G.; O. Bygland, c.; L. Reque, L. G.; I. Lyngaas, L. T.; I. Anderson, L. E.; O. Juul, Q. B.; K. Thorsgaard, L. H.; E. Bothne (capt.), R. H.; and I. A. Thorson, F. B.

1894—Z. Ordal, I. Anderson, E.; I. Lyngaas, M. Teigen, T.; C. Hjerustad, C. Anderson, G.; O. Bygland, C.; B. Savre, Q. B.; I. A. Thorson, F. B.; E. Bothne, H. B.; S. Orwoll (capt.), H. B.

1895—No games. Captain, B. Savre.

1896—Z. Ordal, Dahlen, O. Eger, E.; I. Anderson, Odegaarden (Odegaard), T.; H. Wein, P. Birkeho, J. L. Johnson, G.; G. Johnson, C.; P. Moen, Q. B.; J. E. Winger, H. B.; I. Lyngaas, (c pt.); A. Bjerke, G. B. Wollan, S. T. Normann, F. B.

In 1896 intercollegiate football was abolished. Class games continued to be popular, however, and were a means of keeping interest in the game alive. A freshman-sophomore game or one between the "Means" and "Extremes" was considered an almost essential part of the 14th of October program.

In the fall of 1918 the S. A. T. C. was represented by a football team. Games were played with Upper Iowa and Campion. These contests aroused keen interest in football among the students and an agitation for permission to play intercollegiate football was at once begun. In 1919 football was again introduced.

VII. BASKETBALL

Basketball was first introduced at Luther in the fall of 1903. Some very interesting inter-class games were played. In 1904 Upper Iowa was met in Luther's first intercollegiate basketball game. Since that time basketball has been a major sport at Luther and has ranked next to baseball in popularity. Below are given the names of players on teams from 1904 to 1922:

VIII. TURNING

When the gymnasium was erected in 1886 turning and gymnastics immediately became popular at the College. Through the efforts of C. A. Sperati, '88, a turning club was organized in December, 1886. Its officers were: C. A. Sperati, foreturner; M. M. Steensland, assistant foreturner; and P. Gylstroem, president; A. Engebretson. The first turning club exhibition was given in May, 1888, under C. A. Sperati's leadership. Since that time public entertainments have been given almost every year.

Luther's turning clubs have come up to the high standard set by the teams in the other branches of athletics. In 1909, the first year Luther took part in the State Gymnastic Meet, the team was awarded the championship. The team was composed of J. Hanson (capt.), F. E. Peterson, E. Severson, O. Hokaason, C. Wisnaes, P. Nestos (mgr.). Score: Luther 256.4, Iowa State Teachers' College 234.2, Iowa University 47.2.

In 1918 state gymnastic meets were discontinued on account of the war. The Luther team entered the ninth annual contest of the Northwestern Gymnastic Society. The rating of teams depended to a large extent on the number of men entered. Hence Luther with six men did not place high in team rating. Capt. Stalland received seventh place in all-around competition.

IX. TRACK

The first home field meet in track took place in 1900. In 1902 intercollegiate meets were introduced. Luther was defeated by Upper Iowa 59-37. In 1903 Upper Iowa defeated Luther 56-40. In 1904 Luther, represented by M. Drotning, O. Hjelle, I. Stub, G. Rodsater, P. Prestegaard, and O. Tonning (capt.), took part in the state field meet. Prestegaard placed third in the pole vault, and Hjelle took second place in the shot put.

Track, however, did not have the same appeal as baseball and tennis. So little interest was shown that track athletics could not be maintained. Luther was not represented on the cinder path from 1905 to 1919.

In 1920 the student body was larger than it had been for several years, with the result that a smaller percentage of students than before could participate in baseball and tennis. To afford more an opportunity for exercise track was again introduced. In 1920 a relay team consisting of C. E. Hook, G. T. Rugland, E. J. Kvammen, and E. G. Trytten was sent to the Drake Relay Meet.

In 1921 Luther met Winona Normal and Dubuque University in dual meets, losing to Winona Normal 74-40 and to Dubuque 81-41. The members of the Luther team were: G. T. Rugland Great interest has been shown in track during the past two seasons. The 1922 team (shown on p. 350) took part in the Iowa Colleges Track and Field Meet, May 12; lost to Dubuque (63-73), June 3; and won from Winona Normal (77-48), May 27.

X. TENNIS

In 1891 Prof. W. Sihler laid out the first tennis court at Luther College and played the first game with Prof. Gisle Bothne. No intercollegiate tournaments were held until 1904.

Many tennis players of championship calibre have been developed at Luther. In 1908 and 1909 Luther won the state championship in both singles and doubles by defeating teams representing Iowa U., Coe, Grinnell, Ames, and Cornell. In 1910 L. Ylvisaker again won the singles championship for Luther.

The handicap tournament, played off every year for the Spaulding trophy, has been a potent factor in keeping interest alive and in developing tennis players.

Below are the names of teams and their records. The numbers refer to matches in a tournament, the side winning the greatest number of matches gets the tournament.

XI. MILITARY DRILL

Peter S. Reque was commissioned by the government to act as captain and drill a company at Luther College in the fall of 1865 and the spring of 1866. This company was formed especially for the purpose of being prepared in the case of trouble from the Indians. Col. Chr. Brandt was in charge of a military company in the fall of 1876. In 1878 renewed enthusiasm resulted in the organization of the Luther College Phalanx, which continued to be an important factor in the physical development of the boys until 1886. Fifty stand of arms of the type used in the Civil War were obtained from the government and constituted the equipment. When not in use the muskets were housed in the armory, now known as the old museum building.

Under such able leaders as J. L. Lee, the first captain of the Phalanx, and his successors O. J. Breda, L. S. Reque, G. Bothne, and O. Ramstad the company became quite skillful in the execution of military manoeuvres. Reviews were given for the public on Memorial Day, the fourteenth of October, and other holidays. "College Chips" for May 4, 1886, contains the following announcement: "A sham battle and some 'double-time movements' of the Phalanx will be some of the attractions on the 17th of May. Come to the celebration. Fun ahead."

With the completion of the gymnasium in 1886 enthusiasm for military drill soon came to an end. The boys began to interest themselves in turning and gymnastics and the other means of exercise which the gymnasium afforded. Although the activities of the Phalanx ended abruptly, it must be given much credit for the service it rendered the boys.

When the United States entered the war in April, 1917, military drill again came into vogue at the College after a lapse of thirty years. Voluntary drill under Prof. O. B. Overn had begun already in October, 1916. A resolution had been passed by the Synod some time previously, recommending that all students except Seniors and Juniors take three hours of military drill each week. This ruling, however, was not put into effect until a state of war existed.

The boys took great interest in the work; and the Seniors and Juniors, though not required to take drill, were among the most enthusiastic. Most of them expected to enlist or be called to the colors in a short time and were, therefore, anxious to get as much training as possible. So great was the enthusiasm that upward of fifty students organized a company which drilled an hour before breakfast six days a week.

Military drill was continued under the auspices of the College with profit both to those who entered the service and to those who remained at school, until the end of the 1917-1918 school year. Prof. N. A. Madson discharged the duties of commander-in-chief in commendable fashion. It was the unanimous opinion of those who entered the service that his instruction was of much value to them.

XII. STUDENTS' ARMY TRAINING CORPS

The organization of the S. A. T. C. at Luther College Oct. 1, 1918, marked the beginning of a period of intensive military training.

The purpose of the War Department in establishing the S. A. T. C. at the various colleges and universities of our country was to train the young college men to be commissioned and non-commissioned officers and at the same time allow them to remain at their respective colleges as long as possible. A strenuous program was outlined by the War Department to fit the men for actual warfare in the shortest possible time. A schedule accounting for every hour of the day was closely followed. The time was divided between academic work and practical training. Eleven hours a week, or about two hours each day, were devoted to military drill.

There were 105 members of the S. A. T. C. at Luther. Third and fourth floors of the main building were appropriated as quarters for the company. The removal of all doors, desks, chairs and other furniture, except bunks, transformed the quarters into real military barracks. Equipment was slow in arriving, and then it came piece-meal. The blankets arrived first. Then followed the rifles, overcoats, and finally the uniforms. No other event except the armistice was the signal for such great rejoicing as the arrival of the uniforms.

The War Department appointed 1st Lieut. H. H. Fisher as Commanding Officer and 2nd Lieut. Allen C. Grundy as Personnel-Adjutant. They were ably assisted in their work by L. C. Sorlien, W. B. Scarvie, and Olaf Ravndal, three of the nine student representatives sent to Fort Sheridan for military instruction the preceding summer. The other six were commissioned and sent to other posts.

Under the excellent supervision of the officers, military instruction progressed rapidly. The two-hour drill period was generally opened with calisthenics and setting-up exercises, such as the "frog-hop", "duck-waddle", "Indian walk", etc. The remainder of the period was devoted to concentrated work in close order drill. When the rifles became a part of the equipment, bayonet practice, the manual of arms, and sighting practice were made an essential part of the daily program. Trench digging was also begun, but was discontinued as soon as the armistice was signed. Inspection of company and quarters took place every Saturday afternoon. The spirit with which the men entered into the work was gratifying and was in a large measure responsible for the success of the S. A. T. C. at Luther College. One and all were dedicated to the service of their country.

As soon as the armistice was signed a marked change was at once apparent in the character of the work. Everyone felt that there was now nothing further to work for. "When do we go home?" was the thought uppermost in the minds of all.

Demobilization began December 11, 1918. Eight who were sick with influenza at the time were discharged later. The last man was mustered out December 19.

In marked contrast to the failure of the S. A. T. C. at so many institutions the unit at Luther College proved a decided success. Favorable comments were repeatedly expressed on the company's ability on the drill field by those in a position to know. Although the interest was naturally greater in the purely military phase of the training than in the academic work, nevertheless the scholastic work was on the whole quite satisfactory. The S. A. T. C. gave ample proof of the service which can be rendered our government in time of war by the colleges of our country. And it established beyond question the loyalty of Luther College.

XIII. LUTHER COLLEGE CADET CORPS

The Luther College Cadet Corps was organized in the fall of 1918 in compliance with the resolution of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, which made military training compulsory for all physically fit students at Luther College. As the members of the S. A. T. C. were already meeting this requirement, the roster of the L. C. C. included only those students who were not admitted to the S. A. T. C.

In Dr. S. C. Ylvisaker, who had been the College's faculty representative at Fort Sheridan the preceding summer, the faculty had a man well qualified to act as commanding officer. Professors O. B. Overn and H. F. Swansen were appointed lieutenants. These officers were equipped at the expense of the College.

In order to make the work of the S. A. T. C. easier, the faculty voted to make the regulations governing the discipline and program of the L. C. C. C. as nearly like those of the S. A. T. C. as possible. The drill period was lengthened to two hours at the members' own request. Inspection and discipline were also military in character. Uniforms were ordered by the members of the company but did not arrive until school had closed for the Christmas holidays.

Although the L. C. C. C. was disbanded after Christmas in favor of the R. O. T. C., its results were not inconsiderable. The boys were taught to respect discipline and established authority. The spirit of cooperation and loyalty displayed at all times in performing assigned tasks or in observing regulations proved the boys to be real patriots.

XIV. RESERVE OFFICERS' TRAINING CORPS

When the S. A. T. C. was demobilized, the College authorities received from the government a questionnaire relative to the organization of a Reserve Officers' Training Corps (R. O. T. C.) at the College. The faculty had been well pleased with the possibilities of combined academic and military training offered by the S. A. T. C. The R. O. T. C. offered these same possibilities, while its demands in a military way were so much less exacting as to differ little from the regulations of the L. C. C. C. Accordingly the R. O. T. C. was applied for and established at Luther College in January, 1919. The L. C. C. C. was discontinued. Lieutenant Fisher, Commanding Officer of the S. A. T. C., was appointed Professor of Military Science and Tactics by the War Department.

The company drilled three hours per week. During the course of the year a general course in military tactics, both theoretical and practical, was given. A six weeks' summer course at certain R. O. T. C. camps was also offered those desiring to take advantage of it. Outside of the regular drill periods the students were not controlled by military discipline.

The government issued practically the same equipment to the R. O. T. C. men as to the regular army men. All supplies were loaned to the College, and it in turn issued them to the men. If anyone failed to turn in his supplies, the College was held responsible. The members, however, were allowed to purchase their equipment at the end of the course if they desired.

The R. O. T. C. unit was not continued after January, 1920, because of a new regulation stipulating that there must be at least one hundred students in the collegiate section of the unit. Seniors and Juniors were exempted from military training. Hence Luther College could not meet the enrollment requirement for maintaining the R. O. T. C.

XV. ATHLETIC IDEALS

"Mens sana in corpore sano" (a sound mind in a sound body), is the cardinal principle upon which all athletic training at Luther College is based. Because Luther College realizes that brains without health are like a man who has a great deal of money with no place to keep it, it stresses as much as possible the development of a strong body. The College also realizes that there is a direct relation between the mind and body, and that whatever tends to cultivate the one cannot fail to benefit the other. It therefore aims to develop the body in the manner most beneficial to the mind. This is effected by inculcating high ideals and standards of perfection in all athletic competition.

From the very first Luther teams have enjoyed an enviable reputation for true sportsmanship. They have been taught to regard self-restraint and gentlemanly Christian conduct as more important than victory. The "anything to win" spirit is not tolerated. The College can point with pride to the fact that financial inducement has never brought or kept a student at Luther College.

Luther College endeavors to conduct athletics in harmony with the spirit of true Christianity. If this could not be done Luther College would be the first to abolish these activities. That such a thing is possible was clearly demonstrated to the satisfaction of all at the joint meeting of the Student's Union Convention and the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America Academy Conference, held at Luther College March 7-10, 1922. The program of the S. U. C. was purely religious in character, while the N. L. C. A. Conference program consisted of literary and athletic contests. Some questioned the advisability of holding two meetings so diametrically opposed in character, as they said, at the same time. The success of the joint conference proves conclusively that the religious principles laid down by the one can be carried over and applied in the other.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

MUSIC

C. N. EVANSON

I. PLACE OF MUSIC AT LUTHER COLLEGE

SINCE Luther College aims to prepare men for church work, it has always provided instruction in subjects that would prove especially valuable in the field of theology. One of these subjects is music.

II. COURSES IN MUSIC

From the beginning instruction was given in vocal music, two hours a week in all classes. It was natural that the vocal, rather than the instrumental, was stressed, especially at first, since the young minister would find more use for the vocal; and then, too, musical instruments were very expensive in those days.

The importance attached to instruction in music has not dwindled with the passing of time. Music is still offered in both College and Preparatory Departments, as an elective in the former, and as a required subject in the preparatory classes. Music was made an elective in the College Department in 1892.

III. VOCAL MUSIC

The first instruction in music was given primarily to acquaint the student with the Lutheran hymns and chorals, which form such an important part of religious worship. Later, as the school grew to greater proportions, and as more teachers were added, the courses in music came to embrace instruction in varied branches, such as the history of music, harmony, and rudiments of music. The instruction to-day has by no means drifted from the original form, namely, that of stressing a thorough knowledge of Lutheran hymns and choral music.

As singing was the first kind of music at Luther College, and for a time the only kind, it was natural that there should develop singing societies outside of the class-room. The first attempt at organizing a chorus was the Idun Quartette, in 1869 (?), with N. Førde, J. Nordby, N. J. Ellestad, M. Koefod, C. K. Preus, O. P. Vangsnes, and H. J. Strand as members. In 1877 this quartette was reorganized by N. J. Bakke and augmented to number twelve members: C. M. Jensen (Grønliid), T. K. Thorvilson, J. M. O. Ness, 1st tenor; N. J. Bakke, T. Hoyme, Chr. Pederson, 2nd tenor; A. P. Rondestvedt, O. Løkensgaard, J. A. Blilie, 1st bass; H. B. Thorgrimsen, T. O. Homme, A. Øfstedal, 2nd bass. From this small but creditable beginning many vocal organizations have been effected, among which can be named: Luther College Choir; Luther College Chorus; Luther College Glee Club; Idun; Maal-trosten, 1875 (R. O. Brandt, director); Humla; Heimdal; Bingo Glee Club; Upidee Glee Club; Lorelei, 1882; Symphonia, 1877; besides various quartettes, choruses, octettes, etc., in the Irving, Amphictyonic, Normannalaget, Mjølnær, Norrøna, and Idun literary societies. There were no doubt many others; excellent organizations of "fourth floor harmonizers."

LUTHER COLLEGE CHORUS, NORWAY TOUR, 1914

There have been, of course, leaders and organizers who have carried on the work of keeping the interest in vocal music always keen. The most important of these were: Prof. F. A. Schmidt, 1861-65; Rev. N. O. Brandt, 1865-81; Mr. Ola Solheim, 1881-82; Mr. J. O. Tingelstad, 1883-85; Prof. Wm. Sihler, 1890-95; Prof. Haldor Hanson, 1882-83, 1888-90, 1895-1904, and Prof. Carlo A. Sperati, 1885-88, and 1905 to the present time.

Students from the College have always been interested in the musical activities of our local Lutheran churches. They have always shown a willingness to take an active part in the regular choir work, besides rendering aid on special occasions, when cantatas and the like have been undertaken by the church choirs.

The first concert appearance of the church choir took place during Sperati's student directorship of 1884-88, when it rendered, among other numbers, "The Sword of Damascus," "Gloria in Excelsis," and the "Hallelujah Chorus" from the "Messiah." Among the cantatas given later are: "The Seven Last Words of Christ" (several times), "Bethany," "Hymn of Praise," "Ruth," "The Holy City," "The City of God," and, at the 60th anniversary of Luther College, "The 60th Anniversary Cantata" (words by Rev. Paul Koren, music by Prof. John Dahle), together with Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise." The "Cantata" was repeated by request during the Norwegian Lutheran Church Academy Conference and Students' Union Convention, March 10, 1922.

Students have from time to time directed the church choirs. Among the student choir directors we have: N. J. Bakke, K. A. Kasberg, and C. A. Sperati. Professors H. Hanson, Wm. Sihler, and C. A. Sperati have also as teachers at Luther College directed the choir. Aside from this, the students have been afforded the opportunity, in conjunction with the people of Decorah, of rendering several of the world's greatest oratorios. The first oratorio given in Decorah was the "Creation," rendered on March 15, 1890, under Prof. H. Hanson's leadership. On May 29, 1895, Niels W. Gade's oratorio, "The Crusaders," was given in Decorah, by a chorus of about 100, assisted by an orchestra of 20. College students assisted both in the chorus and in the orchestra. Prof. Haldor Hanson directed. Barth's "Weinacht Oratorium" was rendered during the Christmas season in 1900 and 1901 under Prof. Sihler's directorship.

When Prof. Sperati came to Luther College in 1905 he effected the organization of the Decorah Choral Union, composed of citizens of Decorah and students of Luther College. This organization has from time to time sung and resung some of the greatest works. On May 24, 1906, it rendered Haydn's "Creation"; on June 18, 1907, Handel's "Messiah"; on May 27, 1908, Mendelssohn's "St. Paul"; Handel's "Messiah" was repeated in 1909 and on Dec. 18, 1909, a miscellaneous program was given. Handel's "Messiah" was given at the 1911 Commencement, June 20, by a chorus of 165 voices, assisted by an orchestra of 26. This oratorio was repeated by request Oct. 14 of the same year. In the spring of 1912, Mendelssohn's "Elijah" was given; and on Dec. 15 of the same year Handel's "Messiah." Bruch's "The Lay of the Bell" was rendered May 12, 1913; the "Messiah" April 24, 1916; Haydn's "Seasons" March 21, 1917, repeated, by request, June 3 of the same year.

This work was temporarily abandoned during the war, but was revived again in 1920, and on March 16, 1920, the "Creation" was given. This date represents 30 years since the "Creation" was first given in Decorah. This oratorio was the last oratorio rendered by the Decorah Choral Union. The church choir then took up the work, and with the assistance of some members of the Decorah Choral Union rendered the "Messiah" on Palm Sunday, 1921, and repeated the same oratorio on December 18, of the same year.

IV. INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC

Although great stress has always been laid on vocal music at Luther College, and much interest has been shown in fostering vocal organizations, this does not mean that the instrumental music has suffered thereby.

In 1877 an orchestra was organized by J. P. Kopang. It consisted of but three members at first, namely, J. P. Kopang, violin; T. K. Thorvilson, violin; K. A. Kasberg, cello. In the spring of 1878, the following members were added to the orchestra: R. O. Brandt, guitar; Oscar Torrison, flute; and A. L. Himle, cornet. Mr. Himle was soon succeeded by O. Solheim. No regular concerts were given by the orchestra until Nov., 1883; another concert was given in Feb., 1884.

From the time it was organized in 1877 to the present time there has always been an orchestra at Luther College, with the exception of 1891-92, when all interest seems to have drifted to the band. The orchestra has played on many festive occasions, such as, the 14th of Oct. and 17th of May celebrations, concerts, literary programs, etc., both at the College and downtown.

During its existence the orchestra has had the following directors: J. P. Kopang, 1877-78; K. A. Kasberg, 1878-81; H. Hanson, 1881-83; K. A. Kasberg, 1883, until Christmas; J. Tingelstad, from Christmas, 1883, to 1885; C. A. Sperati, 1885-88; Prof. H. Hanson, 1888-89; E. G. Mellem, 1889-90; H. Moore, 1890-91; I. A. Thorson, 1892-95; Prof. H. Hanson, 1895-1904; Prof. C. A. Sperati, 1905—.

LUTHER COLLEGE ORCHESTRA, 1896
Haldor Hanson, Director

It will be seen that during its 45 years of life the orchestra has had eight directors, of whom two have been in charge a total of 34 years—Haldor Hanson, 14 years, and Carlo A. Sperati, 20 years. In Prof. Hanson's day it had a membership of 30 or more and maintained a high standard. Under Prof. Sperati it has done excellent work, though the membership has generally been smaller on account of the greater general interest among the students in the Concert Band.

The Luther College Concert Band was organized in Feb., 1878, largely through the efforts of H. B. Thorgrimsen. There had been talk of organizing a band, and when a local city band disbanded, those interested in having a band at the College recognized this as the logical time to start one. Accordingly, Thorgrimsen called a meeting of those most vitally interested in the subject. After he had portrayed the possibilities in glowing terms, a motion was made by I. B. Torrison to go on with the matter. This motion was seconded but flatly voted down.

That certainly would be enough to discourage the average young man, but not so with Thorgrimsen. He talked to the different boys privately, and it was finally decided to try to collect the necessary $250.00 to purchase this $500 set of instruments. Committees were sent out to solicit donations, and in this way $100 was realized. The balance, $150, was covered by a note to which all the boys and Prof. L. S. Reque were signers. The members of the first band were: O. Solheim, E. Haugen, A. Eiken, O. C. Grønvold, O. S. Rygg, H. Allen (Ellenson), O. Glasøe, E. O. Vik, J. M. Ness, J. W. Preus, C. O. Lein, T. Hoyme, and H. B. Thorgrimsen, who was the leader. The first appearance of the band was made in the spring of 1878, when it played a few simple pieces. On Decoration Day, 1879, the band for the first time played downtown.

A word about the student directors of the band may not be amiss. It meant a great deal of work and worry to be responsible for the band. The leader was, for instance, responsible to the school for the conduct and good behavior of the boys. He was the one who had to shoulder all the work and responsibility, and no doubt got the least enjoyment out of it. Much credit is due the members of the early bands for keeping the interest in band work alive, but certainly still more credit is due the leaders. One leader tells of a concert he had scheduled at the College, but of which he had forgotten to speak to the president. We can imagine his position in trying to explain the matter to President Larsen. On trips the responsibility and difficulties of the student director would be especially great. And yet, concerts were given; trips to nearby towns, and even quite distant cities, were taken by the band, with student directors.

That progress was made is easily seen in comparing "Op, Matroser," and "Sønner af Norge", rendered in 1879, with "Light Cavalry Overture," by Suppe, selections from "Il Trovatore," and selections from "Pinafore," rendered in 1882. Concerning the quality of music rendered by these early organizations there can be no doubt. They played standard music, and rendered it, as is frequently quoted, "professionally." Several members played solo parts at the programs.

One problem that the band has always had to contend with is that of providing instruments. This task in the early days was no small one. The second set of instruments, procured during the time that A. O. Johnson was leader, shows not only what difficulties the boys had to contend with, but how wisely they met those difficulties. To supply these new instruments A. O. Johnson and Tjernagel wrote to influential men in the Church, former students, former band men, and friends of the College, to see if they would not donate an instrument. The result was gratifying. The following instruments were obtained in this way:

- Eb Cornet, H. M. Tjernagel, Story City, Ia.
- Solo Bb Cornet, L. J. Tjernagel, Decorah, Ia.
- 1st Bb Cornet, J. C. Tarvestad, Decorah, Ia.
- 2nd Bb Cornet, H. Thorson, Elbow Lake, Minn.
- Solo Alto, L. O. Thorpe, Willmar, Minn.
- 1st Tenor, J. Thompson and sons, Beloit, Wis.
- 2nd Tenor, Students of Luther College.
- Baritone, O. Torrison, Manitowoc, Wis.
- Bb Bass, A. C. Haugan, Minneapolis, Minn.
- Tuba, Decorah friends.
- Bass Drum, H. G. Haugan, Milwaukee, Wis.

The donor of each instrument had his name engraved on the instrument. These instruments, however, did not constitute a full instrumentation, and as the additional instruments that were purchased left the boys with a deficit of $200.00, permission was given to give a concert on Oct. 14, 1890, at Steyer's Opera House. The financial results of the concert were a success; enough money was realized to pay off the indebtedness, and Johnson and Tjernagel were relieved of considerable worry.

Two complete sets of instruments were purchased in 1906 and 1907. Low pitch was adopted at this early date.

V. MUSICAL UNION

In passing from the musical activities of the earlier period to those of the middle period, one chooses as a convenient date 1895, as that represents the year that Prof. Haldor Hanson returned to the College, to remain until 1904.

Upon his return he organized the Luther College Musical Union, amalgamating the band, orchestra, choir, and glee club into one student organization. The purpose of the Musical Union is "to establish a closer relation between the different musical organizations, and thus, by a joint effort, promote the interests of each organization composing it." The first officers of the Musical Union were: Chr. Anderson, president; O. J. Ordal, vice-president;

I. M. Lyngaas, secretary; Chr. Thompson, treasurer. The members of the executive committee were: A. Gullixson, S. Brevig, College Band; Theo. Normann, T. Ringoen, College Orchestra; C. T. Clauson, G. B. Wollan, College Choir; Olav Jahr, Chr. Thompson, Glee Club.

That the Musical Union has accomplished its purpose in the past is evidenced by the progress that has been made by the various organizations. Through the concerted action of the Union the responsibility of keeping up the various organizations was shifted from the shoulders of a few to the many. New zeal and interest were shown that could not help but make for progress. Through the Musical Union it has been possible to purchase instruments the value of which approaches $15,000. In all, the Musical Union now owns 127 instruments, besides a beautiful set of cathedral chimes, bells, xylophone, and a full set of traps. It has also been possible to supply the band and orchestra with the best of music. To-day the musical collections consist of the latest standard band publications. These things, together with the financing of the many tours taken by the band from time to time, have all been taken care of by the Musical Union, through dues and concerts. The College has given the Musical Union no financial support.

Prof. Hanson's return to College as an instructor in music and director of the various musical organizations created a new interest in music at Luther. One thing that indicates this is the increase in the membership of the band, orchestra, and chorus. Thus, the Concert Band, increased from 28 in 1894 to 36 in 1895. In 1897 its number had reached 53. The Musical Library, founded in 1883 by J. O. Tingelstad, was also increased during Prof. Hanson's regime. The collection of reference works on music in the college library is fairly complete. The collection is being augmented yearly.

The increase in the number of concerts and public appearances of the musical forces at College also gives evidence of renewed interest and zeal along musical lines.

In 1905 Prof. Carlo A. Sperati came to Luther College to take charge of the musical activities. If there was progress in the past, certainly there has been even greater progress since 1905.

The Decorah Choral Union has already been mentioned as having been organized by Prof. Sperati in 1905.

The need of a "feeder" for the Concert Band was at once seen by Prof. Sperati, and he organized the "Second Band". Later the "Beginners' Band" was organized; also the "Beginners' Orchestra". Through these beginners' organizations the personnel of the more advanced forces is kept at a more uniform figure, and the losses from graduation and other sources are not so seriously felt.

To stimulate interest in music at the College, maintain the musical standards already set, build up new standards, and advertise the school, Prof. Sperati worked out the possibilities of extended tours by the band. More will be said concerning trips by musical organizations of the College, but they are mentioned here because of the bigger scale upon which they were carried out, beginning with 1905.

VI. BAND TOURS

The first trip made by the band was undertaken in the summer of 1886, and lasted from June 21 to July 6.* Spring Grove, Minn., and Minneapolis were visited, one concert being given at Spring Grove, and one in Harmonia Hall, Minneapolis, where the band was assisted by the Kjerulf Male Quartette. Fortunately, Mr. A. C.

*"College Chips" for June, 1895, says that this trip was undertaken by the band and orchestra.

Haugan of Minneapolis financed the trip; it was largely upon his invitation that the boys set out. The financial part was the only feature of the trip that was not a marked success.

The next trip of any length was taken in 1890, when the band visited Spring Grove and Mabel, Minn.; Story City, Bode, Thor, and Roland, Ia.; Menomonie, Hudson, and Baldwin, Wis.; Minneapolis, Rushford, and Highland Prairie, Minn. The trip lasted from June 23 to July 25. It was a success, although there were times when the funds were none too plentiful. Prior to, as well as after 1890 there were minor trips by the band, orchestra, choir, and glee club to near-by congregations and towns. These were always successful.

As has been stated, the period of the extended tour began in 1905, when Prof. Sperati resumed control of music at Luther College. In 1906 the band made an extended tour of 10 weeks to the Pacific Coast and the Northwest. In 1907 it played at Story City, Ia., for the Sangerfest. In 1908 the band played at the Synod meeting in Chicago. In 1911 a 12 weeks' tour was made to the Pacific Coast and the Northwest States.

In 1914 the climax of band tours was achieved when the band represented Luther College and Norwegian-American culture, especially in the field of music, at the 100th anniversary of Norway's independence. A total of 127 admission concerts were played, besides, no doubt, an equal number of special short concerts and serenades. Ten different countries, represented by 8 different flags, and six capital cities, namely: Washington, Christiania, Copenhagen, Berlin, Paris, and London, were visited. Concerts were given in the principal cities of the Northwest and the East, in the order named: St. Paul, Chicago, Cleveland, Washington, Brooklyn, Boston, Milwaukee, and Minneapolis. There were sixty band members on the Norway tour, besides seven others.

This tour extended from April 24 to August 19. Only the most favorable comment could be offered on the tour. It was a success in every way, and demonstrated the height of efficiency to which Prof. Sperati had developed his band musically. Anyone would hesitate to undertake such a stupendous tour from a financial point of view, and yet, financially, too, the tour was a success. The cost of the tour was about $32,000. The Norway Tour will stand unsurpassed for years to come. A most interesting, detailed account of this tour is set forth in "Norgesfærden", edited by Prof. Carlo A. Sperati, and President C. K. Preus, and written by Prof. O. A. Tingelstad, business manager of the band, Rev. J. C. K. Preus, press agent, and Rev. J. A. Moldstad, impresario. Rev. J. A. Moldstad served as impresario for the European end of this tour, and Prof. B. K. Savre for the American.

In 1915 the band was officially engaged for ten days at the Panama-Pacific International Exposition at San Francisco, Cal. Rev. E. M. Stensrud was especially responsible for this engagement. During its stay it assisted also in the concert of the Choral Union of the Synod. Also on this tour the band gave concerts on the Pacific Coast and through the Northwest.

The band made a short tour to St. Paul in 1917 to take part in the convention at which the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America was organized.

LUTHER COLLEGE CONCERT BAND, 1920

A tour to Milwaukee to assist in the Quadri-centennial Reformation Jubilee Festival was made in 1917. Macfarland, Janesville, Beloit, Muskego, Waterford, and Stoughton were also visited on this tour.

In May, 1919, the first national convention of the Young People's Luther League and Choral Union was held at Red Wing, Minn. The band took part in this convention by assisting in the choral work and church services, and by rendering two open air concerts. The band took a similar part in the second triennial convention of the Young People's Luther League, held at La Crosse, Wis., June 8-11, 1922.

With the establishment of the S. A. T. C. at Luther College during the war, the band assumed the character of a military organization. Its activities, as well as the "Camp Sings" held during this time, were commendable and were commented on very favorably by the commandant, Lieutenant Harold H. Fisher.

In 1919 the band made two trips to Mason City, Ia. On September 27-28, 1919, it played for the Young People's and Choral Union Convention of the St. Ansgar Circuit. On November 18, the band played at a homecoming for the Cerro Gordo County service men. On both occasions the band did well.

A more extensive tour was made during the summer of 1920, lasting from June 16 to 25. Some of the places visited on this tour were: Albert Lea, Minneapolis, Minn., (where the band played for the Choral Union Convention); and Scarville, Clear Lake, Eagle Grove, Story City, Radcliffe, Jewell, Roland, Ft. Dodge, Humboldt, Bode, and Belmond, Iowa. In the fall of 1920 (Sept. 7-12), the band played at Ames, Ia., for the Choral Union and Young People's Luther League Convention.

The 60th Anniversary Tour of the summer of 1921, lasting from June 7 to August 22, embraced the Middle West, the North Pacific States, and Southern Canada.*

That the trips, both short and extended, that have been taken in the past by the different musical forces of Luther College and especially by the band, have been of inestimable value to the College is of course evident. From a small beginning it has been possible through the untiring efforts of the boys and their respective directors to reach the extent of tours that assume the vast proportions of the Pacific Coast Tours, and the Norway Tour. The credit for the more extended tours is due without question to Prof. Sperati. Most valuable assistance has also been given on recent tours by Prof. Enoch E. Peterson as business manager. May the future hold even greater and more extended tours in store for the band than have been enjoyed by it in the past.

VII. INSTRUCTORS AND DIRECTORS

Mention has already been made of the men who acted as student or faculty directors of vocal music. As student directors of instrumental music at Luther we have the following: Rev. H. B. Thorgrimsen, 1878-1879; O. Glasøe, 1879-February, 1881; O. Solheim, February, 1881-1882; O. Glasøe, 1882 until Christmas; Eugene Krohn, Christmas, 1882-1885; L. A. Larsen, 1885-1886; J. Linnevold, 1886-1890; A. O. Johnson, 1890-1891; H. M. Tjernagel, 1891-1893; O. Omlie, 1893-October, 1894; I. A. Thorson, October, 1894-1895. Prof. Hanson took charge of the band in

*On this tour, as on most of the previous ones, the band enjoyed the matronly care of Mrs. Sperati. It was also fortunate in having at its disposal during the entire tour the services of the college nurse, Miss Theresse E. Arneson (now Mrs. B. J. Hovde).

1895, remaining its director until 1904; Prof. Sperati took charge in the spring of 1905. Aside from these directors, the following have also been instrumental in furthering music at Luther: In 1885 I. D. Ylvisaker organized a flageolet sextette, called "The Nightingale". Theo. Ringoen, Chr. Anderson, S. T. Normann, and Chr. Thompson directed the orchestra, glee club, chorus, and band, respectively, during Prof. Hanson's vacation in 1896. Hans Moen organized a drum corps in 1896. A mandolin club, reorganized in 1898, was directed by Thomas Torgerson. Mr. Coup and Melvin Drotning directed the band immediately before Prof. Sperati arrived, and G. A. Hanson directed the glee club. N. J. Bakke was active especially in vocal circles.

In the matter of special instruction, the different music professors at the College have always been willing to give private help to any student interested in any particular instrument. Aside from this, there has been, especially in late years, a decided effort on the part of the school authorities to secure special instructors in piano, violin, and voice. Among the most recent instructors in these fields we can mention Mrs. Jessie Ervin Marsh and Miss Katherine Hustvedt, piano and organ; Mrs. Ruth Downie and Mrs. Alma Marie Brown, violin; Mrs. L. A. Moe, piano and voice.

The musical organizations of Luther College have accomplished great things in the past, but they hope to be able to accomplish even greater things in the future. The Musical Union has, for instance, as its chief objective at present the work of supplying the College with a pipe organ. This Memorial Organ is to be placed in the college chapel in honor of O. Angelo Sperati, who passed away November 8, 1916, at the age of 16 years. Angelo was an active member of the Musical Union for 8 years and had become exceedingly proficient as a performer on the cornet, piano, and pipe organ. Great hopes were entertained for him in the future, only to be shattered by his departure from this world. Surely a more fitting memorial to Angelo could not be found than a musical one.**

The work of providing the Memorial Organ has been going on successfully. As was stated, the organ is to be placed in the college chapel. This fact brings us to a still greater objective, namely, that of providing a building that will serve as a chapel and music hall.

The band has from the beginning operated under the handicap of unsatisfactory quarters in which to carry on its work. In the days of "No. 45," and later the "Chicken Coop", the need of a suitable music hall must have been felt. To-day that need is felt even more keenly.

With the realization of the music hall objective we can certainly look to the musical organizations of Luther College to accomplish even greater things in the future than they have done in the past.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

KNUT GJERSET

HE was small ere he grew big. It is the old, old story", says the poet A. O. Vinje about his favorite hero Storegut. In conformity with this law of all life, Luther College has also had its years of infancy when it was small in numbers as well as in material equipment. Its first president, Dr. Laur. Larsen, describes very vividly how small it was in 1861 when it was first established in a parsonage at Halfway Creek, near La Crosse, Wisconsin. "The year that the school was in Halfway Creek", he says, "we had only the one building, the parsonage, without any outhouses of any kind. And how many people were crowded together in this building? There were two teachers and their families. Professor Schmidt had one child, and Professor Larsen two, one of whom died in October. The school had sixteen students, but not more than eleven at any one time. Christian Nilsen and his wife were employed as steward and stewardess for the joint household, as separate housekeeping for each family could not be established. As Nilsen was a carpenter, he made all the simple furniture we had. He also performed such manual labor as the students were unable to do. The housekeepers had one child, and Mrs. Nilsen's mother was also staying with them. Professor Larsen had one room for himself and family, a small adjoining room being used as office, spare room, and hospital. The meals were served in the kitchen, where all ate at the same table. The students were divided into two classes, each of which had one room. These rooms were furnished in the following manner: Our steward had made some narrow beds with rope bottoms, which were placed along the walls. Along the middle of the floor stood long, home-made tables, made as narrow as possible to save room. Between the beds and the tables stood long wooden benches. When the boys arose in the morning, they only had to step across the benches to seat themselves at the tables, where they were to study their lessons." Small it was, indeed, this infant Luther College. So small that a committee on standardization of colleges in our day would never have discovered it. And still it was great even then in those qualities which make an institution of learning truly successful. It had earnest and devoted students; teachers of learning and ability, inspired with a high purpose, consecrated to a great work, trained and steadfast in the Word of God. So great was Luther College in spiritual life and force of character that it has never grown since in those essentials; that even now, after sixty years of development and progress in various lines, our prayer must be: May it never grow smaller than it was at its beginning in these traits so necessary to the success of a Christian school.

FIRST HOME OF LUTHER COLLEGE—
Halfway Creek Parsonage, 1861-62

The founders of Luther College undoubtedly dreamed their dreams. Their visions were not of columned porticos and marble walls, but as practical men they knew that suitable buildings and equipment were necessary to secure the future growth of the institution. No one exercised a more active influence in providing means and equipment for the new school than Rev. V. Koren, the most astute and brilliant of the men who guided the Norwegian Lutheran Synod during the early years. In the many struggles for orthodox Lutheran doctrine waged in those times, no one quite equaled him in thorough scholarship, critical discernment, dialectic skill, or resourceful leadership. A deep religious interest had moved him to turn his steps from elegant home surroundings in Norway. After graduating from the University of Christiania he left influential friends and assured distinction to cast his lot with emigrants in a pioneer wilderness. But even in these rustic surroundings courtly elegance and refinement of manners never forsook him. His devout religious character was of an enlightened and intellectual type. He frowned upon emotionalism, but clung with unswerving fidelity to the doctrine of the verbal inspiration of the Bible. The word gegraptai (it is written) engraved on the seal of the Synod was like a device emblazoned on his spiritual armor in every religious controversy. But although he was found in the forefront of every battle where purity of doctrine was at stake, he loved peace, and counted it his chief mission to do a pastor's work of preaching the Gospel to his congregations. He hated all sham as thoroughly as he loved all true culture. He was never happier than when he was engaged in fostering intellectual interests and in organizing cultural forces among his people. His spirit has lived in the Church which he served, and in Luther College which he was instrumental in founding. Even now that he is no longer among the living, his impressive personality towers greater than ever as he recedes into the gathering shadows of the past.

The early fathers of the Norwegian Lutheran Synod understood fully the importance of proper training for the ministers of the Church. According to their views the ministers should not be preachers only, but spiritual and intellectual leaders capable of waging successfully the battles of a Church forced to remain militant by existing circumstances, being surrounded on all sides by religious influences of every sort. The school to be erected would accordingly have to be of a high type, a spiritual armory where theological leaders could be properly equipped. The students should not only be well versed in Christian doctrines and in the teachings of the Church, in history and modern languages; they should also be specially prepared for theological study through extensive courses in Latin, Greek, and Hebrew, as no scholarly theologians could be developed except through a thorough knowledge of the classical languages in which the Scriptures and most of the theological literature are written. The teachers should take care to impart genuine intellectual culture, to cultivate in the students love for simplicity and truth, and to banish from their minds all pretense, sham, and humbug. The primary purpose of the school should be to prepare young men for the study of theology, but it should also serve the people as a general institution of learning. The committee appointed to superintend the erection of the College, of which Revs. V. Koren and C. L. Clausen were the leading members, states in its report to the Church Council of November 5, 1861: "The committee has unanimously decided so to arrange the plan of the institution that the school which is to prepare students for the theological seminary shall also receive students who wish to prepare themselves for other professions, and desire to serve their country in those civil callings which require more extensive knowledge." This, then, was Luther College as it was conceived in the minds of its founders.

In 1857, at a meeting of the Synod held in the Little Iowa congregation, Winneshiek County, Iowa, of which Rev. V. Koren was pastor, a resolution was passed that a higher institution of learning—a university—was to be established, and that a fund for this purpose was to be raised by general subscription. In 1861 a committee of which Professor Laur. Larsen, and Revs. V. Koren and H. A. Preus, president of the Synod, were leading members, recommended to the general church meeting held at Rock Prairie, Wisconsin, that steps should at once be taken to build a school in Decorah, Iowa, this town "being centrally located and easy of access", and that the thirty-two acre tract of land which Rev. V. Koren had purchased there for the sum of $1,500 should be bought for school grounds. This recommendation was adopted by the meeting, which resolved to erect a school building in Decorah. A more beautiful site could not have been selected. At this time Decorah was still a small frontier town, but immigrants from Norway were pouring into this center of early Norwegian immigration. Every summer numbers of immigrant chests would arrive in town bearing the address "Decorah, Jova". New thriving Norwegian settlements were springing up on all sides in northern Iowa and southern Minnesota, and many congregations were organized. But the flow of immigration gradually veered to the northwest, and the great railways, which courted wealth rather than beauty, extended their giant arms in the same direction. Decorah was not to become a queen in the commercial world, nor did the town even have the good fortune to be located on one of the principal lines of communication. Like some unwooded country beauty it was destined to remain in its semi-rustic isolation. In time this affected the growth of Luther College rather unfavorably, but it has tended also to render permanent its conservative individual character. Even now, after sixty years, it remains what its founders dedicated it to be—a classical college for men.

In the effort to raise a university fund of $50,000 the lead was taken by President H. A. Preus' congregations at Spring Prairie, Bonnet Prairie, and Norway Grove, Wisconsin, and by Rev. V. Koren's congregations in Winneshiek County, near Decorah. But the newer congregations in Minnesota on the very frontier, where the Indians massacred and scalped their victims in 1862, were not behindhand in contributing to the full extent of their ability. Already in 1861 the sum of $19,332 in paid subscriptions was reported. In 1864 the amount subscribed reached $51,831.87. The task of raising such a sum in scattered new settlements of immigrant pioneers still living in their simple log cabins, in those dark days of the Civil War when most of the strongest men were away from home fighting for their country in the armies of the Union, when money was so scarce, and farm products so cheap, could be accomplished only because the settlers were willing to make the greatest sacrifices. We read with an interest not unmingled with emotion the subscription lists of those days: 1862; Styrk Reque, $100; Peder Simon Nordgaren, $100; Gunder Kitelsen Lunde, $100; Knud Halvorsen Dalen, $100; etc. One hundred dollars payable in gold was a large sum in those days when eggs were sold for six cents a dozen, butter for ten cents a pound, dressed pork for two and a half to three cents a pound, and when the average farm with houses and improvements was not worth over five or six hundred dollars. If our people now would give, not in proportion, but half in proportion, one might wonder what would really happen.

Until the building should be erected the school at Halfway Creek was to receive new temporary quarters in Decorah in the building now known as St. Cloud Hotel, which had been bought for the purpose. Here Luther College began the second year of its activity in the fall of 1862. The following summer a new church meeting at Rock River, Wisconsin, passed a resolution that the school building should be completed as soon as possible, and that the work should be carried forward with the greatest energy. In June, 1864, the work on the foundation had advanced so far that the corner-stone could be laid. This was done with appropriate ceremonies on the 30th of that month. On February 1, 1865, the College was incorporated under the name "The Norwegian Luther College", with Rev. H. A. Preus as president of the corporation, Rev. V. Koren secretary, Professor Laur. Larsen treasurer; and Rev. N. Brandt, Thore Peterson, Gulbrand T. Lomen, Jens J. Naeset, Tjerand Johnson, and Rev. O. J. Hjort as trustees. The official report of the seventh annual meeting of the Synod says about the articles of incorporation: "In the Synod meeting, the articles of incorporation of the Norwegian Luther College were read; also the deed to its property in Decorah. It was stated that after unsuccessful attempts to incorporate the Synod, the College was incorporated in such a manner that all ministers and representatives at the Synod meetings are members of the college corporation, and must elect the officials (board of trustees) of the corporation."

SECOND HOME OF LUTHER COLLEGE—
St. Cloud Hotel, 1862-65

In the fall of 1865 the college building, costing nearly $75,000, was so nearly completed that it could open its doors to the student body for the school year. On October 14th of that year it was dedicated with impressive ceremonies as The Norwegian Luther College. Thousands of people had gathered from far and near for this occasion, the most memorable church event that the Norwegian settlers had yet attended in America. It is estimated that 6,000 people participated in the festival. Early Saturday morning a large procession formed at the bridge across the Upper Iowa River, and marched to the college building. The Church Council, and ministers and delegates from a large number of congregations were present, also representatives from the college and theological seminary of the German Lutheran Missouri Synod, the professors Lange and Brauer. During the program in the college building speeches were made by Prof. F. A. Schmidt, Rev. V. Koren and Prof. Lange. The president of the Synod, Rev. H. A. Preus, delivered the dedication sermon, choosing as his text the following words from the 126th Psalm: "The Lord hath done great things for us; whereof we are glad."

The dedication festival was over. Congratulations and hearty wishes for success had been received, the friends and visitors had come and gone. The school now found itself established in a new, commodious home, where it could enter upon years of diligent labor with hope and cheerfulness. No one felt more elated over the completion of the college building than Professor Laur. Larsen, president of the school since its first humble beginning in Halfway Creek. Now he could be seen in his office, with beaming face bent over his books and papers, working from break of day till ten o' clock at night, the regular length of his working day during the forty-one years which he was president of Luther College. Peter Laurentius Larsen (Laur. Larsen) brought to his work a methodical diligence and conscientious punctuality which were the results of rigorous discipline and thorough early training. His election proved to be the choice not only of an administrative officer, but of a character and a policy. As a devout Lutheran theologian and firm supporter of the ideals of classical learning he proved to be the best possible exponent of those traits which have become most distinctive in the life of Luther College. Kind and fatherly in his ways, averse to all show and ostentation, he adhered with patriarchal strength and serenity of mind to pure Biblical doctrine, conforming rigorously to Christian principles in all details of life and conduct. He was not only the administrative head but the spiritual father of the institution. During his long incumbency he infused into it his own spirit, giving it so distinct and individual a character that later growth has never changed its fundamental traits. The phrase "Luther College spirit", though undefined and probably undefinable, is still by some used to indicate a certain austere and conservative religious and intellectual attitude, a love of scholarly attainments, and opposition to all sham and display supposed to characterize Luther College men. How well Larsen succeeded in realizing the chief aim of the school can be seen from the fact that during his presidency, 1861-1902, sixty-five per cent of the graduates of the College entered the theological seminary. If knowledge is power, character is a still greater power. Larsen had both. He was an accurate scholar and a well disciplined theologian, but it was his character rather than his knowledge which made him a great educator. He imparted to Luther College the power of his own Christian character, a force which made it a strong and influential institution of learning, even though it has remained relatively small in point of numbers. For many years Professor Larsen was also the editor of the official organ of the Synod, the "Kirketidende". As we remember him now plying his never weary pen, bending his white head over his large open Bible, we can only say: May God give us men equally faithful and unselfish in their devotion to divine truth and conscientious service to mankind.

Luther College continued to prosper. In the decade 1865-1875 the number of students rose from 58 to 229, and many new teachers were added to the faculty. The south wing of the college building, completed in 1874, was dedicated on December 2nd of that year. In 1881 the course of study which extended through six years including the college preparatory classes was lengthened to seven years. Hitherto the College had been operated on the plan of the Latin schools in Norway; now the American plan of a college preparatory or high school course and a four-year college course was adopted. Besides training students for entrance to the College the preparatory course should give young men such general education as would fit them for business pursuits and for general leadership in their home communities. The growing need of teachers also led to the establishing at Luther College of a teachers' course, which was maintained from 1865 till 1886. At first the only aim was to prepare parochial teachers, but in 1868 an extra year was added to the course so that teachers could be educated also for the public schools. The College was not only growing in numbers, buildings and equipment, it was also broadening the scope of its activity, and adjusting itself more fully to American educational standards as well as to the needs of the Norwegian settlers in their new environment. But even these efforts to widen the activity of the College did not satisfy the growing demand for more popular education and the erection of new schools within easier reach of the growing settlements especially in the Northwest. In 1874 an association was organized through the efforts of the great church leader, President B. J. Muus of the Minnesota District of the Synod, for the purpose of founding a new school at Northfield, Minnesota. A commodious building was erected on a beautiful campus overlooking the town. On January 8, 1875, the coeducational academy, the St. Olaf's School, the first of a large number of academies built by the Church, began its work with two teachers and thirty-six students. The president of the school, Professor Th. N. Mohn, as well as his assistant, Professor L. S. Reque, were graduates of Luther College. In 1886 the school was changed to St. Olaf College, an institution which has grown to be the largest school in the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America. Besides preparing students for the theological seminary, Luther College had now trained a number of educators and church leaders, which made it possible to enter upon the building of a series of academies and other educational institutions in the Church. Nothing could furnish more convincing evidence of the profound influence exerted by Luther College than the number of daughter schools which trace their origin to the alma mater of their early teachers, presidents, and founders. In 1876 Monona Academy, Madison, Wisconsin, was built by congregations belonging to the Synod. Willmar Seminary, Willmar, Minnesota, founded by the Luther College graduates A. M. Hove and H. S. Hilleboe, began its work in 1883. From that time the number of new schools grew rapidly. The Bode Academy, Bode, Iowa, was opened in 1887; Luther Academy, Albert Lea, Minnesota, in 1888; the Lutheran Normal School, Sioux Falls, S. Dak., in 1889; Bruflat Academy, Portland, N. Dak., in 1889; Stoughton Academy, Stoughton, Wis., in 1889; Park Region Luther College, Fergus Falls, Minn., in 1892; the Lutheran Ladies' Seminary, Red Wing, Minn., in 1894; Pacific Lutheran Academy and Business College, Parkland, Wash., in 1894; Glenwood Academy, Glenwood, Minn., in 1894; Clifton College, Clifton, Texas, in 1896. Grand Forks College was bought by Synod people in 1900; Albion Academy, or H. A. Preus Academy, Albion, Wis., was bought from the Adventists in 1901, and Gale College, Galesville, Wis., from the Presbyterians; Wittenberg Academy was owned and operated jointly by the Norwegian Lutheran Synod and the German Missouri Synod from 1901.

Since Luther College was established chiefly for the purpose of preparing young men for the ministry, it might seem natural to expect that a theological course would be added to its curriculum, but this was never done. The graduates were sent to the theological seminary of the German Missouri Synod in St. Louis until the Synod established its own theological seminary in Madison, Wisconsin, in 1876. The early leaders of the Church, who were university men of high scholarly attainments, feared that a theological department, if connected with the College, might prove to be an incubus inimical to its growth. Even in the early days, when the need of ministers was so great that short courses and superficial training might seem not only excusable but politic, they refused to inaugurate a policy which might prove unfavorable to thorough scholastic training. They wished to maintain high intellectual standards, and genuine scholarship in secular branches. "Everything should be butter to the bottom, and not only on top", as Professor Larsen expressed it in a speech in 1884. The Augustana Synod, founded by Swedish and Norwegian immigrants in 1860, had founded Augustana College and Seminary, Paxton, Illinois. From this school sprang Augsburg Seminary, Minneapolis, Minnesota, the school of the Norwegian Lutheran Conference. Both these institutions had theological departments, but neither of them laid much stress on purely secular branches. Luther College, as a protagonist of classical scholarship and thorough training in secular branches, a school with its own strong individuality, wholly distinct from the theological seminary, occupied a unique position, and exerted a profound influence on the development of the whole school system of the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America.

Hitherto good fortune had smiled on Luther College, but it was nevertheless destined to ride the angry billows of the storm. In 1880 a great doctrinal controversy arose regarding the question of predestination, at first between Professor C. F. W. Walther of the Missouri Synod and Professor F. A. Schmidt, Professor Larsen's old colleague, now professor of theology in Luther Seminary of the Norwegian Synod, Madison, Wisconsin. The controversy spread throughout the Synod even to the congregations and the lay people, and became so bitter that in 1887 seventy-two ministers and professors, a number which was later increased to ninety-seven, seceded from the Synod with their congregations. This was a severe blow, visible so far as Luther College was concerned in reduced attendance and prestige for many years subsequent.

Hardly had the storm of doctrinal controversy subsided when fire broke out in the college building, May 19, 1889, reducing it to a melancholy ruin. The library and furniture were saved, but the loss was very great, as the building was insured only for $10,000. But in these days of adversity the friends of the College rallied to its support with a determination begotten of trials. In 1880 the Luther College Alumni Association had been founded through the efforts of John Koren and Gisle Bothne. In 1888 it was incorporated. So energetic were the efforts of this association and other friends to restore the College and to render good its losses, that in 1890 a new building rose on the smoke-stained foundation, even more beautiful and commodious than the old. On October 14th and 15th of that year the new college building was dedicated, Prof. Laur. Larsen himself preaching the dedication sermon. It was a great festival. The Rev. J. A. Ottesen, Prof. L. S. Reque, and others spoke, and poems written for the occasion by Rev. V. Koren and Prof. Th. Bothne were read. In the afternoon Prof. H. G. Stub of Luther Seminary spoke on the following words from the prophet Haggai (2:9): "The glory of this latter house shall be greater than of the former, saith the Lord of hosts; and in this place will I give peace, saith the Lord of hosts."

In 1902 President Larsen tendered his resignation to the Synod assembled in general meeting in Minneapolis, Minnesota. At the college commencement exercises June 18th he stood for the last time before the assembled school as its president. His coal-black hair had turned white as snow. At the close of the exercises he thanked his friends, and wished the school godspeed for the future. He then took his hat and walked quietly to his home. No demonstration of any kind gave color to this quiet but important event. The same church meeting which accepted Dr. Larsen's resignation elected as his successor Prof. C. K. Preus. On September 4th he ascended the rostrum in the college chapel. After stating that he had been elected president he conducted devotional exercises, speaking on the text from St. Matthew (4:4), "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God". No ceremony of any kind attended his unostentatious debut as president of the College.

With the election of President Preus a new era began in the development of Luther College. Hitherto the institution had preserved a distinct pioneer character marked by a frugal contentment which was a legacy of early days. With a certain aloofness and modest reserve the school had proceeded quietly on its way, as though further innovations might offend the lares and penates of its well regulated academic household. President Preus possessed in an eminent degree the qualifications most needed in a new administration. Being a son of the former president of the Synod, Rev. H. A. Preus, he sprang from a distinguished family, and was reared in a home of great culture and refinement. He could move with tact and grace in the highest circles, but none of the old church leaders understood the common people so well, or came in so close and sympathetic touch with them. No one in the Synod, possibly with the exception of his father, was so popular, or had so large and devoted a personal following. In conversation he was magnetic, jovial, and courteous; in appearance attractive, with a face of beaming intelligence; in speech he was eloquent—serious, pathetic, humorous, or cordial, as the occasion demanded—with a voice so deep and sonorous that it could be heard by thousands. In intellectual character he combined conservative views with keen practical judgment and progressive energy. In religious views he was most orthodox, in adherence to the ideals of classical learning he was uncompromising. Because of these traits he could not inaugurate a policy which in any way would change the character of the school. But in questions pertaining to the improving and enlarging of the equipment of the institution, enriching its curriculum or winning for it a wider and more general recognition, he was an enthusiastic progressist.

In 1903 a general meeting of the Synod was to assemble in Decorah to commemorate the fiftieth anniversary of the founding of the Church. In anticipation of this notable church gathering, President Preus secured the enlargement of the college gymnasium to three times its original size, to provide a suitable auditorium for the meeting. In 1905 a fourth year was added to the college preparatory course, making it not only equivalent but in some respects superior to a regular high-school course. In 1906 President Preus brought before the yearly meeting of the Synod a request for a new dormitory. The meeting hesitated, but finally passed a resolution instructing the Church Council to make such arrangements that he could travel about and raise the necessary money by general subscription. This arduous task he gladly undertook. In the fall of 1907 the new building, the Laur. Larsen Hall, had been completed at a cost of over $75,000. In one part of the building a well equipped chemical laboratory was established at a considerable cost; later also a physical laboratory.

In 1916 a new dining hall, the Loyalty Hall, was erected at the cost of $16,000. The final cost added $2,000 more.

A revision of the curriculum was undertaken in 1906 for the purpose of making the courses more elastic than they had been hitherto. The elective system in a very attenuated form was introduced by establishing a literary course to run parallel with the classical course during the junior and senior years. But six years of Latin, three years of Greek, and one year of Hebrew were required also in the literary course. In 1918 Hebrew was made an elective. In 1911 the whole eight years' course of the school was standardized, and organized in such a way as to meet the requirements of the theological seminary on the one hand, and on the other the standard university requirements for a B. A. degree. In 1918 the sub-preparatory work, which had been given in special classes since 1911, was organized into a separate class, and the Preparatory Department was divided into a Junior High School with a two years' course, and a Senior High School with a three years' course. In that year Luther College also joined the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, by which organization it had already been accredited for several years.

In 1911 Luther College would celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of its founding. For this occasion its friends resolved to raise an endowment fund which would give the school added strength and stability. Mr. L. S. Swenson, United States Minister to Norway, one of the most distinguished alumni of the College, had secured from the great railway magnate, Mr. James J. Hill, the promise of $50,000 toward such a fund if the Church would raise $200,000. The offer was accepted. Another distinguished alumnus, Rev. H. G. Stub, president of the Synod, undertook to raise the needed sum by general subscription, a task which he carried out so successfully that in the fall of 1911 the total subscription, including Mr. Hill's donation, amounted to $286,000. At the anniversary celebration October 14th a fund of $250,000 was presented to the College by President Stub on behalf of its friends.

President Preus was never disposed to seek relaxation from labor or to rest on laurels already won. In 1918 he prevailed on the church meetings to empower the college Board of Trustees to raise funds by general subscription for a library building. The work of soliciting the subscriptions was largely done by himself alone. At the same time a movement was also set on foot to provide funds for a new gymnasium. The erection of the library building was begun in the fall of 1920, but Preus was not destined to see its completion. In the morning of May 28, 1921, word was received announcing his sudden death. Voices were hushed, and busy tasks were laid aside. Dr. Oscar L. Olson was placed in charge as temporary president, and preparations were made to show the departed worker the last honors which could be his on earth. The library building, named the Koren Library in honor of the former president of the Synod, Rev. V. Koren, was completed at a cost of $130,000 in time to be dedicated in connection with the celebration of the sixtieth anniversary of the founding of the College, October 14, 1921.

If the election of C. K. Preus as president marks a new epoch in the history of Luther College, his death, and especially the war, which made also his burdens so heavy, probably mark another. When the war bugles blew, the young men of military age at the school joined the colors. Not less than 356 Luther College students and graduates entered the army. Of these eight are known to have died in the service. For a time the class-rooms looked almost deserted, until the government in October, 1918, established at the College a Students' Army Training Corps in charge of Lieutenants Harold H. Fisher and Allen C. Grundy. Both these officers were fine young men, who cooperated cordially with the faculty in attempting to solve the problems connected with the sudden change of the school into a military establishment. The curriculum was completely rearranged to meet the new demands of training young men for the army. The old courses were made elective, and new ones were added, the only required courses in the new curriculum being war aims (3 hours), military English (2 hours), religion (1 hour). A spirit of cooperation and good-will characterized the work. According to general opinion and the reports of all inspectors, the Luther College S. A. T. C. was a very successful unit. It was demobilized December 11, 1918. In all other war activities the teachers of the school and their wives took an active part. Luther College performed well the duty of serving its country during the great crisis of the war. Another military unit, the Reserve Officers' Training Corps, established in January, 1919, at the request of the college faculty, with Lieutenant Harold H. Fisher as professor of military science, was not so successful as the S. A. T. C. All interest in military affairs seemed to vanish with the war, and the unit was demobilized January 9, 1920.

Successful as the S. A. T. C. unit was in a general way, its influence nevertheless impaired the old standards of scholarship. Under pressure of the great war academic work could not receive the customary attention in a busy military routine. To this grief new sorrows were added when Governor W. L. Harding on May 23, 1918, issued a proclamation stating among other things that "English should and must be the only medium of instruction in public, private, denominational, and other similar schools." English was the only medium of instruction in Luther College, and as it was thought that the proclamation was not intended to affect instruction in foreign languages in higher institutions of learning, and encouraged by the United States commissioner of education, Mr. Claxton, the College retained both German and Norse in its curriculum. But the interest in languages other than English was greatly weakened by this Draconian measure. Before the war three Norwegian societies flourished at Luther College. Governor Harding's proclamation destroyed them all, and no effort since has been able to revive them. Also in other respects the war left traces of its vitiating influence. Even long after it was over, a lack of feeling of responsibility and devotion to scholarly ideals prevailed, which only patient and persistent effort has been able to overcome. But the hand which heals all wounds will also efface the fiery trail of the war dragon. A new generation, bright-eyed with the hope of youth, is entering Luther College in increasing numbers. The institution has now the largest attendance in its history. We welcome them as the heirs to the inheritance. They will work and build as did their fathers under the egis of the same covenant which God made with King Solomon: "I have hallowed this house which thou hast built, to put My name there forever, and Mine eyes and Mine heart shall be there perpetually."

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

CARLO A. SPERATI

PREPARATIONS for the Sixtieth Anniversary festivities commenced in earnest as soon as school opened in the fall. Committees were elected, meetings were held, plans were laid, and faculty and student body were busy as bees on College Hill. Nor were friends in the city idle. They rose to the occasion to help Luther prepare for the home-coming. For, indeed, such it was for the many sons and friends of our Alma Mater.

Nature herself did not forget us. She was very kind during the four days of festivities. Her best attire, her warm sunny smile, her soothing moonlight evenings, helped to make everybody happy. The celebration commenced Thursday afternoon of October 13th. This day was the late President C. K. Preus' birthday. He would have been 69 years old had he lived. We missed him; but God's thoughts are not our thoughts, neither are our ways His ways. Professor Preus had fought a good fight, he had finished his course, he had kept the faith. Now he rested from his labors, and the crown of righteousness was his.

It has been the custom in late years that the graduating class presents a gift to the College in memory of the class. This year Professor Preus had suggested to the class of 1921 that a flag pole on the campus would be a very welcome gift. The class gladly acted on the suggestion, and so it happened that on the 13th of October a 95-foot flag pole, with cement foundation, could be dedicated. The faculty and this year's students bought a beautiful, large, American flag.

The ceremonies for the raising of the flag were simple but impressive. The faculty, students, and Luther College Concert Band, together with friends from town and those guests who had already arrived, gathered around the flag pole. At this occasion the Preus family, in reunion for the last time at the president's home, was present. The flag was raised to the strains of "The Star Spangled Banner". Dr. Oscar L. Olson delivered a brief address, in which he paid a tribute to President Preus, in whose memory the day for the flag-raising had been chosen, and emphasized the relations of Luther College to our country and our people and the faithfulness of the College to the ideals that are symbolized by the Stars and Stripes. After the address the assembly sang, "My Country, 'Tis of Thee", accompanied by the band. This ended the short but very impressive ceremony.

Guests had already begun to arrive on Wednesday the 12th, and on Thursday evening the hotels were filled. The housing committee was on hand day and night. Not only were the guests that had reported told where to go, but autos were ready to take them to their places.

The festivities proper commenced with the dedication of Koren Library Friday afternoon, October 14th. Professor Karl T. Jacobsen, '02, the college librarian, has an article on "The Library" in the anniversary number of "College Chips". He also gives "An Addition" in the November number of "Chips".

Near the northwest corner of the library was erected a platform for the speakers of the day. The large audience filled the bleachers and the raised seats to the north and those who could get no seat gathered around the platform. The Luther College Concert Band was seated on the west.

At 2:30 the band opened the exercises with a half-hour concert as a prelude. The band also accompanied all the hymns. At 3:00 o'clock the hymn: "Thee, God, we praise, Thy name we bless", was sung, after which Rev. J. Nordby of the class of '73, president of the Eastern District of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, offered the invocation.

The opening address was delivered by Hon. J. A. O. Preus, '03, governor of Minnesota, son of our late president, C. K. Preus. Governor Preus connected the day and Luther College with the great reformer, Dr. Martin Luther. The ideals in government and religion which Luther laid before the world at the

GOV. J. A. O. PREUS

Diet at Worms, just four centuries ago, in 1521, freedom in state and church, are the ideals for which Luther College stands. Governor Preus spoke of the man for whom the new library building was named. He said in part: "Our purpose on this 14th of October is not only to celebrate the birthday of Luther College, but also to honor the memory of one of the noblest men who came to America—Dr. Koren." He portrayed the life of this great pioneer, whose sole purpose was to serve God.

After Governor Preus' address followed Koren's hymn: "Ye lands, to the Lord make a jubilant noise." Dr. O. E. Brandt, '79, vice-president of Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., delivered the dedication address. Dr. Brandt spoke of Dr. V. Koren as "The Man of the Word", and of Professor C. K. Preus as "The Man of the Work".

"Dr. Brandt gave as the reason for placing the name 'Koren Library' on this building that Dr. Koren was of all the pioneers the one who was most of all interested in books and good literature. However, the main reason for thus naming the new library must be that Koren's name represents that spirit which must govern the use of this treasury of books and historic monuments. And here, he said, he referred not to Dr. Koren's well known hatred of sham in matters educational, but to the thought which is best expressed in Dr. Koren's favorite prayer from Psalm 86, 11:

'Unite my heart, O God, to fear Thy Name'. Dr. Koren's highest purpose in life was to do honor to the name of God. The Word of God was his most highly prized possession, and for him all books were of value as they supported or explained the Scriptures. In this spirit Dr. Koren, the man of the Word, laid the foundations of this library in the Scriptures.

"It was the work of President C. K. Preus to build on this foundation the workshop which was being dedicated. Although keenly realizing that it was largely due to the efforts of Dr. Larsen and Prof. Naeseth that Luther College has its excellent collection of books for which the building was erected, still it was given to Prof. Preus to complete the work for the new building, which it was not his lot to see in its finished form.

DR. O. E. BRANDT

"Thereupon Dr. Brandt pronounced the words of dedication: 'By the authority of the Board of Trustees of Luther College of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, I now do set apart and consecrate this library and museum, in memory of Ulrik Vilhelm Koren, in gratitude to Christian Keyser Preus, to the service of sacred learning in the spirit of Luther, for the advancement of Luther College and the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, and to the glory of God, in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.'"*

These impressive words were followed by the majestic hymn: "God's Word is our great heritage".

Professor J. C. M. Hanson, '82, associate director of the University of Chicago Libraries and a member of the building committee for Koren Library, spoke on the more technical side of the library. His remarks, he said, would "deal more directly with the library, its past history, present problems, and possible future developments".

He told of the organization of the private library, properly named "Mimer", "for that character in Norse Mythology which sat at the foot of the oak Ygdrasil and drank wisdom from the fountain which there gushed forth, and to whom even Odin had to turn when in mental perplexity." "Mimer" was later merged with the college library. "This," said Professor Hanson, "and the gradual acquisition through gift and purchase of some of the best works of Scandinavian writers, particularly in literature and history, has resulted in one of the best collections of books on the north of Europe to be found anywhere in America". In 1914 the Bishop Bang Library was purchased. This was made possible through "the generosity of the late Mr. Hauman Haugan, a staunch friend of the College, and the alert interest of an honored alumnus, Mr. Laurits S. Swenson of Minneapolis, then and now U. S. minister to Norway. . . . We have, then, in this building today, the nucleus of what I believe is destined to become the largest and best collection of books in northern Iowa, and, as far as books on the Scandinavian North is concerned, . . . one of the leading collections in this country."

PROF. J. C. M. HANSON

After Professor Hanson's address followed the doxology: "Praise God, from Whom all blessings flow", and the benediction, pronounced by Rev. I. B. Torrisson, '79.

The dedication of Koren Library closed with the "Hallelujah Chorus", from Handel's "Messiah", sung by the choir of the First Norwegian Lutheran Church of Decorah, accompanied by the Concert Band.

One of the interesting features of the festivities was the reunion of Luther College Musical Union. Some brought their own instruments and others were supplied from the stock at the College. At 4:30 they assembled in the College Auditorium to rehearse for the concert in the evening. A Reunion Band was organized: 7 flutes and piccolos, 1 E flat clarinet, 17 B flat clarinets, 1 oboe, 2 bassoons, 9 saxophones, 20 cornets, 14 horns, 8 trombones, 6 baritones, 8 tubas, 1 pair of tympani, 8 snare drums, 4 bass drums, which, counting the director, made a band of 107 members. It was a happy group. All were young again although many had passed the sixty mark.

Could they play? Those who had been skeptical on this point found it wise to hold their peace and say nothing. This was no trifling band. It was the old-timers that were playing, and younger members looked and listened with awe. Not only did they show remarkable technic, but they played with such precision and feeling that it was an inspiration to the conductor and a rare musical treat for the audience.

At 7:30 the time-honored illumination took place. At the tapping of the college bell the Main Building blazed forth in light while the Concert Band, according to custom, played the battle hymn of the Reformation: "A Mighty Fortress is our God". The college motto: "Soli Deo Gloria", shone forth in all its splendor, as did also the numbers 1861 and 1921. Suddenly the Main Building was in darkness and a strong light showed from the east, and there was the newly dedicated daughter of the old mother building on the hill all lighted and with flood lights playing on the beautiful structure, shifting to the Luther Statue and to the other buildings; and above all Old Glory, lighted by a steady, strong flood light, as it lazily waved with the breeze. The light on Old Glory continued when all was darkness on the campus.

After the illumination everybody hurried to the Auditorium. The exercises commenced with the singing of that hymn which, ever since Dr. Laur. Larsen's days, has marked the opening of the 14th of October exercises: "Lad os bede lysets Fader".

The vocal features of the concert were a solo by Rev. H. B. Thorgrimsen, '79, two numbers by the Winneshiek County Sangerforbund, Reissiger's "Olaf Trygvason" and Ph. Nicolai's chorale "Wake, awake, for night is flying", and last "In Flanders Fields", with the musical setting by Dr. Adolph O. Aaker, ex-'99, of Velva, N. D., and sung by Rev. Ove J. H. Preus, '01, with band accompaniment.

Rev. H. B. Thorgrimsen was one of the foremost singers in the former Synod, and although his hair has a silver lining his voice is as young and sympathetic as ever. That he pleased the audience was evidenced by the hearty applause and the call for encore.

Preus, of the class of '01, has a well schooled, sonorous, and pleasing baritone voice. He sang Dr. Aaker's composition with feeling and power.

A xylophone solo, "The Mocking-Bird", was given with great effect by C. Vittorio Sperati, '25, accompanied by the band. Mr. Sperati's xylophone work always makes a hit with the audience. This time his xylophone seemed to have a peculiar birdlike ring, especially in the strain, "Listen to the Mocking-Bird". Both the soloist and the band listened, and they played softer and softer. Some master whistler in the audience had picked up the melody with its variations, and the xylophone and band gave a harmonious background. Dr. Olson helped the audience to discover the whistler. He was none other than the governor of Minnesota. The applause was loud and long and the audience was not satisfied until Governor Preus appeared on the stage and repeated part of the number. He is a former member of the Luther College Concert Band, and his whistling solos with band accompaniment never failed to take the audience by storm. This ended the first half of the program.

In addition to the greetings delivered orally at the sixtieth anniversary exercises, Professor O. A. Tingelstad, '05, read telegrams and greetings from friends and alumni who were not able to be present. Many greetings contained donations to the building fund. There were telegrams or letters from the following:

After the reading of greetings the Alumni Association presented the College with a "rouser" song written by Norvald G. Maakestad, '21, and Arthur J. Tolo, '18. Copies of the song were distributed among the students, and with the composer, Mr. Maakestad, at the piano it was sung with a "pep" and a "go" which proved that the song will be popular with the students.

The last part of the evening's program was given over to the Reunion Band. Suppe's "Poet and Peasant" overture, Drdla's "Serenade", and several marches were played. The applause was spontaneous and the enthusiasm ran high. One veteran player was heard to say: "This has made me many years younger." The program closed with the hymn: "Tak, vor Fader i det høie". This has been the regular closing hymn at 14th of October programs, just as "Lad os bede lysets Fader" has marked the opening of the exercises.

Saturday morning, October 15th, at 8:00 o'clock, chapel exercises were held in the Auditorium for students and alumni. Rev. I. D. Ylvisaker, '88, president of the North Dakota District of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, conducted the service and chose for his text Psalm 19: 1, 2, 11-14.

At 9:00 o'clock the Luther College Alumni Association met in the college chapel for its annual business meeting. The time proved very short for the amount of business on hand. However, several important resolutions were passed. Rev. I. B. Torrison, '79, presided. It was resolved to push with all possible vigor the campaign for a new gymnasium. A committee was placed in charge of this work. The executive committee's buying of the so-called Dayton property immediately south of the campus, with another baseball diamond in view, was approved. A resolution was passed in favor of a Memorial Chapel. Dr. H. G. Stub brought greetings to the alumni from the Board of Education of our Church. Great satisfaction was shown when the announcement was made that a financial secretary for Luther College had been nominated by the Board of Education.

Immediately after this meeting the assembly passed out of the chapel by classes and formed on the campus where a very good photograph of the Alumni Association was taken.

The reunion meeting of the Musical Union was scheduled for 10:00 in the college chapel and the class reunions for 11:00 o'clock. Both of these meetings were of necessity late in starting on account of the morning's previous important business. The meeting of the Musical Union had to be cut short, but was, nevertheless, of the greatest importance for the future welfare of the Union. It was resolved that all who have at any time belonged to a musical organization at Luther College are members of the Musical Union. It was further resolved that the members contribute one dollar a year towards securing the memorial pipe-organ for the college chapel which the Musical Union in 1916 decided to build in memory of Olaf Angelo Sperati. The need of a music hall was also discussed.

The class reunions were held as indicated on the regular printed program of the festivities. Many classes used this opportunity to lunch together, and several classes had invitations to private homes.

At one o'clock the Reunion Band assembled in front of Laur. Larsen Hall, ready for parade, and a photograph was taken. The Decrah Commercial Club had arranged for automobiles to take the band to town. The parade formed at the west end of Water Street, and the band, 110 in line, with Rev. S. L. Tallakson, '06, acting as drum major, was an imposing sight as it paraded through the business section to the stirring music of "snappy" marches. The streets were lined with appreciative people. Dr. Laur. A. Larsen, '86, and Carlo A. Sperati, '88, had the pleasure of once more playing snare drum side by side. It was reported that neither of them shirked on the job. It was not their fault that no drumheads were broken.

At 2:00 o'clock the football game between St. Olaf College and Luther College was staged on the gridiron. It was a hard fought battle throughout. A touchdown and a drop kick in the last quarter made the score 10 to 0 in favor of St. Olaf. At 4:30 a rehearsal of the two cantatas to be sung Sunday was held in the college chapel.

The climax on Saturday was the alumni banquet at 7:00 o'clock in the College Auditorium. The hall was beautifully decorated and covers were laid for 500 guests. The College Orchestra furnished music during the meal. The committee in charge had arranged the seating by classes. The officers of the association and the speakers of the evening were seated at a special table on the stage. Rev. A. O. Johnson, '91, retiring president of the association, acted as toastmaster. He deemed it an honor to fulfill such a duty at this occasion. He used a gavel from the Viking ship of 1893 presented to the museum by Dr. George A. Torrison, '85, of Chicago.

Dr. H. G. Stub, '66, represented the first class that graduated from Luther College, not because he was president of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, but because he was now the only one out of his class in the service of the church. He knew how deeply the love for Luther College was rooted in the hearts of our congregations. He testified to how much the College had accomplished in its sixty years of existence.

Judge O. M. Torrison, '81, said that Luther should continue to concentrate on a special course and be the classical school of the Middle West as Amherst is in the East. It should remain a college for men, but we should also have a college for women, and co-educational schools. The interest in music should continue and should be given credit toward graduation.

Rev. N. Astrup Larsen, '96, spoke on the motto of his class—"Esse non videri." This expresses also the spirit of Luther College—to be, not to seem to be. It necessitates both a forward look and loyalty to the past.

Rev. Norman A. Madson, '11, pictured the pioneer homes of our forefathers. "Luther College," he said, "is the offspring of horny-handed labor, begotten of faith, reared in love and hope" She "could, no doubt, have been a more imposing institution today, had she but chosen to deviate from the path marked out for her by her founders. But I doubt that she could have served more well."

Prof. E. Hove, '84, of Luther Theological Seminary, spoke of the close connection between Luther College and the Seminary. A powerful address.

Hon. L. S. Swenson, '86, United States minister to Norway, gave a beautiful tribute to the memory of the late President C. K. Preus. (Given in full in the Preus Memorial volume, pp. 233-234.)

Dr. Oscar L. Olson, '93, acting president of Luther College, spoke of what the institution had in property, in courses, in faculty, in student body. He outlined what new buildings were needed. The College has a high standard in scholarship, and this standard must be maintained.

After these inspiring addresses, the assembly was asked to rise in honor of the late Peer O. Strømme, '76. Likewise in honor of the widows surviving former Luther College professors who had died in recent years, namely Mrs. Laur. Larsen, Mrs. L. S. Reque, Mrs. C. A. Næseth, and Mrs. C. K. Preus. Greetings were sent to Rev. J. W. Preus, '82, of Calmar, Iowa, who was prevented from being present by sudden illness.

Sunday morning, October 16th, people awoke to the most glorious of the four days of the Sixtieth Anniversary festivities. Automobiles arrived from far and near. At 8:30 the Sixtieth Anniversary Cantata was rehearsed in the Auditorium. At 10:30 divine services were held in the Auditorium in Norwegian. The building could not accommodate the great throng. Therefore an overflow meeting was conducted under the college oaks by Professor E. Hove.

Faculty, students, and alumni formed in front of the Main Building and marched in procession to the Auditorium. Luther College Concert Band played, as a prelude, Schumann's "Festival Overture."

Rev. H. B. Thorgrimsen conducted the altar services, and the band accompanied and led in the hymns.

Dr. H. G. Stub, president of the Norwegian Lutheran Church of America, preached at the service in the Auditorium. He based his sermon on the 87th Psalm. Dr. Stub showed how Luther College by its founders had been built on the Lord, and how in its subsequent sixty years of service it has always been able to say with the Psalmist, "All my springs are in Thee."

When Luther College was founded it was to serve two purposes. It was to become a sound and thorough institution for instruction in secular subjects, but above all it was to train students preparatory to taking up theology. Both of these aims have been maintained by its two presidents, Larsen and Preus. Dr. Stub answered the question, What has the future in store for Luther College? In the first place, it must continue to be an up-to-date standard college. There must be no effort to reduce it to the rank of a junior college, as has been the fate of many denominational colleges in America. Luther College must be an American college, but must at the same time continue to be the preserver of Norwegian culture in this country. Literary and artistic interests must continue to flourish, and must not be displaced by an interest in physical development. But above all, it must continue to be a Christian and a Lutheran college. Therefore, the faculty must be composed of Christian as well as learned men. All the work of the College must in the last analysis be conducted according to the Word of God.

After the sermon an offering was taken both in the Auditorium and at the overflow meeting to defray expenses in connection with the festivities. This offering amounted to $800.00.

Immediately after the offering the "Sixtieth Anniversary Cantata" was given by a chorus of 150 voices under the direction of Professor Carlo A. Sperati, '88. The words were written by Rev. Paul Koren, '82, in compliance with a request made by President Preus a short time before his death. The music was composed by Prof. John Dahle of Luther Seminary. Mr. Ingolf Grindeland, ex-'12, sang the tenor solo parts in pleasing and artistic style. Oscar J. Strom, '24, and Arthur M. Wisness, '14, were the accompanists on piano and organ respectively. The large chorus rendered with enthusiasm the inspiring text and music, and at the close the audience showed its appreciation by according writer and composer a rising vote of thanks.

In the afternoon an opportunity was afforded to representatives of other institutions to bring their greetings in oral form. Rev. O. Glesne opened the meeting with invocation. President M. O. Bøekman, representing Luther Theological Seminary, described the course of study at Luther College as the most ideal for those who intend to enter the ministry, and gave thanks to God for the firm attitude of faithfulness which Luther College has always maintained as to the means of Grace and as to the motto, "It is written." On this occasion Luther College was honored by the presence of Dr. F. G. Gade of Norway, president of Nordmandsforbundet. He had landed in America but a few days previously, and had cancelled several other important engagements to be present at the Sixtieth Anniversary festivities. He brought an oral greeting from His Majesty King Haakon VII and a written greeting from the University of Christiania. Rev. H. C. Holm, president of the Iowa District of our Church, brought greetings from the Church Council. Rev. Edward Johnson, representing the Board of Education, alluded to the generous contribution of Luther College to the ministry of the Church. President L. W. Boe presented the felicitations of St. Olaf College, and termed that institution a child of Luther College. President J. A. Aasgaard represented Concordia College of Moorhead, Minn., and President C. O. Solberg of Augustana College and Normal School of Sioux Falls, S. D. Dr. T. Stabo of Decorah spoke on behalf of the Board of Trustees of Luther College, thanking the people of our Church for their support of this institution.

In the evening a closing concert was given in the Auditorium by the Sixtieth Anniversary Chorus, under the leadership of Prof. Carlo A. Sperati. Felix Mendelssohn's sacred cantata, "Hymn of Praise", was sung with truly inspiring effect. The soloists were: Mrs. L. A. Moe, soprano; Mrs. A. M. Rovelstad, alto; Mr. Ingolf Grindeland, tenor. It was a very fitting closing to the Sixtieth Anniversary festivities. The hearts of the great audience seemed carried away by the chorus into one grand outburst of praise to God for His gracious protection and guidance throughout these sixty years.

IV. LUTHER COLLEGE ALUMNI ASSOCIATION

The Luther College Alumni Association has a history of which it may well be proud. For forty years it has stood by the College and aided it well in a variety of ways.

Probably the oldest organization of graduates from Luther College, the Association was founded in 1880. The matter had been fully discussed by several loyal graduates, and the plans crystallized in a meeting held in Decorah on the 28th of June, 1880. This meeting intended to found a society which would "increase interest in Luther College, bind together the alumni, and aid the College in any way possible," and more especially "provide scholarships for those having a decided bent in any direction, such as the fine arts or sciences."

Accordingly the meeting organized as the "Luther College Alumni Association" with the following officers: president, L. S. Reque, '68; vice-presidents, Albert Egge, '79, and Johannes Bothne, '78; secretary, Halvard Roalkvan, '74; asst. secretary, Gisle Bothne, '78; treasurer, Realf Brandt, '77.

The Luther College Alumni Association accordingly embarked on a most useful career. One of the first plans under discussion was the collection of an endowment fund of $50,000. A committee was elected to solicit subscriptions, and at the end of one year reported the not very pleasing sum of $190.25 collected and $190.00 subscribed. After a lengthy discussion the matter was left to a permanent finance committee. This committee immediately rose to the occasion and made arrangements with Rev. J. Koren, '79, to solicit funds. The subscriptions were to be valid only in the event that the total proposed fund was subscribed.

Mr. Koren worked faithfully and at the end of one year, at the meeting of 1883, reported a subscription of $10,000.00. His expenses, however, had amounted to over $350.00. The Alumni Association discussed this matter at some length. The difficulty seemed to be the procuring of further funds to pay the expenses of a collector in the field. No satisfactory method of procedure was suggested, and the meeting broke up without having solved the problem.

The fund was next mentioned in 1887. It was deemed advisable to begin solicitations again, but before starting it would be necessary to incorporate in order to be in a position to handle funds on a legal footing. Accordingly, on May 31, 1888, a committee which had been appointed incorporated the Luther College Alumni Association under the laws of Iowa. When the College building burned in 1889, the endowment fund campaign seems to have been given up.

Early the need was felt for a means of communication among the alumni. Some organ of expression was lacking. Particularly was this need felt during the campaign for the endowment fund. The Alumni Association set about to accomplish this end also, when in 1883 it elected a committee to plan an alumni newspaper or magazine. This project was given up when "College Chips" began to appear in 1884.

The Association remained active. Frequent gifts and loans were made to the library, museum, laboratories, etc. Gifts as large as $250.00 were made to the museum. Various oil paintings of former professors and former church men were secured. The Association was also active in the campaign carried on to build a house for Dr. Laur. Larsen.

The largest single gift to the College through the Alumni Association was the lighting plant, which was installed in 1901. In the 1901 meeting of the Alumni Association Rev. H. B. Hustvedt, '73, broached the subject of installing electric lights and presented a careful estimate of prices. The idea was at once accepted and a committee with power to act was appointed. This committee acted at once, and the lights were installed together with a good power plant. The citizens of Decorah especially aided in this cause by giving liberally.

In later years the College has received three valuable pieces of land from the Alumni Association. A committee elected October 14, 1911, purchased on behalf of the Association a strip of land containing eight acres lying just north of High Street and adjoining the College campus. The consideration was $2,175.81, taxes since 1910, and costs. This land had been held for many years by Prof. C. K. Preus, '73, Rev. John Moldstad, '94, and Andrew Jenson, who were afraid it might fall into hands from which it might be hard to buy it when the College had need of it. In 1921 the Association voted to buy the Dayton property and an adjoining piece of land, both lying south of the College. The considerations totaled $1,700.00.

The Association has also aided the building campaign of the College. As early as 1908 the library was under discussion. In 1909 it was moved to try for a library building by 1911. In 1912 J. C. M. Hanson, '82, was made chairman of a permanent committee to secure a library building. This committee aided materially in the campaign which resulted in the beautiful Koren Library.

At present the Alumni Association is sponsoring plans for a new gymnasium. Through its committee a sufficiently large sum has been collected to promise well for the early realization of this plan.

In this connection it may be fitting to note the movement for a federation of Luther College clubs. As early as 1911 the idea was broached by the Western Minnesota Luther College Club, that some permanent organization of Luther College clubs be effected. The idea was expressed again at the 1914 meeting of the Association, when all Luther College clubs were urged to send delegates to the annual meeting in June. This has been done by some clubs and may develop into a custom.

In 1921 the idea appeared to be ready to crystallize into something tangible. Through the invitation of the Decorah Luther College Club a meeting of delegates from the various clubs was called in Minneapolis to discuss a federation of Luther College clubs. Four clubs sent representatives. A tentative constitution was drawn up and all plans made for the final launching of such a federation at the 60th anniversary celebration to be held at Decorah October 14, 1921. However, at the meeting held at Decorah the plan was changed to the adoption of a resolution calling for a corresponding secretary of the Alumni Association who should fulfill the purpose of a federation of Luther College Clubs. This was done as a result of the change in the constitution of the Alumni Association, which now permits former students to become members. The federation is thus unnecessary.

A second plan which originated with the Alumni Association is that of inviting reunions, at the regular commencement exercises, or at some other time, of the classes of five, ten, twenty-five, forty, and fifty years' standing. Now the class of fifty-five years' standing has been added. This plan has met with gratifying results. The success of the plan will evidently increase with years as the classes begin to plan in advance for the event.

V. LUTHER COLLEGE CLUBS

Closely connected with the history of the Alumni Association is the history of Luther College clubs. When this idea originated is not certain, but at present the oldest club seems to be the Chicago Luther College Club, which was organized in 1890. The founders of this worthy club were the following well known men: P. O. Strømme, '76, O. M. Kalheim, '84, Geo. Markhus, '85, Lauritz Thoen, N. E. Remmen, Ludvig Hektoen, '83, D. Kvaase, '85, and others. Since that time many clubs have been organized, some of them surviving the years, a few forced to stop active work because of loss of members who have moved to other places. Among the early clubs was the Central Minnesota Club. The Southern Wisconsin and the Atlantic Luther College Clubs have both been active for over twenty years. This is the more remarkable in the case of the Atlantic Luther College Club in that its membership has been small.

The College has at all times been assisted greatly by these clubs. It would be impossible to enumerate the benefits received from them in the course of their history, or to evaluate the great influence for the good of the College of these annual meetings. Some outstanding gifts will, however, be mentioned.

The Southern Wisconsin Club has at all times been interested in oratory and has given fully $800.00 toward prizes for this branch of student activity. It must be noted here that at one meeting of this club Rev. A. Bredesen, '70, gave the address of welcome in faultless Latin. The Atlantic Club has been interested in the work in the Norwegian department, having given prizes for Norwegian essays, and having presented the library with a large "Konversations-Leksikon". Many clubs have supported or aided students at Luther College, notably the Central Minnesota, the Chicago, and the South Dakota Clubs. The Bang Library was secured mainly by donations by various clubs of sums of $150.00 or more each.

Mention must also be made of two clubs more specialized than the regular Luther College Clubs, clubs with a large membership and very active. The Luther College Teachers' Association of North Dakota was founded to promote the professional interests of Luther men in North Dakota. Founded by A. M. Mevig, '09, John M. Trytten, '11, P. J. Iverson, '10, and others in 1912, this association has grown in activity and influence and is one of our strongest graduate organizations. The Luther College Business Men's Association is a newer club organized in the Twin Cities and limited to Luther men. Although a very new organization it bids fair to become strong, and will unquestionably do much to further the interests of Luther College.

CHAPTER TWENTY

LUTHER COLLEGE GRADUATES AND UNDER-GRADUATES IN CHURCH WORK

BRYNJOLF J. HOVDE

LUTHER COLLEGE has always been in a peculiar sense an institution of the Church. It was founded by the Church, and for the Church. The document which was placed in the corner-stone of the first building of the College, the corner-stone of the present Main, where it still reposes, stated it to be the specific purpose of Luther College to provide a thorough and liberal education for those who intended to study theology and become ministers of the Gospel in the Norwegian Lutheran Church in America. Luther College therefore has endeavored to direct her students toward the theological seminary. How well the College has served the Church and fulfilled its mission, it is the object of this chapter to show.

The compilation of the lists and tables which follow would have been a much more difficult task, if, indeed, a possible one, but for the availability of Dr. O. M. Norlie's "Norsk Lutherske Prester i Amerika", and his "School Calendar", which is as yet unpublished. Next to Dr. Norlie the writer is indebted to Prof. O. A. Tingelstad, registrar at Luther College, for the use of his statistical abstracts from the catalogs of this institution. The list entitled "Luther College Men in the Ministry" was first compiled by Prof. Tingelstad and published in "College Chips", February, 1919. By the writer it has been embodied in this chapter, and merely been brought up to date, although in a few cases dates of ordination which were lacking have been supplied. Prof. Gisle Bothne's "Det Norske Luther College", the church papers, and the records of Luther College have also been used as sources for the information herein contained. The questionnaires to former students, which have been returned, have been especially valuable in a supplementary and corroboratory capacity.

In the following lists there are undoubtedly errors, both of omission and commission, but they are unwillingly and unknowingly made, and any assistance that the readers of this volume can render in the discovery and rectification of such errors, will be greatly appreciated. The policy in the preparation of this chapter has been to be as conservative in making the estimates as is consistent with the facts, the aim being to present figures that need not be discounted. Not all the church work which is engaged in by Luther College men has been included in this presentation. All activities in the local congregations, except the purely pastoral work of the minister, have been omitted, and only the more important church offices have been taken into account. This chapter does not pretend to be a compendium of the churchly activities of every man who has at one time or another been a student at Luther College, but merely an attempt to show how Luther College has served the purpose of her founders by supplying leaders for the Church.

I. LUTHER COLLEGE MEN IN THE MINISTRY

"In discussions concerning Luther College, the question has often arisen, How many Luther College men have entered the ministry of the Gospel? The appended list represents an attempt to answer this question.

"In the table, the first column of figures enumerates all the men; the second enumerates the graduates, and the third column the undergraduates (from the standpoint of Luther College), who have been ordained. (A few of those in the undergraduate list are graduates of other colleges). The fourth column gives the names in alphabetical order, and the fifth the years in attendance at Luther College. The last three columns give, respectively, the church body within which each person was ordained, the date of ordination, and the theological seminary conferring the 'Testimonium pro candidatura.'

"The meaning of the abbreviations used in the sixth column is as follows: NS, Norwegian Synod; UC, United Lutheran Church; NL, Norwegian Lutheran Church of America; Anti, the Anti-Missourian Brotherhood; PM, Pennsylvania Ministerium; Nor., Church of Norway; Ell., Elling's Synod; IS, Icelandic Synod; Con., the Conference ("Konferensen"); HS, Hauge's Synod; MS, Missouri Synod; Cong., the Congregational Church.

"The meaning of the abbreviations used in the last column is as follows: LS, Luther Seminary; CS, Concordia Seminary, St. Louis; AS, Augsburg Seminary; UC, United Church Seminary; LT, Luther Theological Seminary; CU, Capital University; NS, Northfield Seminary; YU, Yale University; WS, Wittenberg Seminary; Chr., University of Christiania; LC, private examination at Luther College; CP, Concordia (Practical) Seminary, Springfield, Ill.; EL, Evangelical Lutheran Seminary, Wisconsin Synod; CT, Chicago Theological Seminary; RW, Red Wing Seminary; Aft., Luther Seminary, Afton, Minn." (O. A. Tinglestad in "College Chips", February, 1919.)

The abbreviation UD in the sixth column means the United Danish Evangelical Lutheran Church in America; and the abbreviation TS in the last column means Trinity Theological Seminary, Blair, Nebraska.

LUTHER COLLEGE MEN IN THE MINISTRY

II. GRADUATES OF LUTHER COLLEGE WHO HAVE STUDIED THEOLOGY, BUT HAVE NEVER BEEN ORDAINED

A number of the graduates of Luther College have studied theology for one or more years, but have either found themselves to be unqualified, or have not found themselves to be called to be ministers of the Gospel. By entering the seminary they have showed honesty and sincerity of purpose—and a high appreciation of the glory of service in the ministry.

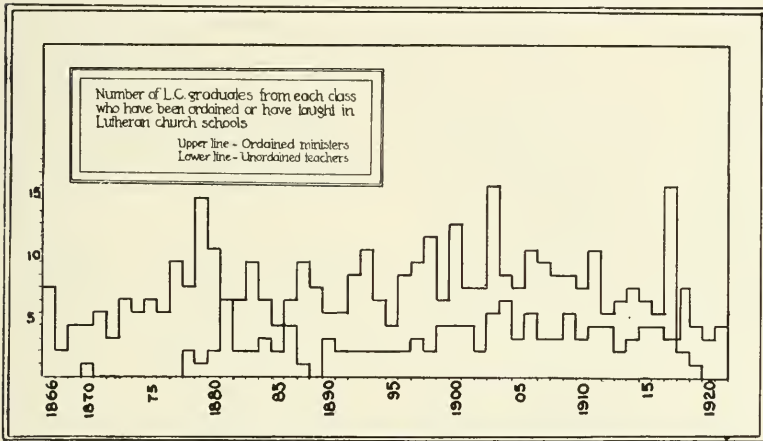

In the list, which follows, an asterisk after the name of the man indicates that he died while studying theology. The third column contains the year of graduation from Luther College, the fourth column the name of the seminary at which he studied, the fifth the years of attendance at the seminary, and the sixth denotes the men who have completed the course and are holders of the degree, Cand. Theol.

PERCENTAGE OF GRADUATES IN CHURCH WORK

IV. LUTHER COLLEGE MEN IN LUTHERAN CHURCH SCHOOLS

In the Luther College catalog for 1921-22 there appear in the occupational summary of the graduates the statements that 43.32% of the graduates are clergymen, students of theology, or foreign missionaries, and that 18.10% are engaged in teaching. These figures indicate the present occupations of the graduates, and the latter figure includes teachers at secular schools. Twice as many Luther College graduates are engaged in teaching as in any other one occupation, except the ministry. Next to preaching the Gospel, the business of teaching in Lutheran church schools is the most important church work that Luther College graduates and undergraduates can do. It may therefore be profitable to ascertain how many of them have engaged in this form of church work. The list which follows is an attempt to supply this information.

As in the other lists the first column enumerates the men, the second the graduates, and the third the undergraduates. In the fourth column appear in alphabetical order the names of Luther

GRADUATES AND UNDERGRADUATES IN CHURCH WORK 447

College men who have taught at Lutheran church schools, the ordained clergymen being indicated by an asterisk. Two asterisks after a name indicate that such person has served as president of Luther Seminary according to the order of rotation in use at that institution. In the fifth column are entered for each man the years of his attendance at Luther College. In the sixth column appear the names of the Lutheran church schools at which each person has taught, and in the seventh the years in which he taught at each school. For further reference another list is appended to the one following below, enumerating in alphabetical order the Lutheran church schools, with addresses, at which Luther College men have taught.

VI. PUBLICATIONS AND LITERARY PRODUCTIONS OF LUTHER COLLEGE MEN IN CHURCH WORK

The list printed below is not complete, either as pertaining to the men who have written or to their writings, but the limited source material at hand makes it impossible to complete it at the present time. Only the writings of the Luther College men who have been engaged in church work as pastors or teachers in church schools, are listed here, but their secular writings have also been included. It will, however, be evident that by far the greatest number deal with church matters. The charge has justly been made that the Norwegian Lutheran Church has been neglectful in providing itself with a literature of its own, and that it is educating its people into the Reformed churches by the extensive use of the literature of those churches. The Lutheran Church must educate its pastors and teachers to an increased literary productivity of a sufficiently high quality to satisfy the thinking layman. The appended list will indicate to some extent what Luther College men have done in this field of church work.

The first column enumerates the men, the second enumerates the graduates, and the third the undergraduates, as in the other lists in this chapter. In the fourth column the names of the men appear, and here the ordained clergymen are indicated by an asterisk. The fifth column classifies the men as Authors, Joint Authors, Editors, Assistant Editors, and Translators. Composers of church music are also included. In the last column appear the titles of the publications, with the date of publication wherever it has been possible to ascertain it. Manuscripts are indicated thus-(Mss). The list is limited to books published and periodicals edited, with a few notable exceptions.

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

OSCAR L. OLSON

I. LOOKING BACKWARD

1. Scholarship

AS time passes, we perceive more and more clearly the significance of the work done by the founders of Luther College. The men who took the lead in founding the College were university men from Norway. They possessed ripe scholarship, broad culture, great earnestness, and high ideals. In their native land bright prospects lay before them, but they gave up every prospect of personal distinction in order to cross the ocean and minister to the spiritual needs of their countrymen who had emigrated to America and were living a pioneer life in what we now call the Middle West. It was fortunate that the men who took the lead in founding the College were Christian men possessing the best education that the Old World could give, for they aimed to found an institution that should, so far as possible, give young men the same preparation for the study of theology that they themselves had received. As a result, Luther was from the beginning intended to be a full-fledged, standard college, and care was taken to secure professors of recognized ability. Thus the founders and early supporters of the College placed the institution on a high plane of scholarship and established a noble tradition,—a tradition that their successors have endeavored to maintain to this day.

2. Christian Spirit

But the chief concern of the founders of the College was to establish an institution which, not only as regards scholarship, but especially as regards instruction in Christian doctrine and the maintenance of a Christian spirit, should prepare young men for the study of theology and subsequent service as ministers of the Gospel in the Lutheran Church. A graded course in Christianity was therefore organized, beginning with the catechism and a small Bible history and concluding with The Augsburg Confession, the New Testament in Greek, and a year's instruction in Hebrew, which was intended principally as a preparation for theological study. As is also the case at present, chapel exercises were held twice daily, morning and evening, and students were expected to attend regular church services. In addition, all instruction was conducted in a Christian spirit; and every teacher and advanced student knows from experience that the spirit in which the instruction in secular subjects is conducted is of the most far-reaching importance. It has therefore been the policy of the College to place men on the faculty who could be trusted to promote the religious aim of the institution. To promote Christian faith, and reverence for the Word of God, has been regarded as a matter of prime importance. In harmony with this purpose, Soli Deo Gloria (To God alone the glory) was selected as the motto of the College, and on each October fourteenth these words blaze forth in electric lights from the tower of the main building; while the seal of the College, which is imprinted on the diploma of every graduate, contains these words: Verbum Dei Manet in Aeternum (The Word of God endures forever). In this respect the founders of the College established a noble principle, which is also maintained to this day. The Bible, as the inspired Word of God, is the foundation of all the instruction at the College. It is honored and revered, and the inculcation of its doctrines is regarded as the sine qua non of a sound education.

The College has thus far fulfilled the aim of its founders to a gratifying extent. This is shown by the fact that 362 of the graduates (including 8 foreign missionaries) have taken up the study of theology after completing the college course, and 194 students have become ministers without having completed the college course. Thus 556 students who have attended Luther have taken up the study of theology after having completed the course in whole or in part.

3. Appreciation of the Work of the Founders and Supporters

In the light of the achievements of the past sixty years, who will say that Luther College has not rendered worthy service to church and state and amply rewarded the efforts of its founders and supporters? All honor to the men who made Luther College possible and have maintained it through these many years. It is touching to read about the early sacrifices that were made for the up-building of the College. It is inspiring to contemplate the unceasing and unselfish efforts of President Larsen and President Preus and members of the faculty and other friends in behalf of the College. May their memory never grow dim. May what they did for the College never fail of appreciation at its true value.

4. Appreciation of the Work of the Women

What the women have done for Luther College is a very important chapter in the history of the institution. None have held Luther College in higher esteem than have the women of our Church. None have been more desirous of having their sons attend Luther than have the women. Many a graduate of Luther would never have attended the College had it not been for his mother; while there is no way of calculating the number of dollars that have come to the College through the influence of the women. In their work for Luther, as in many another field, the women have been glad to achieve results without special recognition of their service.

MRS. DIDERIKKE BRANDT

There are, however, certain features of the work of our women for the College that are of such a nature that it is possible to single them out for special mention. No other person connected with the College in its entire history has gained the affection of the students to a greater extent than did Mrs. Diderikke Brandt in the years 1865-82. She organized the women of the local Lutheran congregation into a society that met regularly to mend the clothes of the students. She kept open house for the students in the parsonage (now the president's residence), and practically all the students of the time enjoyed her hospitality. She did what she could to provide the students entertainment at the College. In short, she was tireless in their behalf and did all that a mother could do for such a large group. Not until the outbreak of the world war did the ladies' society organized by Mrs. Brandt cease to meet regularly to mend the students' clothes. The service they rendered in this manner, though humble and not always agreeable, would represent no small sum if computed in dollars and cents. But like all work of love, it was invaluable.

MRS. LAUR. LARSEN

The most noteworthy visible monument of their love for the College that the women have left on the campus is the heroic bronze statue of Dr. Martin Luther. It cost $2,547, which was collected in small sums from the women of the former Norwegian Lutheran Synod. They could not have made the College a more fitting gift. The statue, which is a replica of the statue at Worms, is a reminder to all who see it of the principles which were championed by the great reformer and for which Luther College stands today, as it has done from the beginning.

Luther College values the good-will of its women friends, and has no fear of the future so long as it has their hearty support.

5. Conclusion

Much more could be said about important features of the College as they have been manifested in the years that are past. But this whole volume of "Luther College through Sixty Years" is principally a retrospect. The foregoing paragraphs are intended merely as an expression of appreciation of the efforts of those who have made Luther College what it is and have given it a history that we should cherish as a priceless heritage.

MRS. C. K. PREUS

II. LOOKING FORWARD

1. The Course of Study

Luther College has a large field of prospective usefulness. The College was founded to serve the Lutheran Church, particularly by giving young men the proper preparation for the study of theology; and as the field to be served by the Lutheran Church grows in extent, so also will the field to be served by the College grow in extent. The College has never measured its usefulness by the number of students in attendance. It has rather measured its usefulness by the number of well equipped workers that it has been able to prepare for service in the church. At no time have well trained workers in the Lutheran Church been more needed than at present. We need ministers who have the best training that a well organized college of our time can give. There are many people who possess some degree of higher education, and effective work among well educated people can best be done by well educated ministers. The education of a minister should not, as a rule, be inferior to that of the well educated men and women of his congregation. Furthermore, a minister must be prepared to meet many kinds of opposition. The life of Christ and the lives of the Apostle Paul and the great reformer Luther show how necessary it is for a minister to be able to meet successfully well trained opponents. A minister should, if possible, be a scholar; for scholarship of the right kind is a powerful aid to a minister who is zealous to protect his flock and extend the kingdom of God. It has been, and is, the aim of Luther College to provide the best possible training for the study of theology and subsequent service in the Christian ministry. This training is the training that is received in pursuing a well planned classical course. The value of knowledge of the classics for a student of theology is maintained by too many authorities in our day, as in the past, to be seriously questioned. No man ever had a better opportunity than did Martin Luther to discover the value of a classical training for a Christian minister, and Luther was an ardent advocate of the study of the classical languages as a preparation for thorough study of the Word of God.

It is true that many men without a classical education do well as ministers of the Gospel; but young men who seek a college education as a preparation for the study of theology should be given the best preparation that can be devised. They should receive an education that will enable them to study the Bible in the original languages; that will enable them to consult the best theological works in Latin and in modern languages; that will, in short, enable them to be original investigators and independent thinkers in the important field of theology. Such an education is to be had in a classical course that takes proper cognizance of the social and natural sciences, mathematics, and the language or languages in which prospective ministers will be called upon to preach to their congregations. It should therefore be the fixed policy of Luther College to maintain the classical course.

But not all who attend the College will plan to enter the ministry. Some will plan to enter other learned professions. These can all be accommodated, as at present, by a limited but judicious system of electives. Thus, on the basis of a classical course—or, rather, as a part of such course—a student may prepare to meet the requirements for a state teacher's certificate without examination, for doing graduate work in such subjects as fall within the scope of the course, for taking up the study of some profession aside from teaching, or for entering directly one of the many occupations open to a person of good character and trained intellect.

It is good for our Church that our congregations contain men who are leaders in the community and have that understanding of our Church that comes from an education received in our own institutions. Fortunately, the best general training for any profession is the training received in pursuing a well planned classical course. Fortunately, this fact is also to-day being emphasized by leading lawyers, physicians, theologians, engineers, and men in other occupations, who have learned by experience what a classical education is worth. There need be no hesitation, therefore, in advising young men to devote themselves whole-heartedly to the pursuit of classical studies.

2. New Buildings

The College should not aim, only to maintain a well balanced classical course; it should also aim to maintain a high degree of excellence in the work done in all the subjects that it offers, so that it may enjoy full recognition as a first class American college. It is not a multiplicity of courses that secures recognition. Recognition is secured by excellent work done in whatever standard courses may be offered; and it is obvious that with the resources at our command better work can be done in a limited field than in a more extensive field. But in order that good work may be done in all subjects, it is essential that the College possess good physical equipment and a good faculty. Physical equipment includes buildings, library, laboratories, and instruments and paraphernalia of various kinds. In addition to the buildings already on the campus, several other buildings are urgently needed. The accommodations for the study of physics, chemistry, biology, and psychology are inadequate. More room must be provided for the instruction in these subjects if they are to occupy worthily the place assigned them in the course as it is now constituted. A well equipped science building is therefore one of the needs of the College.

The department of music should receive more attention, and better facilities should be afforded for the study of music in its various branches. An ideal, which cannot be attained but which there should be an endeavor to approximate, is that every student should receive some voice culture, should take part in some chorus singing, and should learn to play some musical instrument. A knowledge of music, which is the most beautiful of the fine arts, which produces pleasure of the most refined nature, and is of great practical value to the minister of the Gospel, should as far as possible be acquired by every college student. Gratifying results have been achieved in the Luther College Concert Band, the chorus, and the rendering of great oratorios; but better facilities should be provided for instruction in music. An important step toward providing such facilities is the erection of a music hall. A music hall is therefore another of the buildings needed at the College.

In conjunction with the music hall, a new chapel should be provided. The present chapel is a very serviceable room, but it has fixed seats for only 240 people. It is therefore already too small. The proposed chapel could very well be combined with the music hall, and should provide an auditorium with seats for about 600 people. Thus in one building accommodations could be provided both for a music hall and for a chapel and auditorium.

Fully as urgent as the need of the two buildings just mentioned is the need of a new gymnasium. A part of the present gymnasium, which is a frame structure, was built thirty-five years ago and the remainder of the building was built nineteen years ago. It has been used both as a gymnasium and an auditorium, but it is no longer satisfactory for either purpose. A new gymnasium is an imperative need. Besides the usual equipment, the gymnasium should have a spectators' gallery with a seating capacity of at least 500. The gymnasium could be so constructed that a large platform could be provided at one end and open floor space for about 1,800 chairs. Thus the gymnasium could be used as an auditorium with seats for about 2,300 people. Its use as an auditorium would be required only on special occasions as the the chapel would furnish a sufficiently large auditorium for ordinary purposes.

At the present rate of increase in attendance, more dormitory room will soon be needed; and probably before any other building is erected, the need of a new dormitory will be urgent.

The general sentiment among the alumni is that the first building to be erected on the campus should be a new gymnasium. But no permanent building should be erected on the campus that is not well built—in harmony, for instance, with Koren Library—and designed to meet requirements for a considerable time to come. It is both more satisfactory and less expensive in the long run to build substantial, well planned structures than to erect buildings that soon fail to meet requirements but are too good to be replaced.

THE CAMPUS IN WINTER

3. The Attendance

The number and size of buildings to be erected, together with the amount of equipment of various sorts to be provided, depend largely upon the size of the attendance. According to a statement made in the "Bulletin of the Association of American Colleges" for May, 1921, "an equipment and staff adequate to an efficient college can handle about 500 students." This statement is based upon a careful investigation of the matter. It should therefore be the policy of the College to plan for an attendance of about 500. A number of well known colleges have found it necessary to limit their attendance to such numbers as can be accommodated with the equipment in buildings, laboratories, etc., which they possess. Considering the size of the faculty that an attendance of 500 students would require, in addition to the new buildings and other equipment needed to accommodate that number of students, it seems wise not to plan for a larger attendance at Luther College than about 500.

4. The Library and the Museum

It is hardly necessary to state that the library, the museum, the science laboratories, and other equipment should be made as complete and serviceable as means will permit. The College has an excellent library of about 29,000 bound volumes and between 8,000 and 10,000 pamphlets and unbound books. The plan according to which the library should be developed is well set forth in the following statement made by Prof. Karl T. Jacobsen, librarian: "In the future development of the library greatest stress should undoubtedly continue to be placed on obtaining material most directly needed in the various courses, so that the library may become even more than at present the workshop of students and instructors. The gaps in the reference library should be filled and this made more comprehensive; our collection of Lutheran literature should be made more complete; the Norwegian and Norwegian-American collection should be made as exhaustive as possible; more emphasis might to advantage be laid on collecting material on local history and history of the Middle West; and last, but not least, the organization already referred to should go forward as fast as circumstances will allow, not only that the resources of the library may be made better available, but also that the students may become better acquainted with better bibliographical tools and get a better insight into the methods of independent research." In order to carry out this program, additions to the library should be made as rapidly as available funds will permit.

The museum should not be a curiosity shop; it should serve a distinct educational purpose. It should especially illustrate the pioneer life of Norwegian immigrants in this country. The debt we owe them can never be repaid; but we can honor them and receive encouragement from their lives by properly preserving and displaying objects which they cherished and found useful in their day, and by collecting and preserving books and other printed matter from which they drew knowledge and inspiration for their daily work. While a very good beginning for a museum has been made, there still remain great possibilities for collecting valuable objects which otherwise may be lost to posterity.

5. Music, Public Speaking, and Physical Training

Music, public speaking, and physical training are important features of a well organized college. The ideal in music has already been stated in the paragraph that sets forth the necessity of a music hall at the College. In public speaking, the ideal is that every college graduate should possess the ability to address an audience in an agreeable and effective manner. In physical training, the ideal is to develop in every student a healthy, well-proportioned physique. The departments concerned with these features of college life should be organized so as to approximate the ideals as nearly as possible.

In athletics, success in intercollegiate contests should not be over-emphasized; it should be subordinated to the chief aim in physical training, while all improper and dishonest practices which are prone to creep into college athletics should be rigidly excluded. Honesty and fairness have been the watchwords of our participation in athletic contests in the past. They should continue to be so in the future.

6. A College for Men

Owing to the fact that "the chief aim of the College is to provide a liberal and thorough education for young men who intend later to enter the ministry," Luther College has from the beginning been a college for men. The aim of the College has not been changed. It never should be changed. Therefore Luther College should continue to be a college for men. This does not imply opposition to the higher education of women; other provisions have been made, and additional provisions can be made, for giving our young women a college education. But the College can more readily be held to its distinctive aim if no provision has to be made for a class of students who are not eligible to the ministry in the Lutheran Church. Furthermore, if we are to plan for an attendance of about 500, it is quite probable that at no distant date a full attendance will be secured; and considering the chief aim of the College, it is preferable that the attendance should consist as largely as possible of students who may, upon graduation, continue their studies at Luther Theological Seminary.

7. The Field

The field of the College throughout its history of more than sixty years has been that of the whole church body to which it belongs. The College has at no time cultivated a local constituency. Its students have come from many states, and its alumni are found from New York to San Francisco, though they are principally located in the great Northwest, where the bulk of the people of Norwegian extraction in this country reside. The field of the College should continue to be co-extensive with the field of the Church. There is ample room in this field for all our colleges to grow and thrive. There need be no unseemly rivalry among them. Let them all be free to extend their influence as far as possible. Each college has its individual characteristics. Luther stands alone in our Church as a college for men, and this fact precludes the idea of its being regarded as a local institution. Furthermore, its course is so organized that all its graduates have received a training designed to prepare them particularly for the study of theology. The College should therefore be free to draw from all quarters of our Church and should continue to receive the support of the Church as a whole.

8. The Faculty

Luther College has a good faculty. Had the members of the faculty been seeking personal advancement, a number of them might now be holding positions that are more lucrative, and that most people regard as much more desirable, than a professorship at Luther. But they have remained loyal to the College and its cause. The College can hardly hope to be able at any time to offer its professors such salaries as they might receive elsewhere. Nevertheless, there is good reason to believe that in the future, no less than at present and in the past, men of scholarship and ability will be willing to serve on our faculty for less compensation than they might receive elsewhere. Too much stress cannot be laid on the value of a good faculty. From every point of view, a good faculty is of prime importance to the College. It is the faculty, more than any other feature of a college, that makes a college good, bad, or indifferent. The faculty should consist of Christian men who are zealous to promote the work of the Lutheran Church and are willing to bow in all things to the Word of God. It should consist of men of recognized scholarship, whose services other institutions would be glad to secure. It should consist of men possessing ability to teach and the ability to exert a distinct influence on their students. And it should consist of men who can work in harmony and thus render the most efficient service.

9. Endowment

The value of our schools to the Church is beyond calculation, but it requires considerable annual expense to maintain them. In order to lighten the burden of this annual expense a systematic attempt should be made to raise adequate endowment funds. Luther College has an endowment fund of a quarter of a million dollars, but this fund should be increased. Wittenberg College in Ohio has recently raised an endowment fund of more than $2,000,000. In like manner the endowment fund of Luther College should be increased as soon as practicable. The education of our youth should continue, whether times happen to be good or bad; and Luther College should not unnecessarily be dependent on temporary financial conditions. It should, if possible, be placed in a position where it can continue unhampered to educate young men who plan to enter the Christian ministry or other positions of service and influence in our Church. The only practicable method of doing this is to increase the present endowment fund. The endowment must not, however, become the means of detaching the College from the Church. The College must remain, as at present, in close organic connection with the Church and under its control. So long as this is the case, there is small danger that the College will pursue a course at variance with the purpose of its founders. It would probably be well both for the Church and for the College that the College should always be dependent to some extent on annual appropriations by the Church. This would be a constant reminder to all concerned that the College is expected to serve the Church.

10. Financial Secretary

The College should have a financial secretary who could devote his time to raising funds for the College. The plans for the College outlined in this chapter contemplate the raising of larger sums than our Church can be expected to include in the annual budgets. There are well-to-do people who would probably be willing to give very liberally in order to help the College realize its plans, if the matter were laid before them properly and they were made to see what a blessed and necessary work Luther College is doing for our Church. Such work as would devolve upon the financial secretary requires time, study, and the exercise of perseverance and good judgment. It cannot be done successfully by a person who already has sufficient to do. It requires the full time of one who is adapted to the work. The work that a good financial secretary can do will be of great value to the College and to the Church. Such a secretary should be appointed without delay.

11. The Preparatory Department

The Preparatory Department should be retained. It is one of the very few preparatory schools that are supported by our Church as a whole. Such support makes it possible to offer a course of study that meets our ideas of what a preparatory school for young men should be. The trend of sentiment in our Church seems to be away from establishing more secondary schools. In fact, there is some sentiment for abolishing such schools in the Church altogether. But to eliminate all such schools in our Church would be very unwise. There should be at least a few such schools of superior quality in order to accommodate those of our people who desire to make use of them. The Preparatory Department of Luther College is just such a school of superior quality. It has a very able corps of instructors. It offers a substantial course of study, in which there are some electives, but in which English, algebra, plane geometry, general history, American history, music, physics or chemistry, Christianity, Norwegian, and at least two years of Latin are required. To graduate from this course requires diligent application, and no course is what it should be unless it requires hard work. Furthermore, such a course under our own control enables us both to keep pernicious influences out of the class room and to make proper regulations for the conduct of the pupils. At Luther, dancing and card-playing are forbidden, church attendance is encouraged, attendance at chapel exercises twice daily is required; and at chapel exercises many a Christian truth is impressed upon the minds of the pupils which otherwise might all too seldom be brought to their attention. In short, at the very impressionable age at which pupils attend a preparatory school, they are surrounded by distinctly Christian influences. An education consists not only of class room instruction. It consists of everything that moulds the character of the pupils, that trains them mentally and physically, and that fixes the principles on which their thoughts and actions in life will be based.

The Preparatory Department at Luther is particularly desirable as a feeder for the Freshman class of the College. The classical course, such as is maintained at Luther, is not popular; but it is invaluable for the general education that it affords and especially as a preparation for the study of theology. This course must be maintained at all hazards, and one assurance that it can be maintained is the fact that the College is in a position to offer the proper preparation for such a course. To be sure, it costs the Church something' to maintain the Preparatory Department, but not so much as one might think. The income from the Preparatory Department in 1921-22 was about $8,577.00, which offsets to a considerable extent the cost of maintaining the department. We should not place ourselves in a position where our colleges are wholly dependent on preparatory schools over which our Church has no control. In pursuing a policy of discontinuing our church schools, it is surely the part of wisdom to observe the Latin adage Festina lente (Make haste slowly).

In "College Chips" for October, 1921, p. 285, Dr. O. M. Norlie makes a statement, which is pertinent in this connection and is quoted here with a slight change in the statistics:

"The 12,000 public high schools of the United States, with up to 25,000 Norwegian boys every year, gave the Norwegian Church during the period 1843-1915 only 38 of their graduates. Many of these boys were sons of pastors, on account of which they were headed for the theological seminary in spite of the high school influence. Others were in other ways prevailed on to take up the study of theology. Luther College Preparatory Department has supplied the Church with 447 pastors. It has, with only a small handful of students, done about 12 times as much as the 12,000 public high schools have done together. It would take 150,000 high schools to equal the work of Luther College Preparatory Department."

12. Conclusion

Finally, let it be repeated that "The chief aim of the College is to provide a liberal and thorough education for young men who intend later to enter the ministry," and this aim must remain unchanged. The attendance should be maintained at a point that will cause the advantages that it offers to be used to the fullest extent. Unceasing efforts should be made to assist the students to realize what a glorious life it is to live for Christ and labor in His vineyard, so that as many as possible of the students may, upon graduation, continue their studies at Luther Theological Seminary. If graduates of Luther, which offers a course that is planned as a preparation for the study of theology, do not enter our seminary in sufficient numbers, the outlook for our Church is not so bright as it might be. Let us make Luther College as good a college, if possible, as any college of its kind in the land; let us provide it with equipment that meets every reasonable requirement; let us plan to maintain a faculty that will command respect in educational circles. But let us never neglect to maintain the College as a distinctively Christian college, where the spirit of Christ is the all-pervading spirit, and where the Word of God is the Alpha and Omega in all the instruction and in the thought and conduct of the faculty and students. If we do this, we may confidently ask our people to give Luther College their hearty support; for we shall have done much to assist the College to fulfill its mission. *Verbum Dei Manet in Aeternum.
